The very conservative profession of medicine is slowly learning its life-long mistake in giving too much medicine, and many of the oldest and best physicians use less medicine each year. Recent experiments in England and Russia prove that the ordinary doses of medicine interfere greatly with the processes of digestion in all instances, and that this interference lasts from two end a nalf to ten hours-the latter with the use of quinine.

Little, fragrant, palatable tablets, in a dainty enameled metal box, just right for the vest pocket or the lady's purse. On the tablets are stamped the letters, "C. C. C." Cascarets, Candy Cathartic. Eat one like candy and the little tablet at once purifies and regulates the whole digestive canal. It destroys disease germs in the mouth and throat, stops souring of undigested food in the stomach, stirs up the liver, and tones and strengthens the bowels, making them act healthily and naturally. They are well and widely advertised in the press, but the best advertisement for Cascarets is the wonderfully mild yet positive action, which makes a Cascaret convert of everyone that tries them. We recommend them to all our readers.

BILL OF FARE OF CAPTIVE MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS.

A Party That Broke Every Record, and Is Proud of It, Although It Did'nt Set Out With That Object tn View.

by ice and snow, and were it not for HREE women from Sumer. Pierce county, Wash., were made prisoners by a terrific storm on Mount Tacoma recently, and they broke the record for the length of time spent in ice caves and snow banks three miles above the sea. They were hemmed in the heaviest flannels, stockings, shoes and wraps they would have frozen to death inside of ten hours. Mrs. J. E. Mitchell, Miss Josie Query and Miss Jean McFarland were the women who broke the high summer residence record. They were accompanied by Mr. Mitchel and Sergeant Hall, the latter being a resident of Puyallup. Their imprisonment caused their friends the greatest anxiety, but nothing could be done to assist them until after the storm, which broke into a hurricane just as they reached the summit of the mountain, had subsided. But until the storm finally did subside the two things that kept soul and body together on the mountain were the juice of a few prunes and the little warmth that came up through the core of the great pile in the form of steam. Some of the prunes were taken with the Mitchell party and some of them were found there, having been left by the Mazamas. The steam is always there, smelling of sulphur and brimstone, and reminding those who enjoy its warmth that Mount Tacoma was once upon a time nothing more than a huge smokestack three miles high. When the Mitchell party started for their eventful trip the sky was clear and not until they were well up were there any indications of the approaching storm. It was then too late for the party to retreat. All the climbers could do was to press on and on until they reached the summit exhausted. Once over the rim of the great crater the mountaineers hurried on to the ice caves where the steam oozes up from the interior of and darkness was coming on, but the climbers had little fear. They expected the storm to pass before morning, ty. They huddled together about a large opening where the steam came up from below with considerable force. There, too, they chatted and made mer-A few prunes were half cooked over the steam, and a few hard-tack crackers were softened by holding them where the steam would reach This bill of fare was unchanged durand then they would descend in safe-

ing their stay on the mountain, which lasted three nights and four days. Before the last day everything had been devoured, and they were nearly dead when they escaped from their icy prison. On the second day the storm in-creased in violence. The men went to the rim of the crater with the intention of seeing if it was not possible for them to escape by crawling down the side of the mountain. They found the force of the wind so great that it rolled their bodies back off the rim ple quit. like so many straws. Gradually hunger began to assert itself, and on the third day every prune and every piece of hardtack was devoured. The clothes of the members of the party had become moist by contact with the steam. and when the moist side was turned away from the warmth of the steam the meisture turned to frost and ice. Their evenings seemed to take the form of a huge animal with great teeth that snapped and bit every time the imprisoned mountain climbers turned around. Hunger stood on one side ready to gnaw out their vitals, while on the other side stood Jack Frost ready to sting and stiffen their limbs. After eating their last crumb on the third day the climbers crept to the rim of the crater and looked about. The storm had left the top of the mountain, but was raging still on the lower levels. Nothing could be seen of the surrounding country but the tops of Mount Adams, Mount Baker, Mount Hood, Mount Jefferson and what appeared to be Mount Shasta, could be seen. On the fourth morning of their captivity the Mitchell party decided to scramble dewn the mountain side, although the wind was blowing at the rate of fifteen miles an hour. The women were fastened to the life line and Mr. Mitchell cut holes in the ice for a distance of over a mile for the women to step in.

Slow Ocean Trips.

The varied tastes of humanity add greatly to the spice of life. While we think that apparently every one who crosses the Atlantic is pushing to take passage on the fastest steamers, there are many who are just as anxious to dawdle over on the slowest boats. There are enough of these to keep the crawlers going year after year. Such passengers are those who love the sea voyage best of all, or who are in poor health and need the complete rest of a long voyage. Passage on the slow goers is cheaper by far than on the fast ones, yet it is not by any means the poor or the economical who use them. Some very rich New Yorkers travel that way by preference.

Not of worldly goods, but of all earthly com Not of worldly goods, but of all earthly comfort, is the poor wretch tormented by malaria. The fell scourge is, however, shorn of its thong in advance by Hostetter's Stomach Ritters, its only sure preventive and remedy. Dyspepsia, billousness, constipation, rheumatism, nervousness and kidney complaints are also among the bodily afflictions which this benificent medicine overcomes with certainty. Use it systematically.

Where no Space Is Wasted.

In many tropical countries the roof of the house is a very important part of the building, being put to a variety of uses not dreamt of in colder lands. In the one-storied houses of Peru, for instance, it is not uncommon to find the mules and horses lodged on the first floor, and the family on the floor above, while on the great flat roof there may often be seen fowls, pigs, goats and even cows. The cows are taken aloft when they are merely calves, and spend the rest of their lives on the roof.
