THE WILSON BROTHERS AND THEIR MANY FELONIES.

They Have en Interesting Record for Dark Deeds Done in the East—straw Bail Was Their Favorite Little Trick -Train Robbers.

While accounts of many exploits, crimes, daring robberies, imprison-ments and reckless escapes in the West have been written of members of the notorious Wilson gang, principally on information furnished by Chief of Police W. S. Seavy of Omaha, Neb., at which place the family resided for many years, it is not generally known, says the Syracuse Standard, that the Wilsons also have an interesting record for dark deeds done in the East.

Twenty years ago Dink and Charles Wilson were living with their father, mother, brothers and sisters in the small town of Hollidaysburg, Penn., which is located in an extensive lumbering region just west of the coal mines. The boys were quite young at that time, but not nearly so much as the ages given by them when arrested would make it appear. It is a common trick among noted criminals to place their ages at the lowest possible point at all consistent with their looks. In this way they are often successful in proving that they were not connected with crimes happening years ago, at a time when it would be supposed that they were too young to answer the descriptions given of the criminals implicated.

Charles Wilson has stated his age at different times at 19 and 23 years respectively. That he is at least several years older no one who has seen him doubts. And the same map be said of his brother Dink, who stated his age at 24 when arrested. Ten years more of life to a confirmed crook like one of these means a long record of deviltry and crime. So it was that in 1876 at the time of the robbery in Hawley, Penn., the Wilson boys, whose reputations were anything but good, were not beyond suspicion.

In Wayne county, on the line of the Delaware and Hudson canal company's railroad, where coal is transferred from the coal regions to the canal, is located the small town of Hawley. J. Millham & Co., at that time, kept the general merchandise store. One night about the middle of the year 1876 the store was entered by burglars, the safe blown open and several hundred dollars in cash and many articles of wearing apparel were stolen. The burglars escaped, but one of them was seen in the streets of the quiet town, and being a stranger there attracted attention. A description of the man was sent over the state by the local sheriff and railroad men were especially asked to keep a lookout for the fleeing burglar. A few nights afterward a brakeman on a coal train bound for Scranton saw a man leap upon the train when it was moving rapidly.

Calling a couple of trainmen to his assistance he made known his suspicions that the man looked like the burglar wanted at Hawley, and together the railroad men overpowered | give them serious trouble. the athletic young man, who fought desperately. He was taken to Hawley and given into the charge of the constable. Next day he was brought before the local justice of the peace, where he gave an assumed name. He was recognized as one of the notorious Wilson family, and seeing that the evidence of his identity was positive, he admitted his name was Wilson. He said that his full name was William W. Wilson, but the officials found there was no such member of the family, and made up their minds that they had captured Lucius R. Wilson. He had on a pair of new shoes, which Millham, the store-keeper, identified from the costmark on them, as being property stolen from him.

Wilson was held for the grand jury, which would soon sit at the court-house at Honesdale, where Wilson was taken and lodged in one of the strongest cells, equipped with steel doors, walls and ceiling. A few days afterward he escaped and was never since seen in that locality. It was found that he obtained possession of the key to his cell for a short time and made an impression of it in soap. This he managed in some way to send to a friend outside the jail, who furnished him with a delicate skeleton key, which he used to secure his freedom. The next morning the key was found in the road a mile east of the village.

It was afterward learned that Wilson went to Hollisterville, a noted retreat for crooks. As Hollisterville is toward Scranton in a direct line west, his trick in placing the key east of the village, to throw the officers off his track of escape, was a clever one.

The history of Lucius B. and Charles F. Wilson in the West has been published in the local press. Even when the boys were in school in Omaha they took delight in leading gangs of boys into mischief of more or less serious nature. They were known to keep bad company and their start in crime is not to be wondered at.

Their first prominent arcest was in Leavenworth, Kan., where a search revealed that they were possessed of burglars' and safe-cracking tools of an advanced type. On this occasion their sister Nettie secured bail for them and they escaped, forfeiting the money advanced for them. Chief Seavy of Omaha, soon located them in that city, and they were captured of the silent and imperceptible only after a desperate struggle. He changes brought about by what is callthen secured the photographs of ed "time," than that of a language them which were of so much service becoming dead.

THEIR CAREER OF CRIME in the recent capture and identification in this city. After their release they went to St. Joseph, Mo., where they met Hedspeth and Sly, the no-torious train robbers, and organized the famous Hedspeth gang. It was this gang that planned and carried out the daring Glendale train robbery, where $18,000 in booty was secured. Sly and Hedspeth were captured in California, where they were spending their ill-gotten gains, and are now serving twenty years sentences in the penitentiary at Jefferson City.

In Its Infancy.

With all the progress that has been made, sanguine men of science are of the opinion that the world is yet on the threshold of electrical experiment, and that with the aid of this magical power of nature results will be produced surpassing what is now deemed impossible. Every patent that is issued represents a new idea, a new application of electricity or a new method for its production. For every patent that is granted a dozen are rejected; and each applica-tion is the result of numerous ex-periments. Thousands are busied in wresting the innermost secrets of this power, and in finding new ways of turning them to the uses of mankind. The age of steam propulsion. which was ushered in 100 years ago. has been followed by the age of electricity, which in less than twenty years has already accomplished mar vels. Achievement is so rapid and so continuous in this domain of human efforts that imagination can scarcely keep pace with it.

An apple tree known to be 143 years old, on the property of Mrs. Delia Hotchkiss, in Cheshire, Conn., was destroyed by a recent storm. It bore fruit every fall, but only on one side each year. The side that bore one year would be barren the next. The tree vielded about 140 bushels annually.

Forest fires in the region about Puget Sound have driven the bears and cougars out of their mountain haunts into the valleys and among the farm lands and settlements. They have been seen in considerable numbers near some well-settled districts, and the inhabitants are afraid that the scarcity of food occasioned by the fires may cause the fierce beasts to Observers say that carp are destroying duck feeding grounds along the shores of Lake Erie and around the bay. Carp do not confine themselves to eating bulbs from the wild rice, thus destroying it, but also eat the small crustacea that collect in such numbers in a species of water cress that grows on the bottom of the lake. This cress flourishes in the water as far out from the shore as to a depth of eight or ten feet. The carp eats the cress as well as the crustacea.

its Nearest Competitor.
The Royal Baking Powder has the enviable record of having received the highest award for articles of its class greatest strength, purest ingredients, most perfectly combined—wherever exhibited in competition with others. The result at the Chicago World's Fair is no exception. In the exhibitions of former years, at the Centennial, at and Industrial fairs, where it has been exhibited, judges have invariably awarded the Royal Baking Powder the highest honors.

At the recent World's Fair the exam inations for the taking powder awards were directed by the chief chemist of the Agricultural Department at Wash-ington. The chief chemist's official report of the test of the baking powders, which was made for the specific purpose of ascertaining which was the best, shows the leavening strength of the Royal to be 160 cubic inches of carbonic gas per ounce of powder. Of the cream of tartar baking powders exhibited, the next highest in strength tested contained but 133 cubic inches of leavening gas. The other powders gave an average of 111. The Royal, therefore, was found of 20 per cent greater leavening strength than its nearest competitor, and 44 per cent above the average of all the other tests. Its superiority in other respects, how-ever, in the quality of the food it makes as to fineness, delicacy and wholesomeness, could not be measured by figures.

It is these high qualities, known and appreciated by the women of the country for so many years, that have caused the sales of the Royal Baking Powder, as shown by statistics, to exceed the sale of all other baking powders combined

Country boys who are inclined to think that life in the city is easy and comfortable compared with their daily toil in the country, are apt to find themselves mistaken when they come to town and subject themselves to the high-pressure system of business estab-lishments. A farmer's boy went to the city, finding the work at home rather tiresome, and obtained a situation in a large "family supply" store, where a "rushing business" was carried on. He "took hold" very well, and his employers liked him.

Donkey is in Spanish burro. In Texas, New Mexico, Colorado and in Arizona, where the donkey is as well known as the horse, he is always called by his Spanish name, on account of the fact that that this section of the United States so recently belonged to the Mexicans, who as everybody knows, speak that language. The Spanish and Mexicans also apply the term "borro" to a stupid or ignorant person, just as English speaking races use the word "donkey."
