HE WAS TAKEN UP BY KITES.

FIRST SUCCESSFUL ASCENSION IN AMERICA.

LIEUT. WISE MAKES IT.

Hoisted Forty-Two Feet in the Air at Governor's Island by the Pulling of Four Kites, Representing a Force Estimated at 400 Lbs. -Kites Demonstrated to Be Useful in a Gale.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Lieutenant Hugh D. Wise of the Ninth infantry, U. S. A., on Governor's Island, has for six months been studying and experimenting with kites as a means of assisting armies in warfare. His kites are cellular, with rectangular frames of spruce and cotton string and cotton cloth in strips stretched around the ends of the frames, leaving both ends of the rectangular framework open, and also an open strip in the center. Thus four lifting surfaces and four guiding surfaces are presented to the wind. Yesterday, when the breeze freshened to a fifteen mile an hour gale, he was hoisted forty-two feet into the air by his kites so that he could see over the eaves of the officers' quarters and down the bay. The force represented by the pulling of the four kites is estimated at 400 pounds.

"I have studied the systems of Professor Langley of the Smithsonian institution, Professor Marvin of the weather bureau and Civil Engineer Chanute of Chicago, who are making special experiments in aerial locomotion, with aeroplanes," said Lieutenant Wise. "The success of my experiment demonstrates that kites are serviceable in a gale which would tear a balloon to pieces, where it is desired to observe the surrounding country and inspect the maneuvers of an enemy. I attribute my success to a close following of the methods of those who have studied the subject rather than to my own efforts."

Captain T. H. Baden-Powell ascended nearly 100 feet in England, but he took a parachute with him. Lawrence Hargrave was hoisted by kites forty feet in Australia in 1865. These are the only instances of aeroplane ascensions on record.

VENEZUELA'S CASE.

Chief Justice Fuller Will Act as the Republic's Representative.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The only objection raised by the Venezuelan government to the treaty between the United States and Great Britain for the settlement of the Guiana boundary was that it would have no representation upon the proposed arbitration tribunal, while England, the other party to the controversy, would be represented equally with the United States. President Crespo declined to accept the treaty unless Venezuela was represented by at least one member of the tribunal. Great Britain objected, and insisted upon dealing entirely with the United States. By a little diplomacy Venezuela was persuaded to name Chief Justice Fuller as its representative, provided Great Britain would withdraw its objection to her representation on the tribunal. The chief justice will accept, but will stand as the representative of Venezuela and not of the United States.

The thirteenth annual show of the Nebraska poultry association commenced Tuesday in the building on N street next to Herpolzheimer's, Lincoln. The coops are arranged in classes, so that spectators may pass along the aisles formed and inspect them at their leisure. There are some of the handsomest birds ever seen at a chicken show and the exhibitors feel a just pride in showing them off. The exhibitors come from all parts of the state, Missouri, Kansas and Iowa being also represented. All varieties of chickens from the pure White Plymouth Rocks in front to the jet Black Langshans in the rear are to be seen. The constant crowing of the cocks makes music for the poultrymen, because they find more enjoyment in listening to the clarion tones of their pets than they would perhaps in a good bad.

In our "NEBRASKA BOOK" (40 pages with maps and illustrations), are dozens of statements like that of Mr. Thorrell. They are made by farmers who have made a success of farming. They show that Nebraska is as good a state as any in the Union.

The book in which they appear is as different from the ordinary agricultural pamphlet as day is from night. It is interesting, practical and truthful. In a straightforward, simple fashion, it tells you everything you need to know about Nebraska—its climate, people, schools, churches, railroads, markets, soil and crops. It explains why the Nebraska farmer makes money in spite of low prices and hard times. Why land is cheap. And how it is as easy for an intelligent and industrious man to BUY a Nebraska farm as it is to rent one in any state east of the Missouri river.

Every farmer who wants to become a farm owner; every farm owner who is tired of trying to make money off high-priced land; every farmer who wants to give his sons a start on the high road to independence, should write for a copy. Free.

PATENT LAW PRACTICE.

DES MOINES, Jan. 12.—A correspondent at Laurens, Iowa, asks, "What liability attaches to an applicant for a patent who proceeds to manufacture the article for which the patent is applied before the patent is granted in case the application should be refused?" Answer:—As a rule when an inventor applies for a patent in good faith and finds he has been anticipated and that his invention is subordinate to a prior patent and then quits, that is the end of the matter. But at the same time he would be liable if prosecuted for infringement and the general rules concerning damages will apply. But the fact that the infringer supposed himself to be the first original inventor of the subject matter covered by the patent can be pleaded as a mitigating fact that the courts will recognize and be lenient as possible to the infringer. Valuable information about obtaining, valuing and selling patents sent free to any address.
