THIS HORSE COULD HUNT.

hough He Wasn't Good for Very Much

"I had a horse," said an old army man, "that had once belonged to the Seventh cavalry, but he had the 'I. C.' of the service, inspected and con-demned. He was a regular old plug, but he was all I could get to go hunting on, so I took him. I rode away out into the plains from the fort, and I saw a bunch of antelope finally. I got off the horse and dropped the reins on the ground, expecting the horse to stand there till I came back. I started off toward the antelope and was sneaking around, and I'll be blamed if that brute of a horse hadn't started off as tight as he could lope.

"'Well,' says I, 'I guess I'm in for a six-mile tramp home.' I cussed the horse to myself for awhile, and then I went on. Pretty soon I looked up, and it have a six-mile tramp.' The soon I looked up, and it have a six-mile tramp.' I'm blessed if there wasn't that horse over the other side of that bunch of antelope. 'Well, now,' says I, 'I'd like to know what the devil that horse thinks he's up to, anyhow.' Pretty other side, and the antelope saw him and started off toward me. I caught on at once, and lay down and waited.

That old horse cut up the most surprising antics out there, and all the while he kept working those antelope toward me. By and by they got into range and I got two; darned good luck it was, too. You see, that horse was an old Indian hunting pony, and he had been trained to do that way. Well, went back to the post, and everybody wanted to know how it happened I had such good luck. But I didn't tell 'em,

"A few days after I took the same orse out after prairie chickens. It was the time of the year when the chickens were flying, and I was riding along when all of a sudden the critter stopped short, braced himself up, and waited—for what I didn't know. But in a second a couple of chickens fiew up ahead of me, and I was so surprised I didn't shoot. 'Well,' I says, 'I'll be switched.
Here's a horse that's not only a hunting horse, but is a regular pointer dog ing horse, but is a regular pointer dog and the next time he stopped I was right on hand and dropped a bird. Well, now, no sooner did that horse see that bird fall than he galloped off right to where it fell, and all I had to do was to reach off and pick it up. He was a great horse, I tell you, and I got lots of good hunting with him."

Up-to-Date Girls. train into Portland from Biddeford, Maine, recently two young vomen created a good deal of interest for the passengers. They got on at Biddeford. They were well dressed, says the Bangor Commercial, and as refined in appearance and faces as the average woman. At least they wouldn't have attracted attention, as the rese. They got into the smoking car and sat down. A gentleman politely informed them that they had made a nistake and were seated in the smoker. ey as politely informed him that they d made no mistake. Then they proceeded to prove it, by taking some dainty cigarettes from their pockets and proceeding to daintily smoke them. The men in the car were somewhat astonished. Of course they stared at the-fair intruders. People in the other ere all straining their necks to get a glimpse through the windows at them, yet they sat there very coolly ad enjoyed their smoke till the car sched Portland.

Two Joyeus Welshmen. Hopkins of Wales arrived in n, Ind., recently, to make his me in this country with his brother by drinking and went home at Mrs. Hopkins had prepared a me spread, but they did not take welcome spread, but they did not take time to sample it. They threw Mrs. Hopkins out of the window, took the table by the four legs and tossed it and the dishes up against the ceiling, breaking it, and tossed the furniture out of the window and demolished everything. By the time the police appeared on the scene they had punched all the window lights out, had broken the doors off the hinges and had a fight in which both were badly cut up. The house is a sight.

His Name Written in Blood. Georgia story is to the effect that ears ago a bloody, drunken row d in Dahlonega. Immediately afterward a man went up in front of the bar where the fighters had purchased their liquor and wrote the name of the barkeeper in blood on the rock pavement in front of the door. It is one of the principal sidewalks of the town, and has been traveled by thousands of people, and many drenching rains have fallen on those rocks since, but the name has never rubbed or washed out, and shows almost as plainly as the day it was written.
