COXER isn't the first man who has realized the impossibility of running a newspaper on d. h. subscribers.

GREECE is an object lesson to those who believe in rashly rushing into war, leaving the consequences to take care of themselves.

Good, kind senators: The country understands the tariff, and asks that you will get down to voting with as little talking as possible.

DURLING is discountenanced almost everywhere else, but at the German universities it is on the increase. Twenty-one in one day is a recent record at Jena.

CONGRESSMAN BAILEY, of TEXAS, concluded that he would rather make silver speeches in Missouri than to keep butting his head against Speaker Reed's will.

JESSE GRANT may not be the wisest of men, but we believe he has too much sense to allow himself to be used as a figure head by a lot of gamblers who wish to establish a Mexican Monte Carlo.

THERE is a pointer in the anxiety of Tammany to keep Mr. Bryan from making speeches in New York during the municipal campaign. They know the effect of Bryan's speeches in that locality.

So LONG as a majority of the house is behind him, as it is likely to be so long as the house is controlled by republicans, Speaker Reed can smile at the ingeniously constructed newspaper revolts against his rule.

JUDGING from the appearance of the Coleridge Blade times are more prosperous with Bro. Watson now than they have been for the past six years. And still he kicks. Well, many people are never satisfied, anyhow.

SENATOR THURSTON has recommended S. J. Weekes for the position of register of the O'Neill land office, and his appointment is expected daily. R. H. Jenness, of Atkinson, was also a candidate for the position, but he withdrew in favor of Mr. Weekes. It is understood that Mr. Jenness will be appointed receiver. Mr. Weekes had the support of the county and state organizations in his candidacy, and the appointment will meet with the approval of the republicans in this section.

A FARMER whose land can be irrigated by the Great Eastern was going to sell for $30 per acre, but when he found out that he could have water in a few days, he raised the price to $35. His father held his land at $35 and raised the price to $40. The father said the son would be foolish to sell at $35, and the son says the father is foolish to sell at $40. Lands under the canal are being taken off the market and some are held as high as $75. May we some day see them saleable at this price.—Monroe Republican.

THE POPOCRATIC REMEDY.

The remedy of the popocrats for business depression and the only one they suggest, is a cheaper dollar than we now have—that is, a dollar of less purchasing power. They urge that the great need of the country is more money, notwithstanding the fact, well known to the more intelligent of them, that there are hundreds of millions of dollars of idle money in the United States and that the rate of interest on good security has never been lower than now. It is true that in some portions of the country there is scarcity of currency, but that is due chiefly to want of the credit necessary to obtain money. Whenever this credit exists there is no difficulty in obtaining all the money required in legitimate business.

The trouble with our money, however, in the view of the popocrats, is that it buys too much. They want a dollar that will exchange for less of the products of the farm and the factory than the gold standard dollar and at the same time go just as far in paying for labor as the latter. They want a depreciated dollar as measured by all commodities except labor. In his speech in the senate on Tuesday Mr. Vest mentioned as one source of evil that our workers are paid on a gold basis and come into competition with those paid on a silver basis. This sounds like an echo from the last campaign, when Mr. Teller and the other free silver advocates urged that American manufacturers would sooner or later realize that they could not pay for their labor on a gold basis and successfully compete with silver countries like Japan. The position was unsound then and is equally so now. The mass of American workers compete with those who are paid on a like basis, though not so well paid. As to the Japanese bogey, it cannot be used any longer, for four months hence that country will have the gold standard.

Of course these people who talk about more money and mean depreciated money are talking for the free coinage of silver. They are keeping up the silver agitation. They profess to believe that there can be no prosperity under the gold standard and they are prepared to obstruct all efforts looking to a restoration of prosperity. They know that the country has been greatly prosperous under the gold standard when it had a judicious tariff policy, yet they are opposing a return to that policy. "More money" is their demand. Is it necessary, after all the discussion the money question has received, to repeat that free silver would not give the country more money, but only debase money? Does not everybody remember how gold fled the country and went into hiding before the presidential election? Today this gold is available as readily as any other money. Can any rational man believe that this would be the case if the party of free silver—which means silver mono-metalism, a silver standard—had been successful in the election? Every dollar of gold would have been driven out of circulation had free silver been victorious last November, contracting the supply of money to the extent of from $500,000,000 to $800,000,000.

It is not more money that the country needs, but conditions that will invite the investment of idle capital and make a market for all the labor of the country. When these conditions are fully attained there may be a legitimate demand for more money, and if so it will be met, but not by the adoption of a policy of currency debasement which could result only in financial and business demoralization and ultimate disaster to all interests.—Bee.

JONES.

One by one the roses fade. One by one the demagogy is uncovered of the men who posed under the popocratic banner last fall as the implacable foes of trusts and combinations, and the unrelenting opponents of corporate greed and oppression.

This time it is Jones. Everybody remembers Jones of Arkansas, who, as chairman of the popocratic national committee made pitiful appeals for popular contributions to campaign funds on the ground that by reason of popocratic antagonism the faces of all the rich men with the exception of the silver bullionaires were turned against him. Everybody remembers Jones, who proclaimed himself the manager of the poor man's candidate for president and who kept constantly prating about the dear common people.

Yet the same Jones is now engaged in launching what is expected to be the most gigantic trust ever conceived. That good popocratic organ, the St. Louis Republic, that served so faithfully during the campaign as the mouthpiece of Jones and the popocratic managers and candidates, has announced the fact and enlarged upon it with all the important details. The new combination is a syndicate of capitalists who have acquired the patent rights to a new process of baling cotton which insures such economies that it is bound to drive all competition from the field. It is to be known as the American Cotton company, with $6,000,000 of preferred and common stock—the proportion of water not stated. At the head of the syndicate is John E. Searls, one of the grasping sugar trust kings. Associated with him, among others, are Stuyvesant Fish, railroad magnate and president of the Illinois Central; B. P. McDonald, another railroad magnate connected with the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway, and D. R. Francis, late goldbug secretary of the interior in President Cleveland's cabinet. Neither last nor least is Jones—Jones of Arkansas—member of the United States senate, chairman of the popocratic national committee, in public the enemy of trusts and corporate aggregations of capital, but in private the friend of the sugar kings, associate of goldbug bankers, beneficiary of railroad presidents and active promoter of odious trust methods. Worse yet, the new cotton syndicate is said to date back to March, 1896, prior to the opening of the late presidential campaign, so that if Jones is a charter member his pretended popocratic virtues must have been assumed from the start.

After advertising himself as one of the founders of the new cotton trust, how can Jones remain as chairman of the popocratic national committee at the head of a party that relies almost wholly on the sympathy dodge for support? Alas for the poor deluded popocrats, who were led to believe that in Jones they had a paragon of political purity!—Bee.

Mrs. A. Inveen, residing at 730 Henry St., Alton, Ill., suffered with sciatic rheumatism for over eight months. She doctored for it nearly the whole of this time, using various remedies recommended by friends, and was treated by the physicians, but received no relief. She then used one and a half bottles of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which effected a complete cure. This is published at her request, as she wants others similarly afflicted to know what cured her. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by P. C. Corrigan.

Only One Standard

You and we may differ as to money standards and out of our very differences good may come. But we won't differ as to the merits of one standard emulsion of cod-liver oil.

SCOTT'S EMULSION has won and held its way for nearly 25 years in the world of medicine until to-day it is almost as much the standard in all cases of lung trouble, and every condition of wasting whether in child or adult as quinine is in malarial fevers.

Differ on the money question if you will, but when it comes to a question of health, perhaps of life and death, get the standard.

Your druggist sells Scott's Emulsion. Two sizes, 50 cts. and $1.00. SCOTT & BOWNE, New York.

Something to Know.

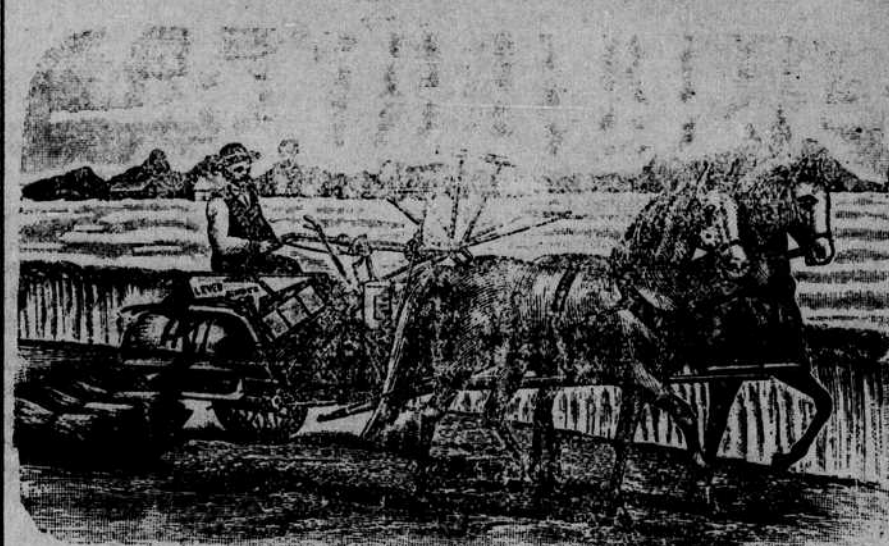

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired and nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centres in the stomach, gently stimulates the liver and kidneys and aids the organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters improves the appetite, aids digestion and is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. Sold for 50c or $1 per bottle at Corrigan's.
