Indiana has a gold field in Brown county. Every three months the fever rises and a local flurry ensues, but the gold remains in its native hills. Now a machine has been invented that is said to be able to secure the invisible dust that fills the sand and earth along the headwaters of Salt creek. The goldbearing region consists of about seventy-eight square miles in Brown, Johnson and Monroe counties. Whether a vein or lode exists in the hills remains to be ascertained. Heretofore all the gold has been found in flakes and fine particles in the sand. Heavy rains carry it down from the hills. This indicates that the hills have the yellow metal hid away somewhere in their bowels. It has never been found in paying quantities, but the new machine may make the Hoosier field of fabulous richness.

670 Allan T. Williams, who was conwited of embezzling county funds while county treasurer at Bayfield, Wis., was one of the best known characters in the Badger state. He was editor of one of the first papers printed in Washburn, the Bee. In 1887 he was elected county treasurer, and held that office until February, 1894. During this county clerk, justice of the peace, difference over to the State uniager and drum major of the Bayfield cornet band, manager of the Harbor | City base ball club, and manager of the opera house. He was commonly known as the "Pooh Bah" of Bayfield county. He was what is known as a "good fellow" and that was the cause of his down-fall. There's something in being too good a fellow.

The constitution of Maryland provides "that in all criminal prosecutions every man hath a right . . . to a speedy trial by an impartial jury." But some years since the legislature passed an act providing that in cases of vagrancy the accused might be committed to the workhouse, by a magistrate, for one year or less, without trial by jury. A man thus committed was brought before Judge Yellot on writ of habeas corpus, and he was promptly discharged, on the ground that the act under which he had been committed was unconstitutional. The case was appealed by the county, and the Court of Appeals (the Supreme Court of Maryland) sustained the statute on the ground that the constitution of Maryland must be interpreted in harmony with the practice under the unwritten constitution of England, in which country the guarantee of trial by jury is not held to extend to such the magistrates of Maryland continued to commit to the workhouse, without jury trial, such vagrants as were brought before them; and Judge Yellott as promptly discharged every man thus deprived of his liberty who was brought before him on writ of habeas corpus; and this, notwithstanding the fact that case after case was taken to the Court of Appeals, and always with the same result, namely, that the "law" was sustained. But the venerable Judge Yellott treated it as void until his retirement from the bench on account of the infirmities of old age. And we all say honor to such a judge.

The church social is a serious thing for young men of limited means in all sections of America, but in Kentucky, Tennessee and West Virginia it is positively dangerous. Hardly an affair of the kind is held in the rural regions that at least one man does not give up his life-not to religion, but to one or another of the thousand feuds of that section.

"Now, we demand protection from you against about fifteen ranchmen who appeared on July 5 and tried for half a day to force us to vacate our claims and leave the country. When we refused to go they threatened our lives, and fired as many as twenty shots at us from a distance, some of which came within six feet of us. The following morning, July 6, they fired two shots at the wagon in which we were sleeping. Both shots came close. This mob of men has been operating here for several years, and has intimi-dated and driven out a number of settlers, and forced several small ranchers to sell their stock and land at a sacrifice in order to escape the vengeance of this gang. Now if we can receive any aid from the state, the same immediately, to protect our property and our lives, we would like to make our homes in the sand hills if we can have protection. If not we will be forced to abandon our houses or else be killed.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS DISCUSS THE SUBJECT IN BOSTON.

STIRRING SPEECHES MADE.

All of the Meetings Devote the Morning of the Fourth Day of the Great Convention to That Subject - Addresses by Congressman Morse and Other Well Known Gentlemen.

Boston, July 15 .- The fourth day of the great Christian Endeavor conference, was devoted to "Good Citizen-ship." At all of the meetings of the forenoon the reports, addresses, presentations and songs tended toward the subject, and leading speakers of the day were men whose fame was the result of their efforts for municipal and state reform. These meetings followed morning prayer meetings in a score of churches at 6:20 o'clock and impromptu meetings were held on the Mechanics' hall was the great objective point of the crowds. An hour before the doors were opened, several thousand persons were singing En-deavor songs on the sidewalks outside. The announcement that Neal Dow, the apostle of temperance, would be introduced from the platform, attracted many to that meeting place, but all were disappointed, for he was unable to be present. At this meeting also Bishop Alexander Walters of Jer-sey City spoke of the responsibility of the Afro-American race in American citizenship, and Congressman Elijah Morse of Massachusetts aroused great enthusiasm.

At all of the morning meetings the presentation of a banner to the union making the best record in the work of promoting citizenship was a feature of the exercises. In both tents, under the program title, "Voices from North America," six minute reports on civic improvements were made by delegates representing all parts of the country. Congressman Morse quoted from Washington's farewell address and declared that the sentiments should be followed by all citizens. He advocated sacred religious regard for Sunday and declared that the saloon was one of the worst enemies of good citizenship, but that there was a mighty movement against it. He advocated arbitra-tion of all international disputes and concluded: "But, you say, what would you put into a young person's character if you could have your say about it? I would put in first total abstinence from strong drink. Yes, and I would go further than that if I could have my say, I would put in total abstrace from tobacco. Tobacco is a dirty, vile, poisonous narcotic. It degrades any man who uses it. be a good man with it, but a better man without it. It creates an unnatural appetite that water will not sat-isfy and leads to drink. With it you will not be so likely to succeed in life, and more liable to become a drunkard.

Is that all? Oh, no; if I had my say,
I would put you on the Lord Jesus Christ. If I had a voice that would drown Niagara I would say to every young man and the young woman, in the language of the book, 'Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth.' I have seen young people who were fearful that they would not be appreciated. I tell you, young man or young woman, you couldn't make a greater mistake than that. The world will size you up about right, and you will pass for about what you are. In this favored land of ours, industry, ability and virture carry in their hand the sure prestige of victory and success. Am I addressing persons of obscure parentage and humble birth? I am not here to say that it is not a good thing to be born well, because the commandment has a promise appended to it. 'I will show mercy to thousands of them that love me and keep my commandments,' or as the margin reads, to a thousand generations.' But I am here to say, young man or young woman, I tell you that you will pass for about what you are. The world will size you up about right. If you drink and smoke and go with company you won't amount to thing. Good character, industry, ability and application are of more consequence to success than family birth or blood."
