

REPUBLICAN MATTERS.

LEWELLING AND WAITE.

Like Other Populist Leaders They Continue to Be Reticent.

Within the last eighteen months the people of the United States have had two samples of the results of Populist government and it is a pretty safe wager to make that these samples will suffice for many years to come. A year ago the state of Kansas was disgraced by Governor Lewelling in his attempt to usurp the powers of the legislature and override the will of the people. Troops were marshaled in front of the state house and bloodshed would have followed had the militia been obedient to the commands of the Populist governor. The knowledge that these commands were in violation of the constitution of the state alone prevented a bloody encounter between the executive and legislative branches of the government.

Now comes "Wade-in-Blood-to-the-Bridles" Waite of Colorado, with his state militia and a detachment of United States troops. Siege is laid to the city hall of Denver, which is a veritable arsenal of policemen, firemen and citizens determined to protect the rights of two police commissioners whom the governor had attempted to remove either without cause or for political reasons. The governor's nerve, however, was not equal to the occasion and he did not dare oppose the will of an indignant populace. Consequently a compromise was effected.

Such displays cannot fail to impress the American people with the irresponsible character of the men who represent the Populist party in high places, says the Detroit Tribune. The Populists have lost their opportunity to gain some permanent strength in the Western states by the conduct of their official representatives. Wherever a Populist official has been elected there has been found a conspicuous lack of dignity, efficiency and patriotism. As has been frequently remarked, members of the Populist party possess all of the vices of both the old parties with none of the virtues of either. Experience has shown that no legislature is as venal and corrupt as one composed largely of Populists. Place a Populist in power and he immediately becomes the exponent of all the evils which he affects to despise. The executives of Kansas and Colorado have shown the people of those states that they were unworthy of the high public offices to which they were elected. They have also shown the country at large the futility and barrenness of the Populist scheme for the reform of the country. Lawlessness and a wanton disregard of the rights of citizens have marked the administration of public affairs since the Populist regime began and the Tribune has no doubt that the people of those states have long since repented of their folly and will "do deeds meet for repentance" at the next election. Lewelling and Waite have been of service to the country as object lessons and nothing more.

"Senatorial Honor."

There have been times when the charge that members of the United States senate were see-sawing a clause in an important bill for the purpose of influencing the stock market and giving them a chance to make large sums by speculating on inside information would have been indignantly denounced on all sides and believed by nobody whose opinion amounted to anything. But now there are known to be men in the senate who are quite capable of such a course, and the intimation that the delay in deciding on the sugar schedule in the tariff bill and the succession of contradictory "tips" given out are not only enabling men high in public life to gather in enormous speculative profits, but are deliberately intended to do so, can not be denied to have a strong color of probable truth.

The National Debt.

With two exceptions, all national debts in Europe have been considerably augmented and in some cases trebled or doubled in the last quarter of a century. There has been a continuous reduction in the debt of the United States. It was especially rapid from 1880 to 1890, the per capita debt being reduced $38.33 in 1880 to $12.24 in 1890, while the average per capita debt of the countries named above was $35.62 in 1890. It is pertinent to add that our debt was reduced more largely during the last Republican administration than in any other period of four years since 1880. Not until the present Democratic administration, with its new economic policy, came into power was there a cessation of the process of paying off the debt.

Has the Proper Qualifications.

The Broadway boodler, Jaehne, has been restored to citizenship. Why not? Mr. Cleveland restored Edward S. Stokes to citizenship. Stokes killed Fisk. Jaehne never killed anyone. He merely took bribes, and received stolen goods. Why should Mr. Croker delay in making Jaehne a district leader in Tammany hall? Stokes is a powerful member of Tammany, and has enormous influence in the district attorney's office, in the grand jury room and with Tammany judges. District Attorney Fellows is his intimate personal friend? Why not Jaehne?—N. Y. Tribune.

Populist Governors.

The Populist governors furnish an object lesson in politics that should be profitable to the people of their respective states. They have proved to be in every respect discreditable and mischievous. Their principal ambition, apparently is to keep themselves before the public in some ridiculous or reproachful way, regardless of all considerations of dignity, propriety and decency.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

PROFESSION AND PRACTICE.

Cleveland's Unblushing Use of Patronage to Gain His Own Ends.

Mr. Cleveland has posed as a civil service reformer. The most notable letters written and speeches made by him in 1884 dwelt upon the necessity for uprooting the "spoils system" and elevating the civil service. With a great deal of fervor he insisted that merit should be the test in appointments to office and in promotions, and that neither the president nor the head of a department should remove any subordinate except for cause. His unctuous and eloquent exploitations of this doctrine gained many votes. It is fair to say that during his first term Mr. Cleveland put restraints upon place-hunters and otherwise practiced, to some extent, what he preached.

In the campaign of 1892 there was apparently no abatement of his zeal for reform. But even the mugwumps are now forced to confess a total loss of confidence in their quondam idol. The course he has pursued leaves no basis for a presumption of sincerity. Look at the record of the administration. Assistant Secretary of State Quincy was allowed to loot the consular service to reward political workers. In the treasury department the most efficient chiefs of bureaus and the most competent and faithful clerks have been summarily removed to make places for Democrats. The facts have been laid before the president again and again, says the Cincinnati Times-Star. He says nothing and does nothing. Furthermore, offices were traded for votes of congressmen last summer in favor of the silver-law repeal bill and patronage has been used in an attempt to conciliate the support of senators from the infamous Hawaiian program and for nominations made by the president. With unblushing indifference to past professions, to the party platform and to the sentiment against bribery and corruption, the great reformer in the White house has resorted to spoils as a means of carrying out his personal policy.

This is the raw truth. Nobody in Washington doubts it or offers denial. It has become a common scandal. The civil service reform association openly arraigns the president for perjury and rank spoilsism. Even Harper's Weekly repeats the charge with approval. Inflated false pretense no longer avails to conceal fraud and humbug.

No Place Like Home—Just Now.

There is one virtue which the Democrats of the country seem to possess in ever-increasing measure. It is an intense love of home. So strong is it that it will not yield to the seductive influences even of an important election. Election day finds these domestic voters hugging the fireside and refusing to leave it, even although the penalty of their affection be the turning over of affairs to Republican hands. This disposition became very evident last fall. It grew stronger when two congressmen were to be elected in New York city. It piled up an unheard-of majority of 187,000 for Grow in Pennsylvania. It has swept the town elections in New York state for Republican candidates, except where leading Democrats had political push enough to kill three or four men at the polls and so assert themselves. Politics has nothing to do with it. The Hawaiian business has nothing to do with it. The Wilson bill has nothing to do with it. All these things we know, because our dear Democratic friends tell us so. They assure us that there are just as many Democrats in the country as ever, only they are not voting this year; and it is hinted that their passionate attachment to their homes is the reason of their absence from the polls. We do not know whether this mysterious affliction that has moved across the country, as if it were a sort of political gripe, is real homesickness or not. But it is clearly fatal. Physicians are in vain. Wherever these Democrats are who have not voted, we may be assured that they are not going to vote. If it is a great comfort to their sorrowing and lonely political family to think that they still survive, though only as political cataleptics, it would be cruel to deprive them of that solace. It is satisfactory enough to Republicans to know that no trace of them is discovered in any state of the union when the election returns come in.—Pioneer Press.

They Are Alive to It.

Since it has become known that Senator Mills of Texas and Senator Jones of Arkansas improved their opportunities to change the inquisitorial income tax clause of the Wilson bill so as to bring building associations and thereby the innumerable class of wage workers, under the tax, a new element of opposition to the obnoxious measure has been awakened.—N. Y. Sun.

One Grand Chorus.

The story of the spring elections is the same from Maine to the state of Washington—cities have gone Republican which never went Republican before, and those which were Republican before have gone Republican more than ever.

A Painful Operation.

There are three classes of people who have cut their eye teeth since the Democratic party has been running and ruining the country—first, workmen; second, farmers; third, the rest of the population.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

An Important Experiment.

An experiment begun last year at the Oklahoma experiment station with corn was to determine the best location from which to secure seed for Oklahoma use. It was apparent from the results—which showed it in nearly every individual instance—that seed brought from the north produced more grain and less stover than seed brought from the south, while the reverse is of course true—that southern grown seed produces more stover and less grain than northern grown seed. This experiment will receive the close attention of Prof. Magruder this coming season, when he intends to compare southern and northern grown seed with Seed grown in Oklahoma. The professor will send Oklahoma grown seed south and north to the station farm. This is done in order that there may be no uncertainty as to variety. Results of this valuable piece of work will be watched with interest not only by Oklahoma farmers, but throughout the United States.

The next time you are in a melancholy mood, as you are almost certain to be if you become ill, or dyspeptic, picture to yourself the condition of a poor man who, without resources and with a family on his hands, finds himself on a sick bed. Gloom obscures his narrow horizon in every direction. Unable to do any work without means, or friends capable of assisting him, with the possible prospect of continued ill health; with rent, perhaps, unpaid and unpayable, the outlook for him is gloomy indeed. How shortsighted, then, is the man of humble means who perceiving that his health and strength are falling takes no precaution to avert the oncoming evil. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a reliable, professionally recommended restorative of health and vigor, and a sure means of preventing the many disabling complaints which exposure, overwork, neglect and insufficient food produce. Malaria, rheumatism, kidney and liver complaint, dyspepsia and nervous disease always yield to it.

A Broad but Truthful Statement.

Professor Georson of the Kansas agricultural college propounds the startling inquiry, "Has your attention ever been called to the fact that when you feed 1,000 bushels of corn to a lot of steers you waste 800 bushels of that corn?" This seems like a broad statement, yet it has much truth in it when said of some of the feeding done in the west, where manure is not properly saved.

The Evolution.

Of medicinal agents is gradually relegating the old-time herbs, pills, draughts and vegetable extracts to the rear and bringing into general use the pleasant and effective liquid laxative, Syrup of Figs. To get the true remedy see that it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only. For sale by all leading druggists.

Variety Necessary.

The man who thinks a newspaper should be made up exclusively of reading matter suited to his particular whims and prejudices is pretty hard to please. He forgets that there are others interested in subjects which he deems obnoxious. All kinds of people read newspapers, and there must be variety in the kinds of news published.—Franklin (N. Y.) Physiological Effect of Music.

The results of numerous experiments made with scientific care by a Russian physician to determine what, if any, are the physiological effects produced by music are thus summarized: An influence on the circulation of blood is noticed, the pressure sometimes rising and sometimes falling, though the action of musical tones and pipes both on animals and men expressed itself for the most part by increased frequency of the beats of the heart; the variations in the circulation consequent upon musical sounds coincide with changes in the breathing, though they may also be observed quite independently of it; the variations in the blood pressure are dependent on the pitch and loudness of the sound and on the tone color; in these variations of the blood pressure also the peculiarities of the individual, whether men or lower animals, are plainly apparent, and even nationality, in the case of man, is claimed to exhibit some effect.—New York Tribune.

Runaway Legs.

Lady Canning tells a story about her father, Lord Stuart de Rosethay, who was ambassador at St. Petersburg in the forties. He was afflicted with a sort of nervous paralysis, which deprived him of the control of his limbs. Once his secretary saw him running rapidly along the quays. Afterward he heard himself called and found Lord Stuart clinging to a lamp-post. "I wanted particularly to speak to you, but could not stop. My legs ran away with me."

The Divers' Hunting Ground.

Hell Gate, by the way, is a great field for divers, when regular work is slack, says a writer in Scribner's Magazine. Many a time I've "worked the Gate on spec," as we say.

On one occasion I stumbled upon a valise that contained $56 in money and a number of fishing reels. One tour has yielded me a crop of twenty-four anchors; and on another I came across the wreck of a sloop loaded with scrap iron, that I sold. It was the wreck of the Warrior, and had lain peacefully at the bottom of Hell Gate since 1856. "Working old bottoms," like the Warrior, is another way divers have of putting in slack time. Every diver has a record of old bottoms. Some years ago, when copper was high, two divers got 700 bars out of a wreck that had been sunk off Saybrook about forty years.

Authors' Mistakes About the Moon.

The editor of the Popular Science Monthly takes certain imaginative writers to task for their unscientific and absurd statements regarding "the young moon" and "the crescent moon," and advises them to leave it alone, because they so often contrive to get it in the wrong place. In a recent story which has come under his notice he finds two friends described as sitting out one summer evening looking over the Thames, and the writer goes on to say: "By this time the young moon had arisen, and its cold light shimmered over the misty river." Such writers are reminded that the young moon goes to bed early and can never be seen in the process of rising.

Overtaxed Girl Students.

Boston mothers are making a stand against the overtaxing of girl pupils in the schools. A petition containing hundreds of names and asking that Greek be made elective instead of prescribed was presented at a meeting of the school committee. A woman who found her daughter breaking down in health at the Latin school originated the petition, which received the signatures of many prominent men, among them being educators, ministers, lawyers and physicians. The mothers are willing to have German substituted for Greek, believing that the study of the modern language will tax their daughters less and at the same time be more useful. One of the petitioners says: "It certainly seems strange that of the large number of girls who enter the Latin school such a small percentage ever graduate. The course is too hard. The girls cannot stand it. They cannot, or rather do not, exercise with baseball and out of door sports as the boys do. Some skeptics have raised the point that our daughters break down because they go out to parties and the theaters. We have no fond that to be the case in a single instance. Many of the mothers at the meetings have said: 'Why, my daughter studies from four to six hours a day and she doesn't sleep nights.' Unless any one wants to teach the classical studies, German and French are much more useful to the girls than the Greek which they have to take now."—New York Evening Post.

Education should lead out, not force on.

The lady whose portrait heads this article is Mrs. Mary F. Covell, of Scotland, Bon Homme Co., S. Dak. She writes to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Chief Consulting Physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., as follows: "I was sick two years with 'falling of the womb' and leucorrhoea previous to taking your medicines. I took six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and was entirely cured of both in six months; it is four years this month, since I was entirely well of both these diseases and have never had any signs of their appearance since and I am satisfied the 'Favorite Prescription' saved my life, for I could hardly walk around when I commenced taking that medicine and I think it is a God's blessing to me that I took it.

I was pronounced incurable by the best doctors here in the West. I gave up all hopes and made up my mind that I was to be taken away from my husband and baby of two years old. I was sick all of the time—could not eat anything at all. In one week, after beginning the use of the 'Favorite Prescription' my stomach was so much better that I could eat anything; I could see that I was gaining all over, and my husband then went and got me six bottles; I took three of them and my stomach did not bother me any more.

We went to you and got the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, and found my case described just as I was; we did what the book told us, in every way; in one month's time I could see I was much better than I had been; we still kept on just as the book told us, and in three months I stopped taking medicine, and to-day, I can proudly say I am a well woman, yes, am well, strong and healthy.

When I began to take your medicine my face was poor and eyes looked dead. I could not enjoy myself anywhere. I was tired and sick all the time. I could hardly do my house-work, but now I do that and tend a big garden, help my husband and take in sewing."

The following will prove interesting to feeble women generally, and especially so to those about to become mothers. Mrs. Dora

A. Guthrie, of Oakley, Overton Co., Tenn., writes: "I never can thank you enough for what your treatment has done for me; I am stronger now than I have been for six years. When I began your treatment I was not able to do anything. I could not stand on my feet long enough to wash my dishes without suffering almost death; now I do all my house-work, washing, cooking, sewing and everything for my family of eight. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best medicine to take before confinement that can be found; or at least it proved so with me. I never suffered so little with any of my children as I did with my last and she is the healthiest we have. I recommend your medicines to all of my neighbors, and especially 'Favorite Prescription' to all women who are suffering. Have induced several to try it, and it has proved good for them." Yours truly,

Dora A. Guthrie
