W. J. Bryan for President.

CHICAGO, Ill, July 11.-All of the speeches presenting the names of aspirants for the Democratic nomination for President had been made when the convention adjourned last night and balloting was fixed for the first thing this morning. In consequence, the hosts which gathered in the Coliseum filled every inch of space long b 'ore 10 o'clock, and by that hour people were being turned away by the doorkeepers. The delegates were slow in gathering and the hour passed with few in their places.

The managers for the various candidates were early in consultation, partly to devise means to prevent a gressman W. J. Bryan of Nebraska and partly to consider plans to advance the interests of their respective candidates

BLAND MEN AND THE BRYAN BOOM. The Bland managers, while admitting the danger of the impetuous Bryan movement, declared that it was the result of adroit generalship and that it had failed in its purpose to carry the convention off its feet. They still held the strongholds of Missouri, Arkansas, Illinois and Texas, and were confident that the actual figures of the ballot would take from the Bryan movement its element of popular enthusiasm. The Bland men were hopeful of winning accessions from the South after the first ballot.

The Boies and Matthews forces were satisfied that no nomination could be made on the early ballots, and that Bland and Bryan would disappear after their full strength had been registered and had been found insufficient to remint insufficient to nominate.

PATTISON'S NAME PRESENTED. At 10:56 Chairman White of California, who had recovered the use of his voice, stepped to the front of the stage. Running his eye for a couple of seconds over the crowd, he glanced down at the pit and with a blow of the gavel called the convention to order. With shuffling feet the vast audience arose and listened when the Rev. Dr. Green, the chaplain, prayed for righteousness and peace. Chairman White then announced that the convention was still on the call of states for nominations, and man of the national committee, mounted his chair and placed in nomination ex-Governor Robert E. Pattison. This evidence that Pennsylvania would stand by the platform and participate in the nomination, drew a cry of delight from the silver men, and Pattison's name got a swinging round of applause from the galleries.

Mr. Mattingly of the District of Columbia seconded the nomin. tion of "that peerless champion of free silver, that firm friend of the farmer and laborer, John R. McLean of Ohio."

Delegate Miller of Oregon added to the list of nominations the name of Sylvester Pennoyer of Oregon.

Thus the names of Bland, Bryan, Boies, Blackburn, Matthews, McLean, Pattison and Pennoyer were before the convention.

CHICAGO, July 11. - William Jennings Bryan of Nebraska was nominated for President of the United States by the Democratic national convention on the fifth ballot.

As soon as the fourth ballot was announced, cheers were raised for Bryan and an attempt was made to stampede the convention to him, while Illinois and Pennsylvania asked leave to retire for caucuses.

Then the standards of nineteen states were taken to the Nebraska delegation, while the convention cheered wildly. The scene of Bryan's demonstration of yesterday was repeated, the entire convention standing on chairs waving hats, fans and newspapers containing pictures of Bryan. There was a procession of state stand ards about the hall.

Tremendous cheering arose as Illinois joined the procession, and it was announced that Illinois in caucus had voted to go for Bryan.

There were no portraits of Bryan to be found in the city large enough for convention purposes. A morning newspaper which had printed a full page picture of the convention star orator was much in demand. Copies of it were stuck up on canes in the galleries and a Mississippi man hung one sheet to the standard of that Next came the report that Ohio was to change to Bryan.

A banner marked "No crown of thorns, no cross of gold," was carried in the procession. Then the conven-tion went wild as the Ohio standard was carried to the Nebraska delegation, and the convention was apparently stampeded to Bryan.

Chairman White announced that two-thirds of the votes cast would Frenzied men fought for the standards of the other delegations. California was first wrenched away from those who attempted to restrain it and check the Bryan stampede. Del-egates fought like men demented for the Illinois standard, while Governor Altgeld stood black and resolute guardinh his banner, but the delegates were intoxicated with enthusiasm. A hurried vote was taken. Bryan carried the day and the Sucker state's banner joined the parade. FOR WALBRIDGE

For President-W. J. BRYAN of Nebraska. For Vice President-MR. SEWALL of Maine

CIIICAGO, July 1 .- The Democratic national convention completed its work this afternoon by nominating on the fifth ballot Mr. Sewall of Maine as the running mate for W. J. Bryan, the "boy orator" of Nebraska, who was nominated with such great hurrah yesterday afternoon.

The result was accomplished only with considerable difficulty and in defiance of Mr. McLean's wishes, positively expressed this morning. tempts were made to stampede the convention to Richard P. Bland of Missouri, but these failed, though he was once within fifty votes of a majority. Joseph C. Sibley of Pennsylvania was also distinctly in the race for a time, but was dropped at his wish expressed by telegraph. On the fourth ballot John R. McLean of Ohio seemed an almost sure winner, but at its close it was positively announced that he was not a candidate for the position, and Mr. Sewall of Maine won.

THE LAST DAY'S CROWD SMALL

Although 10 o'clock was the hour fixed for reassembling this morning, at twenty minutes after that hour not more than 100 delegates were in the pit, and the galleries were not half filled. The delegates had been worn out by the struggles of the past four days, and public interest seemed to have culminated yesterday in the nomination of a Presidential candidate.

The news that John R. McLean of Ohio, who was the most formidable candidate last night, had finally and positively decided not to allow his name to be presented for the Vice Presidential nomination, left an open field for the second honor. The silver leaders stood about with their heads together discussing the availability of the various candidates. Ex-Congress-man Ben Shively of Indiana, recently nominated for governor of that State, was strongly talked of by the leaders, despite the declaration of the Indiana delegation that his nomination would confuse the situation in that State. George Fred Williams of Massachu-setts, Mr. Sewall of Maine and several Illinois men, as well as Mr. Bland and Boies, were also mentioned. It was said that it was Mr. Bryan's wish that a man of wealth should not be placed on the ticket with him.

As the hands of the clock pointed to 11 o'clock, Chairman White called the convention to order. There were only about 6,000 people in the hall. More than half of the gold delegates were absent. Contrary to the usual custom, the proceedings were not opened with prayer. A few routine announcements were made before the names of the vice presidential candidates were presented. Chairman Harrity of the national committee announced the last meeting of he old national committee, and W. Finley of Ohio moved the ratification of the delegations.

GEORGE FRED WILLIAMS FIRST. Nominations for the vice presidency were then called for, after a motion offered by Senator Jones of Arkansas, had been adopted limiting the nominating speeches to five minutes each.

J. T. O'Sullivan of Massachusetts, who had often attracted the eye of the convention by his outbreaks of enthusiasm, walked to the platform to place in nomination George Fred Williams of his own state. Although he is not a graceful orator, his sen-tences were ringing and had the close attention of the convention. He re-ferred to the sullen delegation from New York and urged the convention to prove that it had turned down New York's leader-referring to Hill-not because he came from the East, but because he was for gold. He told how Williams had fought the corporations in Massachusetts and therefore "had been antagonized," the speaker said, been antagonized, the speaker said, by Henry Whitney, a Standard Oil magnate and brother of the Whitney who sat silent yonder." pointing to the New York Standard Oil man. O'Sullivan urged the convention to choose a man from the Atlantic coast, that East and West might join hands on the ticket, and ended: "We do not want a man with a barrel to inaugurate this peaceful revolution.' "WATER" MARSTON NAMES M'LEAN.

shouted in chorus when Mr. Marston of Louisiana, the planter who had so often appeared before the convention, came to the front. He was in his usual humorous mood and said: "I assure you, gentlemen. that I have not tasted a drop of water to-day. He wanted to place in nomination John R. McLean of Ohio, and he said that he did so on his own authority-He assured the convention that, al-

J. C. Curry of North Carolina con-gratulated the convention upon the fact that it had been subjected to a baptism of patriotism, and upon the fact that the banner of silver in the states had not been trailed in the dust. States had not been trailed in the dust.

Not a standard, he said, had been lowered or placed in jeopardy. There were cries of "Name your candidate" from several parts of the hall. He concluded by placing in nomination

The North Carolina state delegation gave great applause. TOM JOHNSON LAUDS FITHIAN.

Ex-Congressman Tom L. Johnson, the free trade millionaire of Cleveland, appeared next and there was a cordial demonstration which was repeated when Congressman Richardson of Tennessee, in introducing him, referred to their services in the House together and to the fact that Mr. Johnson, though a steel rail manufacturer, advocated placing rails on the free list.

Mr. Johnson nominated ex-Congressman George W. Fithian of Illinois. He had seen service in the cause, Mr. Johnson said, and he had proved true. He was not wealthy, but the cause was one of the common people and a rich man was not desirable. It was the cause of humanity. If the fight was to be money against men, money would be all on the one side. "I do not helieve in free galver," soid he not believe in free silver," said he, "but I believe that this is a great movement in the interest of humanity and therefore I am with you."

W. A. Miller of Oregon, a spectacled scholarly looking gentleman, presented the name of Ex-Governor Pennoyer of Oregon as one who could se-cure for the ticket the united vote of the laboring men.

William A. Burke of California named the veteran Democrat, Arthur Sewall of Maine, and C. S. Thomas of Colorado seconded it.

J. D. Showalter of Missouri told the convention that it should go to the East to select "the statesman most profound and orator indeed" who carried the banner of the masses and who in a Republican district had been sent to congress by an overwhelming ma-jority. This man was Joseph Sibley of Pennsylvania. TEXAS CALLS FOR ME. BLAND.

LEBANON, Mo., July 12 .- A reporter went to the Bland farm last night. There is a report down town, Mr. Bland, that you have been asked from Chicago if you would accept the nomination for the vice presidency, if offered."

"I would not accept the vice presidency," Mr. Bland answered quickly. "I do not think the vice president should come from the West. With a Western president, the vice officer should come from the East. I have not been offered it."
