He Says It Was Unjust, Unlawful, Arbitrary, Tyrannical and Capricious on the Part of the Retired Commander, in Whatever Capacity He Acted-The Captain Discharged-Case Will be Ap-

The Case of Captain Armes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 .- Judge Bradley of the district supreme court today ordered the discharge from custody of Captain George A. Armes, who was arrested on the order of Lieutenant General Schofield, just prior to the latter's retirement from the command of the army, for having written him an insulting letter. The judge said: "The arrest and taking of Armes into custody, carrying him away from his home to barracks and holding him in close arrest without any antecedent charge of crime preferred in any way against him was and is unjust, unlawful, arbitrary, tyrannical and capricious on the part of General Schofield in whatever capacity he acted whethin whatever capacity he acted, whether acting as lieutenant general or acting secretary of war. The petitioner is discharged."

The judge then went into the matter at considerable length and said: "No charge was preferred against Armes at the time of his arrest, no crime has been charged since, and for the of-fenses alleged, no arrest was neces-sary. The arrest and confinement sary. The arrest and confinement were unlawful and oppressive. As the offense charged would, upon substantiation, result only in reprimand, suspension or dismissal, the possession of the body of the accused was not necessary to carry out the charges, as would have been the case if imprisonment of death was to be the case." ment or death was to be the sentence.

Speaking of the president's power in army matters, the judge said: "The president of the United States is commander-in-chief of the officers of the tion of the chief executive, however, is unaccompanied by harrowing care or weighty responsibility. His title of commander-in-chief, so far as it relates to retired officers, is shorn of all power to impose duties, and appears to be an empty name."

The judge advocate general of the war department has determined to take an appeal from the decision of Judge Bradley. This will carry the matter to the court of appeals of the District of Columbia.

MISSIONARIES IN NEED.

The Congregational Home Society in Temporary Financial Straits.

New York, Oct. 11 .- The Congregational Home Missionary society is in lebt to the banks $179,000, its treasury is empty and, inasmuch as only $100,-000 of the indebtedness is secured by collateral, the banks have refused further unsecured loans. The salaries of the home missionaries were due October 1. Failure to receive them means in many cases borrowing of local banks at high rates of interest. The society is absolutely dependent for the time being upon the gifts of churches and individuals. The present situation is due not only to the hard times, but to the chronic omis-sion of Congregational churches to take their missionary collections in the summer and early fall. The severity of the crisis is great, but temporary.

Disputed Congressional Sests.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Not one of the contests filed against the members of the new house of representatives is complete. In most, the testimony furnished on behalf of both the contestant and contestee has been de-posited with the clerk, but in none have the contestants filed their testimony in rebuttal.

In the Belknap-McGann case from the Third Illinois district Mr. McGann the Third Illinois district Mr. McGann has not yet furnished his testimony, which, according to law, he should have done within forty days after that of the contestant. Although this is the law, the house is not always guided by the statutes if satisfactory explanations for the delay are furnished. In the Beattie-Price case from the Third Louisiana for instance from the Third Louisiana, for instance, Mr. Price's testimony was delayed by smallpox, which was epidemic in certain parts of his district.

Although no official information has been received to that effect, it is unbeen received to that effect, it is understood at the clerk's office here that R. A. Cheseborough, who filed notice of contest against George B. McClellan of the Twelfth New York, has abandoned his contest. In the other New York cases (Mitchell against Walsh in the Eighth and Campbell against Miner in the Ninth) the contestees have not filed their testimony owing to some local hitch, and Mitchowing to some local hitch, and Mitch ell, it is understood, charges Walsh with attempting to delay the case. All of the contestants of the thirty cases are Republicans, save Goodrich, who is contesting Cobb's seat in the Fifth Alabama, and Campbell, who is contesting Miner's seat. Goodrich is a Populist, who had the Repulican inlorsement, and Campbell ran as an independent Democratic candidate.

General opinion is that the cases of the contestants scated by the next house will have to be very meritorious as the Republican majority is over-whelming and there is no political emergency which would tend to make the members look on contests with anything but an impartial eye to their

The Ex-English Minister Tells of His on to America.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.-A special cable to the World from London says: An extraordinary and in many respects unprecedented publication by a Brit-ish or other high diplomat has been discussed during the past few days among the foreign representatives to the court of St. James. This is a handsomely printed pamphlet marked "For Private Circulation Only," and entitled "My Mission to the United States, 81-89," and has just been issued by Lord Sackville, who as Sir Lionel by Lord Sackville, who as Sir Lionel Sackville-Sackville West, K. C. M. G., was the English minister to Washing-was the English minister to Washington for the period named.

It will be remembered that President Cleveland, almost on the eve of the election of 1888, sent Sir Lionel his passports because of a letter written by him to an alleged Englishman in California, commenting upon the approaching election. This pamphlet is Lord Sackville's defense and explanation, after seven years of that incination, after seven years, of that incident.

But the unprecedented part of it, and the part of it which has aroused very excited comment is, first, the freedom of his strictures upon the American people and American public men; and, second, shis own expressed indignation that the British ministry should have accepted Mr. Bayard as ambassador to this country, while, as secretary of state of the United States, Mr. Bayard had wantonly insulted, in person, its accredited representative.

Mr. Bayard had wantonly insulted, in person, its accredited representative. The pamphlet consists of fifty-two pages, 15,000 words, and is of very limited issue, not more than 100 copies. These have been sent, under seal only, to leading foreigh diplomats and the higher English officials and a few personal friends. few personal friends.

Chester A. Arthur was president and James G. Blaine was secretary of state when Lord Sackville came to New York in November, 1881.

New York in November, 1881.

At a reception given him by the St. George's society he says that Mr. Blaine was sent to greet him by President Arthur and he made a most cordial address of welceme.

Lord Sackville notes also his very cordial reception by the president himself, but remarks: "That while Mr. Blaine was using this conciliatory.

Mr. Blaine was using this conciliatory language he was carrying on hostile controversy with her majesty's gov-ernmeat respecting the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty."

A presidential election was approaching and Mr. Blaine was likely to be the Republican candidate. "It was at this time that Mr. Blaine spoke to me in the most commendaspoke to me in the most commenda-tory tones of the conduct of her maj-esty's government in dealing with the Irish question. They had created such a hostile feeling in the United States that he felt convinced if the population was polled the result would be an almost unanimous expression of hatred towards England. This language clearly indicated his intention to trade upon this hostility to England trade upon this hostility to England in order to gain the Irish vote for his

"He notes Mr. Blaine's defeat with not greatly repressed exultation and says he looked hopefully to the new Democratic administration and Mr. Bayard. The latter, he says, deprecated to him "the influence which the Irish party had obtained in the constituencies and expressed himself as determined not to allow his action to be dictated by it."

be dictated by it."

He then quotes the Murchison letter and his reply, which he refers to as "incautious," both of which, to his amazement, were published in the New York Tribune, organ of the Republican party, on October 22, 1888. He learned from private sources that no such person as Murchison existed.

"The excitement over the Sackville "The excitement over the Sackville incident, as it was called, became farcial." He was caricatured. He farcial." He was caricatured. He saw Mr. Bayard four days before election and the secretary "cordially accounted my accoun n or regret at what had occurred. "

"When, however, I saw Mr. Bayard the following day, he said the matter had become serious, great interests depended upon the re-election of Mr. Cleveland, he could not ignore the in-jurious effect which my letter had had upon a certain faction, the vote of which was necessary for the success of the Democratic candidate."

He saw a copy of the telegram from the state department to Minister Phelps, accusing him of "political cowardice." He took this offensive telegram to Mr. Bayard, saying he considered it a personal insult. Mr. Bayard was "embarrassed and confused, and at last said that he knew nothing of any such telegram having been sent." He was furnished with a copy of the following telegram re-ceived by a member of the cabinet from the national committee in New York: "Does the president know that the Irish vote is slipping out of our hands because of the diplomatic shillyshallying: see Lamont (the president's secretary and chief wire-puller) at once. Something ought to be done to-day.

Accordingly he received his passports that afternoon.

Lord Sackville quotes a statement he made to Lord Salisbury, accusing Secretary Bayard of flagrant misstate ments of facts and of duplicity.

He refers to President Cleveland in bitter terms and adds: "There is no base action which an American politician will not resort to in order to gain an election
