He Had Taken Her Advice and Gen to Work.

The blinds were carefully lowered as she lay on a couch with the smelling salts in her hand. When her dearest friend came into the room she exclaimed:

"Mercy, does your head ache or hasn't your new gown come home?" "Dyspepsia, evidently, dear; you should take—"

"Oh, don't; I want sympathy but not prescriptions. It's about Dick." "Of course. But I can't really sympathize until I know what it's about."

"Well, it was Dick and-and my tooth.'

There, don't be angry; I'm grave,

"I thought so because you always said that chewing gum was vulgar. "Yes; and of course I'd rather have died than let Dick know it. But the other evening he was here and I was eating candy when it broke right off."

"Good gracious, what on earth-" "I managed to conceal it, but I didn't dare to smile again lest he notice its absence—so I just picked a quarrel with him."

"Naturally it relieved your feelings too. But what did you quarrel about. "Just the same old thing."

"The fact that he doesn't work? But then he has plenty of money without."

"I know, but there's no telling when he will call and it is ruining my hair to keep it curled all the time.'

"Was he very angry?"

The next day I had such a cold I couldn't go to the dentist's—besides he always stays angry at least three days. But the following morning I had a note saying that he had taken my advice, had secured a position. and would be up in the evening to tell me all about it. As soon as I answered it I started for the dentist's and-oh, Dora!"

"Did you meet him on the street?"
"No! No! I told the dentist that I must have my tooth by 7 o'clock that evening. He said that he was very busy, but would send for his new assistant and see if he could repair it. I sat in the chair, with Dr. Nippers holding the tooth, when who should walk into the room but—"

"Not Dick!" "Dick and nobody else! He was the new assistant—and, Dora, he laughed, actually laughed! O, I'll never speak to him again until my dying day—but I don't think that will be very long." And she buried her head in the pillows while Dora poured vords of sympathy into deaf ears.

The South African licture Stone.

An account of a strange lapidarian freak comes all the way from Kimberey, South Africa. Workmen in the diamond mines at that place discovered a stone, dark brown in color and about the size of a pigeon's egg, which, viewed in a dark place with a candle or other light behind it, exhibits a perfect profile picture of a man from the waist up. Turning the pebble par-tially around, the image of the man vanishes and the features of a woman's face, clearly-cut and partly concealed by heavy tresses, comes into view. The British museum offers £50 for the curiosity.—St. Louis Republic.

There are a certain class of stars which fly through space with a velocity o enormous as to baffle every attempt to account for them. They are known to the investigators as "runaway stars" and are no longer reckoned as being among the phenomena of extreme rarity. One of these in the constellar the Great Bear known as "Goombridge, One of these in the constellation of 1830," long led the van of stellar speed, sweeping over at least 200 miles of space each second. Professor Prichard has proved that the inconspicuous object called Cassiopela is a sun 40 times more luminous than our own, and that it is traveling at the prodigious rate of 300 miles per second. Dr. Elkins has found something more wonderful in the speed line in Arcturus, which is jog-ging along at 400 miles a second as a steady pace, but having strange bursts of speed, during which time its velocity of speed, during which time its velocity is increased by about one-fourth.

Some of the runaways fly along in pairs and are therefore supposed to be connected by some invisible "bond of union." This presumption was first advanced some twenty-five years ago and is even now being investigated by the leaders in astronomical work.

How to Retain Beauty.

Lady Londonderry, whose exquisite ose and white loveliness time has not the heart to despoil, attributes her youthful freshness to the practice of pending one out of every ten days in bed. She sleeps until she wakens naturally, takes a warm bath and goes back to bed again, where she partakes of a light breakfast, remaining in bed rest-ing until six o'clock in the evening, while her maid reads to her a light At six o'clock she puts on her dressing robe and has her dinner served in her room, and reclines on her sofa until ten o'clock.

A New Substance Discovered.

A German chemist is reported to have discovered a new substance which has the remarkable and unique property of solidifying when heated and remaining and heated in the bin. The seed from normal seed was much larger than that from seed injured in any way. Normal seed and injured seed gave practically the same weights for the same volume of grain. Smutted wheat, however, weighed slightly less for a given volume than sound wheat. The author recommends selection by means of a fanning mill of large grains for seed.

The Rise of the Buckwheat Cake

The leaven of yesterday ruins the cake of to-day. Don't spoil good buckwheat with dying raisingbatter—fresh cakes want Royal Baking Powder.

Grandma used to raise to-day's buckwheats with the souring left over of yesterday! Dear old lady, she was up to the good old times. But these are days of Royal Baking Powder-freshness into freshness raises freshness.

And this is the way the buckwheat cake of to-day is made: Two cups of Buckwheat, one cup of wheat flour, two tablespoons of Royal Baking Powder, one half teaspoonful of salt, all sifted well together. Mix with milk into a thin batter and bake at once on a hot griddle.

Do not forget that no baking powder can be substituted for the "Royal" in making pure, sweet, delicious, wholesome food.
