No one hurt, and report says Maher fainted.

Fairfax Review: The words 'news of" were omitted from the item in regard Crosner's death, making it appear that the messengers brought the death instead of the news, in consequence of which the O'Neill FRONTIER wonders if they will be prosecuted. SIXTH DISTRICT'S CHOICE.

Broken Bow bubbled over with republican enthusiasm today, and delegates from nearly every county in the Sixth district were on hand to elect two delegates from the Sixth congressional district to the St. Louis convention. It was strictly a McKinley day, and every delegate present was for that statesman. The convention was called to order by Chairman Cook, of Kearney, at 7 P. M., and W. T. Wills, of Boyd county, was made chairman; W. R. Stitt, of Howard county, secretary; and P. T. Lambert, of Kearney, assistant secretary. After the usual committees were appointed, balloting was commenced for two delegates to the national convention The informal ballot stood: B. H. Goodell, of Kearney, 116; E. L. Meyers, of Rock county, 89; F. W. Smith, Alliance, 77; H. M. Wilson, Chadron, 52. The first formal ballot elected Goodell and Myers. J. O. Taylor, of Custer county, and W. T. Davenport, of Cherry county, were elected alternates by acclamation. M.

mended for presidential elector. Stirring speeches were made by Cady. of Howard county, Judge Wall, of Sherman, and Frank Beeman, of Kearney. Resolutions were adopted favoring the nomination of William McKinley as the republican nominee for president. Every mention of McKinley's name brought out cheers and there is no question as to the Sixth's choice for president .- State Journal.

THOUGHTS ON SPRING. Some thoughts on spring are not fit for publication. Spring is the season when poets and livers get out of order.

If you have fiannels to shed, prepare to shed them in July. The well known poetical reference to spring as an "ethereal mildness" was promulgated long before the introduction of the weather bureau. Spring poets are the great propagators of pulmonary complaints.

Spring, ghastly spring! Even a spring chicken is a delusion and a snare. If the robin is really a sign of spring, he ought to be ashamed of himself. In these latter days blizzards are the only genuine "harbingers of spring." That "tired feeling" incidental to spring is greatly aggravated by reading spring poetry in one column of a newspaper and the weather report in another. In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of cough mixtures. The most effette monarchy of modern times is the one presided over by the May queen. Frailty, thy name is spring. Spring by any other name would not be nearly so deceptive.

Possibly it is because spring is the youth of the year that it is so disagreeably fresh. "Sweet spring, full of sun and blowing roses"-sore throats and blowing Spring, gentle spring, get a thaw on Fremont Tribune: The German Chicory company, of O'Neill, is meeting with gratifying success in making contracts for chicory growing this year. The company expects to limit its contracts to 1,000 acres, and is now within 100 or 150 acres of that figure, and there will be no difficulty in securing the full amount. George Mead, a member of the company, who has been securing the contracts here and elsewhere throughout eastern Nebraska, naturally feels encouraged over prospects for a successful year for the factory. The acreage is fully three times as large as was ever before had. It is expected the product will be sufficiently large to keep the factory running nearly the entire year.

Dakota County Democrat: Frank B. Cole was in the city yesterday visiting his old friend, M. B. Slocum. Mr. Cole is considerable of an inventive genius, and has secured patents on several engineering improvements. He is now endeavoring to interest capital in a matter that would, if it proved a success, fairly revolutionize the hydraulic power process of today. By this process he is enabled to furnish unlimited motive power from the Missouri river, or any other stream, and the expense would be a mere bagatelle in comparison with the average cost of other processes. Mr. Cole also has a process for manufacturing a calcium carbon light that is more dazzling and brilliant than an eighty candle power electric light. He gave an exhibition of this in Sioux City some time ago that proved conclusively that he can do what he says.
