PROOF POSITIVE.

The Photograph of the Fish Better Than an Affidavit. In these days of sophisticated advancement no one believes a fish story unless the proofs are at hand. A Chicago artist who is much given to angling makes periodical visits to Wisconsin lakes and invariably brings back large and terrifying yarns regarding his catch. Formerly one of his favorite yarns was that he pulled out a black bass that seemed to be eighteen inches long, and just as he was taking it in over the side of the boat it got away from him.

One night at his club he related how he and a man from Milwaukee went out before breakfast and got over 120 pounds of croppies.

"What became of them?" "Well, we ran out of ice and had to give them away," which explanation was greeted with derisive laughter.

He brought home once a long pine stick on which were two notches, indicating the length of a pike taken one evening just as the sun went down, and which lasted the camp three days.

"Anybody can make a couple of notches in a stick," said the skeptics. It is very trying. He would return from an expedition full of enthusiasm and large claims, only to meet some alleged friend who would take him aside and ask, seriously: "Now, between you and me, did you catch anything?"

Finally, driven to an extremity, he adopted the scheme which gave him reputation. He painted on a screen the picture of a small house, such as may be found at any fishing camp.

Against this screen he would hang Four Big Successes.

Having the needed merit to more than catch, and would then take a photograph of the fish and the background. According to the photograph the fish would reach from the eaves almost to the ground. The length would be, apparently, anywhere from four to

When they hoot at his claims and discount his narratives he says: Gentlemen, the camera tells no lies. Here is a photograph of the monster, the largest ever taken from the lake. See for yourselves."

PACKING TRUNKS FOR A LIVING

An Occupation Which Ought to Suit Women and Should Pay in Season.

What is really a sensible occupation that could be managed from the women's exchanges would be that of trunk-packer. In these days of widespread summer travel, packing has come to be a dreaded necessity with women. The difference between skilled and unskilled trunk storing cannot be fully appreciated until the two are compared. There is an economy in it that is obvious. It means fewer trunks, less destruction to contents, and, above all, the blissful relief to bodies and brains taxed to the last degree in leaving a house in deserted summer trim, putting finishing touches to the family wardrobe, looking after the comfort of those to be left, and all the rest. There was a woman who wrapped ous to t as it is to the amateur. The conin itself, and the "professional" would insist upon the trunk being set upon a rest and all its intended contents spread out before her, serious helps to packing which the woman trying to be in half a dozen places at once on packing day often ignores. Meantime, if you must pack your own your hat pins, discard boxes, pack bottles only in cork-lined cases that come for the purpose, carrying them in a separate bag otherwise and don't pack on a damp day near the window or you'll find your beautifully starched muslins and linens limp as a rag when they are taken out.

A Queer Name.

"Fair-play men" was the title given to a part of Lycoming county, Ia., now densely populated and dotted with prosperous towns and cities. The proprietary government, with a view to protecting Indians from intrusion, ment of the region, but some hardtreated and hard-handed Scotch-Irish pioneers found their way into the forbidden territory, and, being outside the immediate jurisdiction of any properly constituted tribunal, they chose three of their number to settle disputes, and called them fair-play men. The decision of this tribunal, especially as to boundaries, were enforced by the whole community, and came in time to be respected even by The young man who has no aim in life the courts. When a chief justice of Pennsylvania asked one of the first pioneers what were the features of the fair-play code, the pioneer is reported to have answered that since his honor's court had found its way into the region fair play had fled and law had taken its place.

An Arch of Gold Coins.

A novelty in the way of triumphal arches was seen when the governor general of India visited Rangoon not long back. One structure, very handsomely decorated to begin with, was still further enriched by being covered with gold moburs and real sovereigns -valuable coins in India-worth over $50,000, each mohur being equal to been specially prepared for the purpose, and was no doubt sufficiently strong to keep the gold pieces quite safe from any attempt to steal them.

THE JULIUS TOWER.

It Contains the Millions of Germany's War Treasures.

The Julius tower, not far from Berlin, contains the war treasure of 120,-000,000 marks yielding no interest. This large sum, consisting of crowns and double crowns, is from time to time, without long notice, counted by two members of the imperial debt committee. Entrance to the well guarded tower can only be gained if these two members put their complicated keys in the keyhole simultaneously. Needless to say that there is always a sentry at the entrance door.

A strict record is kept of the hour of opening and closing the tower. On opening it one enters at once into the rotunda, where the shining 120,000,000 marks are stored. This vast sum is divided into twelve equal parts, each subdivided into ten others of the value of 1,000,000 each. This 1,000,000 is again distributed in ten bags of 10,000 marks each, two-thirds of which sum is in ten-mark pieces. When a revision is ordered the number of the division and subdivisions to be counted is chosen at haphazzard.

For the counting a squad of soldiers is ordered. As soon as some of the 100,000 mark bags are counted and found correct the war treasure is considered to be properly revised. The other large funds—those of the invalids' relief and the fortification building fund-are also overhauled by carefully comparing the coupon sheets, numbers, series, &c., with the original entries. Until the beginning of the new reichstag building, this fund was also kept in the Julius tower. As soon as the work of counting and comparing is finished the auditor's report is drawn up and signed by both functionaries—the two keys are again simultaneously inserted in the locks-and the revision of the war treasure is concluded. The "counters" are drawn up in line and marched back to the barracks, the "committee" drive off in a cab and the "hoard" is left once more in that absolute quietude which every peacemany years to come.
