It is a happy state to you and your family, that my wife used your wonderful remedy, August Flower, for sick headache, palpitation of the heart, with satisfactory results. For several years she has been a great sufferer, has been under the treatment of eminent physicians in this city and Boston, and found little relief. She was induced to try August Flower, which afforded her immediate relief. We cannot say much for it." L. C. Frost, Springfield, Mass.

Dwyer's Earnest Endorsement of Kickapoo Indian Remedies.

WYCKOFF, MINN., Nov. 17. I have suffered much from Neuralgia and Stomach Troubles, and have tried various medicines, but they have done me no good. Recently, however, I was cured by the Kickapoo Indian Remedies, and have been entirely cured by the Kickapoo Indian Remedies. I feel as well as a host of others have who have used your wonderful success. Yours in truth, P. C. N. DWYER.

Drainage of Lands.

I would like to say a few words about draining land, says a writer in Farm, Field and Fireside. Some claim that shallow drainage is just as good, if not better, than deep drainage. In some kinds of soil, as heavy clay, it may be just as good, but in the most of soils deep drainage is a great deal the best. Deep drainage will drain a larger amount of ground on each side of the ditch; for example, where a ditch is cut two feet deep it will drain the ground on each side just as far as the slope from the bottom of the ditch to the top of the ground, say two rods on each side, and a ditch four feet will drain three rods on each side, and a ditch four feet deep will stand a great deal heavier rain than a ditch two feet deep as the pores of the ground are open down to the bottom of the ditch, and it will take more water to fill them.

In cutting a drain it should be cut in the lowest ground to drain the farthest on each side.

Most farmers ditch out their black ground and let the clay ground go. Most clay ground needs ditching as bad as the black ground, and if it were drained it would bring as good crops as the black soil without manuring every year. I ditched out some clay ground last year and it brought about as good corn as my black land.

Deep and Shallow Covering in Sowing Grass Seed.

Bulletin 19 of the Iowa experiment station reports an experiment in covering grass and clover seed at different depths in a sandy loam. The spring was rainy and the ground wet; seeding could not be done until April 9, when operations began. Red clover, timothy, Bromus inermis and tall meadow oat grass were sown at that date, as follows: A plot of each one rod square was covered one-half inch deep by raking the seed in. A plot of each was sown in furrows made one inch deep and covered with the hoe. A plot of each was sown in furrows two inches deep, and a plot of each was put in furrows three inches deep. The season remained favorable to growth until July 23, at which date the various plots were cut, with the following result:

Clover—
Covered 1 1/2 inch made 31-2 pounds.
Covered 1 inch made 11 pounds.
Covered 2 inches made 5 pounds.
Covered 3 inches made 3 pounds.

Timothy—
Covered 1 1/2 inch made 20 pounds.
Covered 1 inch made 25 pounds.
Covered 2 inches made 15 pounds.
Covered 3 inches made 17 pounds.

The months of September, October and November were very dry, the only severe drought of the season occurring during these months, and at the end of November the clover covered three inches deep was the most vigorous, while the timothy, tall meadow oat grass and Bromus inermis covered two inches deep were in the best condition.

Salt for Pigs.

A veterinary correspondent writes to the Mark Lane Express: I am often asked about giving salt to pigs. Personally, I should not like to allow them a free supply, which is what putting a lump in the trough means, and especially to in-pigs or suckling sows or very young animals. Salt is decidedly injurious if given to pigs in large quantities, and leads to a condition that is described as salt poisoning. A little will do no harm, perhaps, to large pigs, but whether it is prejudice, or because experience has demonstrated that it is bad for the animals, salt is never placed in the piggery. The cases where I have seen do mischief is where brine from the pickle-tub has been mixed with the wash-butcher's waste, and that from hotels, commonly containing far too much. The same thing applies to soda, which often gets into the wash when dishwater is emptied into the tub. I strongly advise against the use of salt for suckling sows—any one may get good-by to the youngsters if they get any quantity. Even the liquor in which salt meat has been boiled has been known to upset them. A far greater essential for pigs than salt is small coal or other grit. It is useful also where pigs do not get the liberty of a run to cut sods of turf, with plenty of soil adhering, and thrown to them in the pens.

Noticed a Change.

When a man alters the cut of his whiskers all his friends notice a difference in him, but many of them are at a loss how to account for it. "What have you been doing?" they say "You look like another person."

Something like this happened, according to an exchange, when a woman returned home after a few days' absence, and heard her daughter playing on the piano.

"Where did you learn that new piece, Maria?" the mother asked.

"It isn't a new piece, mother. The piano has been tuned."

Libraries in Japan.

Some interesting information concerning public libraries of Japan has recently been furnished through the report of Mr. Tanaker, a young native librarian. The two institutions of greatest magnitude, it would seem, are the Tokio library and the library of the Imperial university. The former is a national institution, and, like our British museum, has the right of claiming one copy of every publication issued from the Press.

It has been in existence scarcely twenty years; yet it already contains nearly 100,000 Japanese and Chinese books, besides more than 25,000 European books and duplicates which are in reserve. The number of books consulted by readers averages the year through about 1,000 a day. The reading room accommodates about 200 readers and is divided into three compartments—"special," "ladies" and "ordinary." It possesses also a card catalogue and a printed catalogue—both classified. Of the books asked for 22 1/2 per cent belong to the classes of history and geography, 21 per cent to literature and language, 17 1/2 per cent to science and medicine, and nearly 13 1/2 per cent to law and politics.

The library of the Imperial university comprises 101,317 Japanese and Chinese books and 77,991 European books, but is simply for the use of professors and students. There are also eight smaller public libraries and ten private libraries in various parts of the empire. Publishers' Circular.

War Ships Coming from Russia.

The emperor of Russia has decided to dispatch a large squadron of warships to the United States to take part in the naval display which is to be arranged in Hampton Roads to celebrate the opening of the Chicago exposition. This squadron will call at Cherbourg or Brest as a compliment to the French government, and the ships are also to visit the Duke of Edinburgh at Davenport. The squadron will be really commanded by Admiral Karamoff, but is to be nominally under command of Grand Duke Alexis, lord high admiral of Russia, and among the officers will be Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovitch, who is betrothed to Grand Duchess Xenie, elder daughter of the czar.

Had a Long Beard and Despised Doctors.

Matthew Robinson (Lord Rokeby), a prominent but eccentric Englishman of the last century, became famous for his long beard and pronounced hatred of medical practitioners. In regard to the former it is said that upon one occasion when going to an election he stopped at an inn where the country people, who had assembled for miles around, took him for a Turk and through this mistaken idea almost worried "me lord" to death. His dislike for physicians was carried to such an extreme that he left a codicil to his will which was to the effect that a favorite nephew was to be disinherited should he (the nephew) in the last illness of the lord let his sympathies cause him to send for a doctor. This having been made known to the nephew when his uncle, the lord, was in good health, it is needless to add that he allowed that person's spirit to take its flight without calling in any of the "infernal surgical fraternity."

If You Want The Best

ALTHOUGH you may have had good luck with but few failures in making cake and biscuit in the old-fashioned way with soda and sour milk, or soda and cream of tartar, you will have better luck and (following directions) no failures with the Royal Baking Powder. The truth of this must be evident when you remember that in the leading hotels and restaurants, and in the homes of our city cousins, where the latest and best methods are invariably employed, and where the most beautiful and dainty food is always set out for the guests, the Royal Baking Powder is exclusively used for all quickly risen food.

Royal Baking Powder never disappoints; never makes sour, soggy or husky food; never spoils good materials; never leaves lumps of alkali in the biscuit or cake; while all these things do happen with the best of cooks who cling to the old-fashioned methods, or who use other Baking Powders.

If you want the best food, Royal Baking Powder is indispensable.

What Makes People Talk?
ABOUT DR. C. GEE WO, OF OMAHA.

Because of the marvelous cures he is continually effecting. A life-long study of the human system in the medical college of China, and the most skillful of all Chinese physicians, because they are remedies provided by nature, viz: Roots, Herbs, Buds, Flowers, Fruits, etc., of which over 5,000 different varieties are used. They were introduced to be used as medicine from the beginning. Why should they not be the best as they are strictly and purely vegetable; they act on the system as medicine and give strength and nourishment to the body at the same time. These Chinese medicines have been used in China for thousands of years and were especially pointed out by Chan Wong, the Emperor, who built the great Chinese wall upon criminals. Today, as a result of such investigation and continued use of these medicines China has a population of nearly five hundred million people. How could they increase and continue such an immense population if it were not for their knowledge of such wonderful medicine? Dr. C. Gee Wo has been in Omaha for four years, during which time he has established a most enviable reputation. Repeated efforts have been made to force him to leave the city, but he is happy to announce to the public that the Supreme Court has decided the contest in his favor. Why do the people want him to remain in Omaha? Why do the doctors want him to leave? Because of his wonderful success and the marvellous cures he is effecting. Dr. C. Gee Wo invites sufferers in all parts of the west to give him a call. He will not extort money from you unnecessarily, but will sell you honestly whether or not he can cure you. He prefers to see his patients in person, and it will pay you to visit his office. If, however, it is not convenient for you to call you may be treated successfully by correspondence.
