GIBBS WAS SURPRISED.
And the Telegram Made Him "Harry Home on the Double-Quick."
Gibbs was a commercial traveler and had gone on a journey to the North. A few days afterwards the Gibbs household was increased by one—a boy. As the mother was very ill the doctor was requested to write out a telegram informing Gibbs of the addition to his family and also his wife's illness, and asking him to return home with as little delay as possible.
This was done and the telegram was given to the servant to send off. That intelligent girl, being unable to read, put the message in her pocket and forgot all about it. The next day Gibbs paid a flying visit home and was gratified to find his wife and family going on nicely. After staying at home a few hours he took his departure without anything having been said about the telegram, which his wife naturally supposed he had received.
A day or two after he had gone the servant found the message in her pocket and after consulting her favorite policeman she decided to send it off at once without saying a word to anyone about the delay. That night Gibbs upon returning to his hotel, was horrified when the following telegram, bearing that day's date was placed in his hand:
"Another addition, a son; your wife is very ill; return at once."
"Another!" he gasped. "Great Jupiter!"
He rushed to the station and took the next train home and dashing into the house in a state of frenzy, demanded to know what had happened. The servant confessed all. Next day there was a vacancy for an intelligent honest girl at Gibbs' establishment.

KEEN-SIGHTED GULLS.
Ever on the Watch for Trifles Which They Might Pick Up.
"Anyone who has watched the gulls and other fish-catching birds along our coast must have discovered how keen is their sight and how cunningly they discover a school of fish long before a fin has disturbed the surface of the water," said Captain E. M. Bates, of New Bedford. "Oftentimes when at sea I have tested the vision of gulls that happened near my ship, to the great amusement of the passengers. I remember one occasion when the ship was going along at a pretty rapid rate I noticed a number of gulls following closely in our wake, apparently on the watch for anything that might be thrown overboard. Going to the cabin I procured a small biscuit and returning to the deck prepared to show the passengers the wonderful powers of vision possessed by these birds. Breaking the biscuit into small pieces, the largest of which was less than an inch square, I dropped it into the seething waters just under the bow of the vessel. It was of the same color as the hissing foam into which it was dropped, and by which it was, of course, rapidly carried astern. Once dropped it was utterly invisible to our eyes and we could only guess as to its whereabouts, but before it had fallen thirty yards astern a large gull detected it and with a headlong dart dipped into the foam and secured it. With equal dexterity the other bits were picked up, one by one, the gulls at last venturing so close to the vessel that they seemed to be watching our movements with their large, bright eyes."

Would Give Sane People Freedom.
Another society is to be organized in New York for the rescue of sane persons illegally and improperly confined in asylums for the insane. The organization already in existence is conducted by a number of enthusiastic persons who are positive that at least thirty per cent of the inmates of asylums in the United States are sane and kept in duress by persons interested in depriving them of their liberty. Several members of the existing society have been in asylums as patients and they are the most vehement in their assertions. They have succeeded in several instances in securing the release of persons from private asylums, and in one or two cases the patients had to be returned because they had not been cured. Just what the new society expects to do remains to be seen.
The Regimental Dog.
A novel feature at the military tournament is a collie used for carrying despatches. The dog would scarcely have scored anything in, say, the open class for rough-haired collies at the Kennel club or Collie club shows, but it was evidently an animal brimful of intelligence, a quality which dogs accustomed to the show bench may sometimes be rather lacking in. Collies, as a matter of fact, are now used quite extensively for military purposes, and a number of foreign regiments have their collies, just as the Twenty-third has its goat, though with much more practical objects in view. The collie may not be able to find his way home, like the pigeon, at long range, but for short messages, and when he knows the

NOTICE.
The above named defendants and each of them will take notice that on the 17th day of August, 1894, the above named plaintiff filed his petition in the district court of Holt county, Nebraska, against the above named defendants and each of them, the object and prayer of said petition being to foreclose a certain trust deed or mortgage executed by the defendant Michael F. Abitz (a widower) to J. H. Keith, trustee for Eugene Westervelt, upon the following described real estate situated in Holt county, Nebraska, to-wit:

The north half of the northwest quarter section seventeen (17) and the east half of the northeast quarter of section eighteen (18), all in township thirty (30), range thirteen (13) west of the 6th P. M., which trust deed or mortgage was given to secure the payment of a certain bond or note dated January 1, 1887, for the sum of $500 due five years after date, with interest at 10 per cent per annum payable semi-annually. Plaintiff alleges that there is due him on said note or bond and trust deed or mortgage the sum of $1,000 by reason of defendant's failure to pay said note and interest when due, together with the further sum of $50.00 taxes paid by the plaintiff on the 27th day of July, 1894, with interest at 10 per cent from that date. The plaintiff prays for a decree that the defendants be required to pay the same or that said premises may be sold to satisfy the amount found due, and that the interest of each of the above named defendants be decreed to be subject, junior and inferior to the lien of plaintiff's mortgage, and for other equitable relief.
You are required to answer said petition on or before the 1st day of October, 1894.
Dated at O'Neill, Neb., this 29th day of August, 1894. 7-4
