

WHY THEY DON'T WED

MANY GIRLS PREFER THEIR INDEPENDENCE.

Money-Grabbing Male American Becomes Uninteresting to Spiritual, Ambitious, and Loving Girls—Too Much Business.

SOME girls will always marry, but it is a notorious fact that many of our most cultivated and our brightest women remain single from choice, because it looks as if all the nice men are already married, and all the nicest girls are therefore destined to be old-maids—bachelor girls, rather—for I do not believe a girl exists who has not had an opportunity of getting married at some period of her girlhood.

"I think that the much blamed fin de siècle may be blamed for a part solution to the question why our girls don't marry, for it would take a nineteenth-century Columbus to find a complete and generally accepted solution of the whereabouts of the man said to be provided for each individual woman.

"The youth of this generation is generally obliged to leave school at as early an age as possible in his teens to go to work. The girls keep on studying, and acquire more or less of a higher education, and after leaving school continue to improve in literary and artistic work or social direction. As years pass, the average money-grabbing business-man becomes to such a woman less and less interesting, particularly as a prospective life companion.

"Another reason for girls not marrying is it has become both necessity and custom in families of moderate means for the daughters to enter some occupation that will render them independent and self-supporting. A clever, well-educated woman soon comes to earn her own bread and butter and even preserves; and sometimes, too, she makes enough to occasionally taste of the world's free air.

"She can enjoy and pay for an evening's lecture, or theater, without the escort of a cane and crush hat. She and her friends can travel all over the country without the protection of some masculine who is always missing checks and fussing with conductors. She comes to see matrimony through other women's eyes, and the matrimonial experience of friends and relatives makes her look askance at it.

"She finds that by some strange legal hocus-pocus the marriage ceremony transforms in a twinkling an independent, judicious woman into a legal nonentity; single, she is considered competent to manage her income and always keep out of debt, and is respectable; married, to-morrow she cannot draw one cent of her bank deposit without her husband's approval. But he does not need her approval to spend the last cent of her individual marriage dowry.

"Now, with broader knowledge of the world and the law, many thoughtful, self-poised women shrink from such effacing of their own individuality and possibilities of youth. The roseate dream of sixteen fades before the realities which a few years bring to light, and the taste of independence dies hard. Still, such women would 'thank God fasting for a good man's love' yet, rather than give up all that has made life worth the living to share the home of some narrow, rich man, they deliberately choose single blessedness, and make it single blessedness, indeed, to themselves and all around them."—New Orleans Picayune.

PREVENTS PITTING.

Use of a Red Light in the Sick-Room Has Proven Beneficial.

It is well known that red light possesses some peculiar property which annuls the chemical effect produced by other hues composing the solar spectrum. A red light is used in photographic dark rooms because its rays do not effect the sensitive plate in the process of developing. Some time ago it was suggested that the pits which appear in the face after a severe attack of smallpox might be due to the action of the sunlight. With a view to testing this theory the windows of the rooms in which the patients were confined were shaded by orange-colored curtains.

The results were not very satisfactory, possibly because the experiment was bunglingly done. The idea was not given up, however, and lately some tests have been made with red light, which has a greater power than orange light to exclude the sun's rays. The light was tried on several unvaccinated children suffering from smallpox in a German hospital and the disease immediately took a favorable turn. Although the pits appeared, they did not break, and finally disappeared, leaving the skin perfectly smooth. There was no secondary fever. According to Dr. Fellberg, who conducted this test, the essential point for the success of this treatment is that it should be begun during the early stages of the disease, shortly after the pits, or vesicles, have appeared. If the seventh day has been reached it is hardly possible to prevent the pits from breaking and hence becoming permanent. Another important point is that the exclusion of the chemical rays of daylight must be complete and continued until the vesicles have quite dried up.—New York World.

Self-Control.

The unit of the nation is the private citizen. The piety of the entire community is affected by each. If we would become and continue to be a well governed people we must first achieve the great conquest of ourselves—learn self-control.—Rev. B. T. Noakes, Episcopalian, Cleveland, O.
