Persons who sympathize with the afflicted will rejoice with D. E. Carr of 1235 Harrison street, Kansas City. He is an old sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism, but has not heretofore been troubled in this climate. Last winter he went up into Wisconsin, and in consequence has had another attack. "It came upon me again very acute and severe," he said. "My joints swelled and became inflamed; sore to touch or almost to look at. Upon the urgent request of my mother-in-law I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm to reduce the swelling and ease the pain, and to my agreeable surprise, it did both. I have used three fifty-cent bottles and believe it to be the finest thing for rheumatism, pains and swellings extant. For sale by P. C. Corrigan Druggist.

Mrs. S.—Well, here we are in another boarding-house. We are regular Arabs. Mr. S.—Yes; folding bed-ouins!

Dr. S. F. Scott, Blue Ridge, Harrison Co., Mo., says: "For whooping cough Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is excellent." By using it freely the disease is deprived of all dangerous consequences. There is no danger in giving the Remedy to babies, as it contains nothing injurious. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by P. C. Corrigan Druggist.

"They've each got a touch of brimstone in their tempers." "Is that so? Then they ought to make a good match."

A lady at Tooleys, La., was very sick with bilious colic when M. C. Tisler, a prominent merchant of the town gave her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says she was well in forty minutes after taking the first dose. For sale by P. C. Corrigan Druggist.

Bouttown—This is the first night of a new play. I see Manager—Yes. Bouttown—I'll go in and be one of the audience for a dollar.

Notice. Proposals for board and care of the destitute poor of Grattan township will be received at my office until Saturday, May 5, 1894, at 2 o'clock P. M., at which time a contract for one year will be awarded the most suitable bidder. Dated April 24, 1894. 42-2. R. J. HAYES, Supervisor.

FIFTY YEARS A MILL "GIRL."

A Massachusetts Woman's Lengthy Experience as a Weaver. A few days ago Miss Matilda Davis, of Lawrence, Mass., began her fifty-first year as a weaver. When 13 years of age she began to earn her own living in a mill at Woodstock, Maine, where she was born, and from that day to this has worked in various New England mills as a weaver. As is well known, a mill workers' life to-day is not "all beer and skittles," but in times long past it was infinitely worse. When Miss Davis first went to work in Dedham half a century ago, she and her fellow weavers were only paid once in three months, counting themselves lucky if they averaged $2.50 a week. The girls did not pay their own board, pay for which was deducted from their earnings by the boarding mistress in the mill counting room. The boarding-houses were owned by the corporations and the food was poor in quality and scarce in quantity. The same bill of fare was presented the year round—fried potatoes, doughnuts and biscuits for breakfast, with coffee sweetened with molasses; tough meat and potatoes for dinner, and a repetition of breakfast for the evening meal. One day in each week bread and milk was all they had for dinner. No such thing as a chair was ever seen in a corporation boarding-house, benches doing duty instead; carpets were also unheard of there. At 10 o'clock at night all lights were supposed to be out and everybody in bed. A warning bell rang nightly at 9:45, and fifteen minutes later the "master of the house," as he was then known, made a tour to see that all lights were out. Of recreation these white slaves had little or none; indeed, after working fourteen hours a day they were not exactly in the humor for anything of the kind. Singing-school was about the only amusement they knew, except once a year when "the circus" came to town. This was an event which neither the millowners nor the tradesmen looked forward with any marked degree of satisfaction. The circus took too much money out of town.

HE WAS COMFORTABLE. Negro Did Not Object to Having the Hair Singed From His Head. No one who visits the Louisville custom house during the terms of the federal court will deny that the mountaineers are peculiar people. They are hardy, healthy, and used to all sorts of hardships. In passing through the custom house last winter I came across a negro mountaineer. Whether he was born in the mountains I did not learn, but he had lived in that part of Kentucky for so long that he was one of them truly. It was in the afternoon of one of the cold days during the first part of the week. He was in a peculiar position when I saw him and I tried to help him. He had become cold, probably from wandering around the streets, and had gone into the custom house and lain down by one of the heaters. His hat was off and his pillow was the hot pipes of the heater. I would not have noticed him particularly had not the air been charged with an odor that smelled very much like burning hair. I looked at the negro closely. His bushy head was resting against the hot pipes and his hair was scorching. He was sleeping profoundly, unconscious, I suppose, even that he was in a big city. The perspiration was streaming down his face, and trickled off his nose and lips as he moved them with loud guttural snores. I touched my gloved hand to the heater. It was so hot I jerked it away quickly. I shook the man until he was fairly awake and told him his head was almost on fire. "Uh! oh, dat ain't hot; it's jis comfortable," and his head rested back against the pipes, and he was sleeping again.

The Bridal Toll. A curious but rather inconvenient custom of exacting toll from newly married couples appears to survive at Wisden, in England. The other day a marriage took place in the Congregational chapel, and on the happy pair emerging from the building they found their way to their waiting cab barred by a number of women, who had tied their aprons together and stretched them across the gateway. When these were satisfied with a dounce, and the cab was gained, progress was again barred by a couple of carters, who had drawn their teams across the road, and who also exacted toll. Sometimes, it appears, several cords are drawn across the road at intervals on the line of route, and the inroads on the bridegroom's purse are thus considerable.

Tricks of Desert Coyotes. Coyotes show a strength of understanding that is sometimes alarming. Desert prospectors, like Mr. Riley, who have been often on the verge of death, tell me that when parties are lost in the wilds the coyotes persistently follow, and only when they are leading for water will these miserable creatures relinquish pursuit. The Indians of Palm Springs have a strong belief in the cleverness of coyotes, and have informed me in all seriousness that coyotes are known to steal large watermelons and roll them miles away from where the theft was committed. It is certain that coyotes, when grape hunting, only select the largest and ripest bunches, and they display this sagacity when choosing melons.

A "Blowing Cave" in Pennsylvania. In Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, on a hilltop a short distance from York Furnace bridge, is located the famous natural "blow hole." It is not a cave, but a series of fissures in the rocks, from which a cold draft of air continually issues.

Only a Scar Remains. Scrofula Cured—Blood Purified by Hood's Sarsaparilla. "C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. It is with pleasure that I send a testimonial concerning what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for my daughter. It is a wonderful medicine and I cannot recommend it too highly. Sarah, who is fourteen years old, has been afflicted with Scrofula ever since she was one year old. For five years she has had a running sore on one side of her face. We tried every remedy recommended, but nothing did her any good until we commenced using Hood's Sarsaparilla. My married daughter advised me to use Hood's Sarsaparilla because it had cured her of dyspepsia. She had been troubled with that complaint since childhood, and since her cure she has never been without a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla in the house. We commenced giving it to Sarah about one year ago, and it has conquered the running sore, and she is all scar remaining as a trace of the dreadful disease. Previous to taking the medicine her eyesight was affected but now she can see perfectly. In connection with Hood's Sarsaparilla we have used Hood's Vegetable Pills, and find them the best." Mrs. MARIA GRIFFIN, Xenia, Illinois.
