It is an easy thing to account for the It is an easy thing to account for the wonderful growth of the Daily State Journal recently. Its price has been reduced to 50 cents per month without Sunday or 65 cents with Sunday. The Journal has always been reliable and honest, printing the news without fear or favor. The people of Nebraska realize that they need a paper published at the capital, and when the price of the Journal was reduced the subscription list grew at a phenomenal rate. The Journal is a Nebraska paper through and through. through.

HIS MARK.

There Are Ways of Distinguishing the Professional Alms-Asker.

"Say, gents, can't you give a poor fellow a few cents to get something to eat? Haven't had a bite all day. Can't you give a poor fellow a few cents to get something to eat?"

He was running alongside of them repeating his plea over and over again in a singing voice. One of the men hesitated and then put his hand in his pocket, but his companion took him by the arm and turned upon the

"Get out of this," he said in a tone which seemed almost brutal, and the beggar turned away abruptly.

"Don't you think you were pretty rough to him?" asked the man who had shown an inclination to give

"No," answered his friend unsympathetically, "he's a professional."
"How do you know?"

"Just you keep your wits about you "Just you keep your wits about you when a beggar approaches you. That fellow said 'genta.' That's professional. He asked for a few cents. That's professional. And what's more to my point, he kept repeating his sentences over and over again. He has learned to sing them over that way by repeating them a thousand times. When a man who is not used to begging asks you for help he to begging asks you for help he doesn't do it that way. He just stumbles along, uttering any appeal that comes to his lips. He hasn't anything by heart. He doesn't sing it and it doesn't slip off his tongue so glibly. The professional beggar is like an actor. He has his lines and he always reads them in the same way. Don't let one of those fellows fool you again.'

A TERRIBLE DREAM.

Mr. Blank Is Tortured With a Sleep Fear That Unmans Him.

Mrs. Blank went shopping. Mr. Blank went with her. No one can explain why he went, for she didn't positively compelit, and he is still regarded as sane! He went, anyhow.

She wanted buttons. Those at Jenkins' store were too small, much too small. So she went to Kahn's and Poznanski's and the Merchante' Sup-ply; then to Poznanski's and the Merchant's Supply and Kahn's. At Jenk-ins' again they showed her the -same buttons and she found them too large! Balm and bound on over the seat of Blank guessed it a case of expansion caused by the heat; it seemed hot to him! She got almost to another place -not quite-for they saw her coming and looked the door for the night.

She went home.

That night Blank's hard breathing woke his tired wife, and she woke

"What's the matter?" she demanded.

"I-I had a dreadful dream," he

"How perfectly awful," she cried, grasping him convulsively around the neck, "to be separated and—"
"We—we weren't separated," moaned Blank with a shudder; "I—I could have endured that! But no—

A SBIDLITZ POWDER.

Its Dangerous Effects in the Court or the Rajab.

An English doctor, attached to the court of a rajah, made himself almost indispensable to his highness. He had, fortunately, also made a friend Henry Wilson, the postmaster at of his prime minister. On one occavice, a seidlitz powder, with which he expressed himself delighted. Its tendency to "boil and fizz ready to blow your nose off," seemed to him to "scatter coolness;" and he seemed so much better after taking it that the doctor felt himself justified in joining vizier, galloped up to him. "My mas-ter bids me tell you," he said, "that his highness has broken open your medicine-chest and taken, first, all the white powders and theu all the blue." "Gracious goodness," cried the doctor, "there were twenty-three of each of them!" "My master adds," continued the messenger, dropping his voice, "that you had better make for the frontier without one moment's delay." The doctor put spurs to his horse and never drew rein till he was "out of the jurisdiction of the court."

THE JAP'S CLOCK.

An Odd Timepiece Used by the Old-Time Orientals.

The real Japanese clock, one of the kind in use among that brownskinned, almond-eyed race of Orientals before they came in contact with timekeepers of European pattern, is the oddest horological instrument imaginable. They are of many kinds and patterns, of course, but are all alike in one respect, viz., in recording the flight of time without that seem-ing indispensable adjunct—the pointer rotating on an axis.

In these queer Jap time-keepers the scale and figures (characters) are arranged in a manner more resembling a Fahrenheit thermometer than anything else, the pointer or "hand" being attached to a rod, which is continually sliding downward in the "time tube," thus pointing to the hour and minute as it slowly but imperceptibly falls toward the "bulb" or "weight house." A square-linked chain is attached to the upper end of the rod, to which the time pointer is affixed, and when the clock is "wound up" it is simply done by coiling the chain around the toothed wheel. A heavy weight fastened at the other end of the rod continually pulls rod and pointer downward, thus plainly and simply recording the flight of time.

There are no tables in the houses of the Esquimaux, and the women are, therefore, in the habit of placing everything on the floor. A Danish lady employed several Esquimaux women to do some washing. Entering the wash-house she saw them all bending over the wash-tubs that stood on the floor. To make them more com-fortable, she had some stools fetched and placed the tubs upon them. By and bye she looked in to see how they on the stools and stooping still more laboriously over the tubs, which still remained on the floor.

Most Precious to Him.

A passenger who escaped uninjured from a serious railway smash, seeing a fellow-traveler searching anxiously among the wreckage with a lantern, offered to assist in the search, and thinking the old man had lost his wife, asked in sympathetic tones: "What part of the train was she in?" Raising his lantern and glaring at the kindly disposed passenger, the old man shouted with indignant distinctness that triumphed over physical infirmity: "She, sir! she! Jam looking for my teeth!"
