STEWARD OF AN OCEAN LINER.

A Position of Responsibility With an Army of Subordinates.

It may surprise some old globe trotters to know that the big ocean greyhounds running between New York and the European ports carry on an average of 19,000 pieces of sterling silverware for their table service, and that this large amount of plate is handled during the voyage by from 200 to 240 waiters or "stewards," as they are called on shipboard. The chief steward is responsible for every piece. He must be a man of quick powers of observation, a student of human nature and be up to all the little devices of a small army of subordinates usually keener and quicker witted than those usually found ashore in the same calling. It is a busy day for the steward twenty-four hours before the time set for departure. He has purchased or contracted for all the supplies and an assistant sees that the contracts are fulfilled. But his personal attention must be given to the silverware. He keeps a regular debit and credit account and can tell to a toothpick just what he will start away with. On the voyage passengers are apt to lose spoons or forks or other ware by accident, and occasionally a gay blade may think it amusement to toss a sugar bowl or half a dozen knives through a port hole. It is needless to say that he furnishes a quid pro quo before he goes ashore. When the other side is reached the chief steward spends a day in balancing accounts. He started with so much and so much should be on hand. If there is a difference he seeks to find it, and if he can't find it he "makes good" himself. The responsibility of such a position naturally commands a high salary, and every chief steward on every ocean steamship, without exception, a man of unimpeachable integrity. The extraordinary record is that in thirty years there have been but two accusations of a betrayal of a trust.

ONE OF CHINA'S CITIES.

Canton, Where the Plague Comes From, and It Isn't Surprising.

A line or two from Mrs. Archibald Dunn's new book gives a striking picture of the horrors of life in Canton. "The circumference of the city walls measures from six to seven miles, and within their enclosure there exist $1,000,000 Chinese people. I had been in many oriental cities and smelt many oriental smells, but those of Canton," says Mrs. Dunn, "were giants of them all. The passage-like streets are open sewers, every description of refuse being cast into them and forming continuous heaps on either side of the way. The water supply is raised from wells in the streets, the mouths of which are on a level with the ground, and a shower of rain, or drippings from the buckets in which they lift it must carry back the surrounding filth in a way horrible to think of. Through miles and miles of these high, narrow alleys did we travel, through the most fetid, airless atmosphere that human lungs could cope with, through the most evil and noisome odors that could assail human nostrils, past the most loathsome sights in the shape of abnormal butcher meat—such as dogs and cats, skinned and dressed ready for cooking; rats, both dried and hanging alive by the tails; frogs and unnatural-looking fish in tubs of water, alive, and awaiting death and consumption.

Powder and Patch.

Wigs are of very ancient origin. According to Xenophon, Astyages, king of the Medes, wore a wig. In the writings of Livy, Plutarch, and many others, references are made to this covering for the head, which was made of hair, silk, thread, or other material. The ancient Romans were prone to use the natural hair, and preferred the blonde locks of the Germans. It is stated that "Henry III. of France, having lost his hair by sickness, wore a wig, and his courtiers began to follow his example." At the time of the French revolution both wigs and powder disappeared; but the large white wig is still worn by the English judges.

Misdirected Sympathy.

An absent-minded landlord called on a tenant to condole with him on the death of a valuable cow. The cause of its disease had been enveloped in mystery, and while explaining it, the landlord, though a kind and sympathizing person, went off into the clouds. The last words of the narrative were: "And would you believe it, when we opened her we found she had been choked by a large turnip that was sticking in her gullet." Here the landlord woke up, and, in a congratulatory tone of voice, observed: "Ah, yes, and so you got your turnip?"

Early Christian Milkmen.

St. Irenaeus, one of the very early fathers of the church, in the second century after Christ, writes as follows: "As was said by one, concerning all who in any way deprave the things of God and adulterate the truth, 'it is evil mingling gypsum with milk.'" Some have thought that St. Peter, when he used the expression in his epistle, "the sincere milk of the word," means "unadulterated" milk. Certainly the Greek word which means in one version we translate "sincere," would bear this interpretation.

Buried in the Same Grave.

In the violet calm of evening, just as dusk was deepening into darkness, and the pall of night was settling over the world, she spurned his suit. "No," she said calmly but firmly. "Then I will be avenged," he hissed. Presenting her little brother with a toy pistol he swallowed a phial of prussic acid. They were buried in the same grave.

The Ice Water Habit.

The ice water drinker is just as much of a "fiend" as the morphine eater. In many cases the habit of the former is just as strong as that of the latter, and just as hard to break. It has been frequently demonstrated that the drinking of ice water is an acquired habit, and not one that comes naturally. Give an infant ice water and you will notice by its action that the drink is very distasteful. It usually has the same effect upon an Indian or upon any person not accustomed to it. Besides it is very unhealthy, and any person that can avoid drinking ice water should do so.

DO NOT LIKE THE BED.

Sarah Offers a Conclusive Reason for Not Buying.

Two maiden ladies walked into a New York furniture store the other day and asked to be shown some chamber suits of reasonable price.

They were tall, thin, prim and sisters.

The salesman showed them an extensive line of bedroom furniture.

At last a suit was reached that pleased one of the women.

"What's the price of this?" she asked.

"Twenty-eight dollars," replied the salesman. "Seven pieces in the set. Made of thoroughly seasoned wood. Everything is first-class about it. You couldn't buy one like it anywhere else in the city for less than $35. It's a bargain."

"It does seem reasonable, Sarah," said the woman who had asked the price of the set.

Sarah walked around the bedstead, scrutinizing it carefully from several points of view, and finally shook her head.

"It don't quite suit me," she said. They left the store.

When they had reached the sidewalk Mary said:

"Sarah, I think we made a mistake in not taking that suit."

"Do you really believe that?" asked Sarah.

"Yes, it was a bargain."

"But that bedstead, Mary?"

"Well, what about it? I didn't see anything the matter with the bedstead. It was stylish looking and well made, as far as I could see."

"Yes, yes; but it was so low."

"Well, what of that? For my part I like a low bed."

"But, my dear sister," said Sarah, reproachfully, "that bedstead was altogether too low. It would be utterly impossible for a man to crawl under it."

Matches.

The first match was the product of the ingenuity of John Frederick Komerer, who early in this century was imprisoned in the penitentiary at Hohenasperg, in Germany. He invented the lucifer-match while in his gloomy dungeon. The German government forbade the manufacture of matches on the ground of public policy, because some children playing with them had caused a fire. Komerer was ruined by Viennese competition when he was released from prison, and died a pauper. Up to 1863 the Vienna manufacturers controlled the match business of the world.

The Judgment Seat.

A high seat called "kursi" is to be found in the courtyard of all well-to-do houses in Cairo and other large towns of the East. It is occupied by the master of the house when deciding domestic affairs. Such seats are never wanting in the courtyard of the houses of the sheikhs, heads of tribes, or of persons in authority. The seat is placed in a shady part of the court, and judgment is delivered from it on matters which are brought for decision by the inhabitants of the district, or by members of the tribe over which the master of the house presides.
