The Dawes Commission Denounces the Present System of Dealing with the Five Civilized Tribes-Narrow-Minded Oligarchies in Complete Control--Treaty Rights Long Voided-Congress Should

The Five Civilized Tribes

Washington, Nov. 30.—By far the most important feature of the annual report of Secretary Smith of the Interior department, so far as the South-west is concerned, is the report of the Dawes commission in regard to its negotiations with the five civilized tribes of Indians in the Indian Territory. This presents the correspondence of the commissioners with the chiefs of the five tribes and an account of the methods by which the chiefs came to methods by which the chiefs came to unitedly present an opposing front to any effective negotiations of any sort. The failure of the commission being thus detailed the report proceeds: "In connection with the official interests here briefly outlined the commission availed themselves of every opportunity of conference with private citizens of several nations, men of character and influence among their people. By and influence among their people. By visits to the various localities they fa-miliarized themselves with the conditions of life and the opinions and prejudices which prevail in the different sections and adapted the methods of their attempt at negotiation to these conditions. But thus far they have met with no favorable response among those holding power and controlling the political machinery in the governments existing in the Territory. It is otherwise with those, believed to be a large majority, who in the machinery by which affairs are administered are without voice or participation in the policy or laws by which they are governed. The causes, which thus far have proved unsurmountable in all the efforts at a peaceable solution of the problem by negotiation, can only be understood by a thorough knowledge of the conditions into which these people have been permitted to fall by the indifference and non-interference of the national government.

"The present conditions are not treaty conditions. There is not only no treaty obligations on the part of the United States to maintain or even to permit the present conditions of af-fairs in the Indian Territory, but, on the contrary, the whole structure and tenor of the treaties forbid it. If our government is obliged to maintain the treaties according to their original in-tent and purpose it is obligated to blot out at once present conditions. It has been most clearly shown that a restoration of the treaty status is not only an impossibility, but, if a possibility, would be disastrous to this people and against the wishes of all people and governmentalike. The cry, therefore, of those who have brought about this condition of affairs, to be let alone, not only finds no shelter in treaty obligations, but is a plea for permission to further violate those provisions.

"The commission is compelled by the evidence forced upon them during their examination into the administration of the so-called governments in this territory to report that these gov-ernments in all their branches are wholly corrupt, irresponsible, and unworthy to be longer trusted with the care and control of the money and other property of Indian citizens, much less their lives, which they scarcely pretend to protect. There can be no higher obligation incumbent on every branch of the general gov-ernment than to exert its utmost constitutional authority to secure to this people in common with all others within our borders, government in conformity with constitutional au-thorities. The government cannot ab-dicate or transfer to other shoulders this duty as to any portion of territory or people in the land. It cannot escape responsibility if the dark record. which has now been brought to light, is permitted to continue. Delay can bring nothing but increased difficulty or darger to peace and good order in the Territory. The situation calls for prompt action.

These considerations lead but to one conclusion. It is in the judgment of the commission, the imperative duty of Congress to assume at once political control of the Indian territory. They have come with great reluctance to this conclusion, and have sought by all methods that might reach the convictions of those holding power in the territory to induce them by negotiation and mutual agreement to consent to a satisfactory change in their system of government and appropriation of tribal property. These efforts have failed; and the commission is driven to the alternative of recommending abandonment of these people to the spoilation and outrages perpetrated in the name of existing government or the resumption by Congress of the power thus abused.

Secretary Smith's Report Dovotes Music Space to the Indian Question

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. - Secretary Hoke Smith, of the Interior depart ment has made his annual report to the president. It reviews the varied work of the department, beginning with the Indian service, and calls attention to the strict enforcement which has been given to the civil service reform, both as to the places covered by the classified service, and those to which the rules of this service do not apply. The secretary dwells upon the necessity of eliminating politics from the management of Indian affairs, and of conducting each dian affairs, and of conducting each reservation upon strictly business principles, the object being to make every Indian who remains upon the reservation self-supporting and ready, as soon as possible, to assume the duties of citizenship and be freed from the paternal care of the government. The Sacretary is of the opinion ment. The Secretary is of the opinion that if the resources of each reservation are treated intelligently and the Indians required to labor in those pursuits which are adapted to particular reservations, in a few years practically all the Indians can be made self-sup-

Allotments should be made long fore reservations are opened. Each Indian should be settled upon his Indian should be settled upon his homestead and be self-supporting before citizenship is conferred upon him. When citizenship is conferred, the Government ought to let him alone and allow him to take his place, surrounding him with no more restraint and giving him no more help than is accorded to other citizens. Under the present system, Indians to whom allowed the conference of the conf present system, Indians to whom allotments have been made and upon whom citizenship has been conferred still receive enormous gratuities and need every dollar they receive.

After reviewing in detail the work of the land office during the past twelve months, the secretary takes up the question of the disposition of the the question of the disposition of the arid lands and the preservation of the forests. He urges that these two questions are closely allied, for the quantity of arid lands far exceeds the present water supply, even if it were all utilized for irrigation. The increase of the water supply must depend upon the growth and preservation of the forests. Attention is called to the failure of the Carey bill to accomplish the results expected: the complish the results expected; the secretary attributes this to the fact the bill intended that money for the irrigation should be raised upon the arid lands given to the States. This has been impossible on account of the fact that sufficient control over the lands was not given to the States to make them available as security for the money expended in their reclamation. The secretary suggests the tion. The secretary suggests the advisability of patenting these lands to the States after it is fully determined that the selections made by them under the Carey act are arid

I have heard him say that he intended to make a tour of the world at the expiration of his second term; that he wanted to see more of the world than he had his second term; that he wanted to see more of the world than he had seen and that he had his traveling companion already picked out—at least that he had asked a personal friend of his to accompany him on the

It is not a pleasant position for one to be in by any means. I feel positive that Mr. Cleveland does not want to serve as President for a third term. I feel certain, and there are little social matters into which it is not necessary to go, that Mr. Cleveland is anxious to get out of politics. DEATH BEFORE DIVORCE.

Peter McGeoch of Lard Corner Fame Kills Himself.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 28,-Peter McGeoch, millionaire, known throughout the country as a daring speculator and keen financier, the man who ran the great lard corner in 1883 and lost millions in its collapse, shot himself this morning at his home on National avenue, just out side of the city, and could give no account of what and was found dead in the bath room had transpired. This morning the woman's body was found beside the track three miles south of Janesville. She had evidently been killed in the bath room his mouth and fired. McGeoch's domestic troubles undoubtedly led him to take his life. It was announced yesterday that his wife was about to bring suit for divorce on the ground of incompatibili-ty of temper, and it is well known to their acquaintances that their married life had not been happy and they had lived apart for some time.

McGeoch was a man who had experienced many reverses and gone un-daunted through trials that would have broken down most men, but do-mestic scandal was more than he could bear and immediate cause of his suicide was no doubt the making public of the fact of the impending divorce.

No man for years was better known on the Chicago and Milwaukee Boards of trade than Peter McGeoch. He was a daring speculator up to the disastrous lard deal of 1883, when he attempted to corner the lard of the country and was buried under the load. Daniel Wells, jr., of Milwaukee was interested in the deal, and a long and acrimonious law suit followed.
After the failure of the lard corner, McGeoch dropped out of the speculation, and devoted his time to his street railway lines up to 1889, when he sold to a Pittsburg syndicate, headed by Mr. Ryan of New York. Since then he has devoted himself to his various interests, which are of considerable magnitude.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The contest for the committee chairmanships in the house is being waged with much earnestness. Mr. Reed, who will, as speaker, name these, is keeping his own counsel in this matter. It is generally accepted that he has already made up his mind with regard to the most important chairmanship—that of the ways and means committee. Screno E. Payne of New York is, it is thought, pretty certain to accure this position, which carries with it the honor of leading the majority on the floor. Mr. Payne and Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania are the leading candidates for the place, but Mr. Dalzell is not on friendly terms with Senator Quay. Mr. Payne, on the other hand, is very close to Platt, the Republican leader of New York, and he is at the same time the ranking Republican member on the committee. If Mr. Reed, therefore, who is accredited with having an eye to 1896, can please both Senator Quay and Mr. Platt by appointing to the ways and means chairmanship and follow the rules of precedent at the same time, it is thought very probable that he will do it. no E.
