NEW AUSTRALIAN BALLOT

Form of, as it Will Appear at the Polls in Nebraska, November 2, 1897.

STATE TICKET

Republican

For a straight ticket mark within this circle.

For Judge of the Supreme Court

ALFRED M. POST. -

For Regents of the State University

CHAS. W. KALEY, -

JOHN N. DRYDEN, -

Peoples Independent

For a straight ticket mark within this circle.

For Judge of the Supreme Court JOHN J. SULLIVAN. .

For Regents of the State University

E. VON FORELL, -GEO. F. KENOWER, - Democrat

For a straight ticket mark

within this circle.

For Judge of the Supreme Court

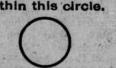

JOHN J. SULLIVAN, -

For Regents of the State University

E. VON FORELL, GEO. F. KENOWER. -

For a straight ticket mark within this circle.

For Judge of the Supreme Court

JOHN J. SULLIVAN, -

For Regents of the State University

E. VON FORELL. GEO. F. KENOWER. -

For a straight ticket mark within this circle.

For Judge of the Supreme Court

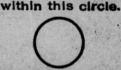

D. M. STRONG. - -

For Regents of the State University

MRS. ISABELLA SPURLOCK, D. L. WHITNEY. - -

National Democrat

For a straight ticket mark

For Judge of the Supreme Court

WARREN SWITZLER.

For Regents of the State University

J. STERLING MORTON

IAMES C. CRAWFORD,

Read Carefully the Following Taken From the Election Laws. 1. Persons desiring to vote must

2. They must then, without leaving partment and prepare their ballots.

lows: If you wish to vote a straight more on another ticket or tickets in ticket, make a mark in the circle at the any group, the voter must make the then be counted for every candidate on group on his own ticket that he wishes delible pencil in the square on the right wishes to vote for. Be careful that margin of the ballot opposite the name | you do not mark the names of persons

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS vote; if you wish to vote a straight not make any mark on the ballot, save the proper office you wish him to hold, offices, place a cross in the circle at the head of the ticket you wish to vote in the main, and then place a cross opprocure their ballot from a judge of posite the names of the candidates you the election board. wish to vote for on other tickets, or when two or more candidates are the polling place, proceed to a com- grouped on the ticket for the same office, as two or more representatives, 3. The ballots are prepared as fol- and the voter wishes to vote for one or top of the ticket, and your ballot will cross mark after each candidate in the the ticket under the circle. If you to vote for, and also after the name of wish to vote otherwise than the straight each candidate on any other ticket or ticket, you place a cross with an in- tickets grouped for the same office he ticket with the exception of certain as above directed, or the ballot and make a cross mark in the proper will not be counted. If you margin opposite the same. spoil a ballot return it to a judge of the election board and obtain polling place; you thereby forfeit the from him a new ballot; you cannot get more than four in all; take this to a > compartment and mark it properly. it so as to conceal the names and which an election is being held, or marks on the face and to expose the within 100 feet thereof, nor obstruct names on the back.

5. Take it to the judge of election free ingress or egress from said build- prepared for voting. before leaving the enclosure, and see ing. it deposited in the box.

6. Immediately leave the railed en-

7. If you wish to vote for any person whose name does not appear upon of each person for whom you wish to for whom you do not wish to vote. Do in the blank space on the ballot under ing.

8. Do not take any ballot from the right to vote.

No person whomsoever shall do any electioneering on election day within 4. Having marked the ballot, fold any polling place, or any building in the doors or entries thereto, or prevent

Any election officer, sheriff, constable, or other peace officer is hereby passageways and prevent such obstruc- ballot to such elector. the ballot, write or insert his full name tion, and to arrest any person so do-

No person shall remove any ballot from the polling place before the closing of the polls.

No person shall show his ballot after it is marked to any person in such a way as to reveal the contents thereof. or the name of the candidate or candidates for whom he has marked his vote, nor shall any person solicit the elector to show the same; nor shall any person except the judge of elec- return such ballot to such judges. tion receive from any elector a pallot

No elector shall receive a ballot from any other person than one of the judges of election having charge of authorized and empowered, and it is the ballots, nor shall any person other costs of prosecution. hereby made his duty, to clear the than such judges of election deliver a

No elector shall vote, or offer to vote, any ballot except such as he received from the judges of election having charge of the ballots.

No elector shall place any mark upon his ballot by which it may afterwards be identified as the one voted by

Every elector who does not vote the ballot delivered to him by the judges of election having charge of the ballots shall, before leaving the polling place,

Whoever shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall, upon conviction thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, be fined in any sum of not less than $25 and not more than $100 and adjudged to pay the Mick (writing)—"Dear Briget: If I ain't back before I comes, I shall arrive as soon as I can get there, so mind and don't miss me when we meet.

A DEVOTEE OF MORPHEUS. The Duke of Devenshire Sleeps in the They Found a Way to Get at the

It is said the Duke of Devonshire or the library.

legs about 10 or 11 o'clock, and his diffuse and uninteresting commonplaces are running out in turgid verbosity, what better thing can a statesman do than go to sleep?

When to the lower house as Lord Hartington the duke was a confirmed sleeper, with his legs against the clerk's table, his hat tilted down over his eyes, his mouth open and arms folded, or balancing his body upon the seat. At times his lordship was guilty of an approach to snoring. People who go to bed about 3 or 4 in the morning must take their sleep some-

A Gigantic Goddess of War. In the Japanese capital there is rigantic image of a woman made of ood, iron and plaster. The time of erection and the name of its designer are in dispute, but it is known to have been dedicated to Hachiman, the god of war. In height it measures 54 foot, and the head alone, which is reached by a winding stateway in the interior of the figure, being capable of holding a company of 30 persons. The goddess holds a sword in her right hand and a huge painted wooden ball in the left. Internally the statue is the finest anatomical model in existence, every bone, joint and ligament being represented on a gigantic scale in proportion to the height and generin proportion to the height and general size of the huge figure itself. The large eyes are magnifying glasses, through which a fine view of the sur-

The other night a very young American was being put to bed by his gentle little mother. The youngster had just been engaged in an affray with a seighbor's boy, and had got decidedly the worst of the battle. His mother, thinking it a good time to inculcate the principles of forgiveness to our manifes, told young James that he must may, "God bless Richard!" Richard baing the name of the odious and James yielded, with a very "God bless Richard," he rounding country may be had.

SMART RATS.

The reasoning bump in a rat's head goes to sleep in the house of lords is not as distinctly visible as the same. What else is he to do should that auprotuberance in an elephant, yet the gust house sit late, as it does three or rodent occasionally shows a fair supply of horse sense. Mrs. James How-custom to go to sleep in parliament when you have a mind to. The rules part of a couple of rats that raised magazine or a book. If a peer or a the genus in her estimation. Mrs. member of the commons desires to Howlett has for some time been missread he must go to the reading-room ing little cakes or cookies from the pantry after her Saturday's baking. She kept these cakes in an old soup tureen, and would carefully place the cover on. She would invariably find this cover raised out of the groove in which it fitted tightly and turned cross-

At last she determined to wait for the depredators, and this is what she saw: First an old gray rat came cautiously on the shelf where the tureen sat. He reconnoitered, then made a slight noise, and another rat appeared. One of the rodents went to each end of the tureen and backed up against it, the hind legs sticking up against the sides of the cake box. Their tails were then wrapped around the handles on each end of the cover, and at a given signal the rodents pushed upward together, and the cover was raised. It was an easy matter after this to turn the cover so as to rest crossways on the tureen. This left an opening at both ends, and the rats went in and helped themselves.

Free Soda Water.

An up-town dry goods store in New York last summer tried the experiment of giving soda water to its trons free. An enormous fountain well equipped for service, was placed in the back part of the store, a each hot day half a dozen attendants were kept busy serving a clamorous thirsty and never diminishing crowd. One day upward of 7,000 glasses of soda water were drawn from that free fountain. This year the firm charges three cents a glass for its soda water, and as a result the patronage has fallen off to a remarkable extent. On two very hot days some time ago, although the store was well filled with customers, the soda fountain at no time was

Origin of Dunning.

During the reign of Henry VII. there lived in Lincoln, England, a famous bailiff named Joe Dunn. Joseph was very clever in the management of his ess, and so dexterous in annoy ing those who refused the payment of an account with which he had been in trusted that, "to set Dunn on him," or "to Dunn him," became common advice to the owner of a bad debt. To this personage we owe what to not a few people is one of the most disagree-able words in the language.

HOW HE TESTED THE TRAIN. Dom Pedro's Way of Trying a New Brake and Its Inventor

The late Emperor Dom Pedro, of Bazil, once gave audience to a young engineer who came to show him a new appliance for stopping railway engines.
The emperor was pleased with the thing and said:

"We will put it at once to a practical test. The day after to-morrow have your engine ready; we will have it coupled to my saloon carriage, and then you can fire away. When going at full speed I will unexpectedly give the signal to stop, and then we will see how the apparatus will work."

At the appointed time the emperor entered his carriage and the engineer mounted his engine, and on they went for a considerable distance; indeed, the young engineer began to suspect that the emperor had fallen asleep, when the train suddenly came to a sharp curve round the edge of the cliff, on turning which the driver saw, to his horror, an immense bowlder lying on

He had just sufficient presence of mind to turn the crank on his brake and pull up the engine within a couple of yards of the fatal block.

Here the emperor put his head out of the window and asked what they were stopping for. The engineer pointed to the piece of rock, on seeing which Dom Pedro burst into a merry

"Push the thing on one side!" he called out to the engineer, who had jumped down from the locomotive; and when the latter in his confusion blindly obeyed, and kicked the stone with his foot, it crumbled into dust.

It was a block of starch that Dom Pedro had ordered to be placed on the rails the night before.

Cash and Credit. An enterprising grocer in the town of Santa Clara, California, has adopted an original method of trade. Each side of the store is fitted up for business on its own account. In the general arrangement each side is a duplicate of the other, the difference being that one side is for cash and the other for credit. When a customer comes in, the first question asked is, "Do you wish to buy for cash or on account?" If it is a cash customer the goods on each side are shown; but if it is one who wants credit he is shown to the other side, and for the first time in his life perhaps made to realize the value of ready money.

Her Day Would Come We are all prone to retaliate for pernal slights, but perhaps the funniest woman, who, seeing a funeral to which she had expected an invitation pass her door, expostulated angrily: "Oh, go on wid ye! go on wid ye! go on wid ye! But maybe there'll be a funeral at our house soon, and thin we'll see who'll be axed!"

A RUSSIAN BELL.

Returned to Its Home After a Banishment of Three Centuries. A distinguished Siberian exile snugly packed in a wooden box and honored with the regretful farewells of a whole population has just been returned to his recent visit to Europe, is a small European Russia under an escort of a brass pocket piece resembling an committee of citizens glad to receive it ordinary baggage check, which is back after its many privations. The worth a great deal more than its said exile is no other than the famous weight in gold. It is of octagon shape bell of Uglich, banished to Tobolsk in 1593 by order of the Czar Boris Godunoff for having rung the signal for the insurrection in Uglich at the time of the assassination of the Crown Prince Dimitri. Writing of it in his book Mr. Kennan says: "The exiled bell has been purged of its iniquity, has received ecclesiastical consecration, and now calls the orthodox people of Tobolsk to prayers. The inhabitants of Uglich have recently been trying to recover their bell upon the plea that it has been sufficiently punished by three centuries of exile for its political untrustworthyness in 1593, and that it ought now to be allowed to return to its home. The mayor of Tobolsk argues that the bell was exiled for life, and that consequently its term of banishment has not yet expired. He contends, furthermore, that even admitting the original title of the Uglich people, three centuries of adverse possession by the city of Tobolsk have divested the claimants of all their rights, and that the bell shall be allowed to remain where it is. The question, it is said, will be carried into the Russian courts." The latest news from Tobolsk, besides showing that a decision has been reached in favor of Uglich, illustrates the inconsequential character of Russian justice, which closes its tribunals to the wrongs of thousands of sufferers in Siberia and opens them to a miserable squabble about a bell.

BRITISH CONSCRIPTS.

The Unpopular Law Adopted in British

The absence of the conscription one of the distinguishing features of the British empire. In one portion of the empire, however, namely, British Guiana, the conscript has just been adopted. The ordinance in question met with the strongest possible opposition in the colony on the ground of its "un-English" character. However, in the face of the fact that it has been found impossible to maintain the volunteer force at anything like an efficient numerical strength, and as the governor pointed out that unless they had a drilled force they would be at the mercy of a wretched mob of a hundred well-armed Venezuelans if they came, the ordinance was agreed to, and now, at the proclamation of the governor, every male resident in the olony between the ages of 18 and 45 is compelled to turn out and drill with a view to making himself an efficient member of the colony's forces.

CURIOUS RAILWAY RELIC.

Specimen of the First Passenger Ticket Used on the Railroads.

Among various trophies secured by Chief Smith, of the transportation department of the world's fair, during his recent visit to Europe, is a small and on one side is stamped the inscription "L. and S. Railway," "Bagworth. No. 29." On the opposite side the number is repeated. This fortunately preserved relic represents the kind and form of tickets in use in 1832 for "open-carriage passengers" on the Leicester and Swannington Railway. The distance covered by the main line was a trifle over sixteen miles, and the passanger fares charged were one and a quarter pence per mile. There was one class only, and passengers stood up in an open carriage, generally known as a tub, which was nothing better than a high-seated goods wagon, having no top, no seats, no spring buffers. These brass tickets were issued to the various stations, the guard of the train carrying s leather bag something in the style of a collection box, having eight separate divisions, one for each station. At the end of each passenger's journey his ticket was taken up and placed in the bag by the guard to be returned, recorded on the books and again used.

A COUNTRY OF REPTILES. No Land Beats Australia for Snakes; Lizards and Frogs.

A Scotchman who has lately traveled extensively in Australia says that it is a great reptile country. traveled" he said, "in almost every country and I have never found a land that went ahead of Australia for snakes, lizards and frogs. There are some sixty-five species of snakes in that country, of which forty-two are venomous and twelve positively dangerous. There are forty or fifty different kinds of frogs, embracing every variety from a common tree frog to a large green variety with blue eyes and a gold back, making a wonderful showing of color as he hops about. There are probably forty kinds of lizards, of which twenty belong to a class known as night lizards, many of which hibernate. One species can utter a cry when hurt or alarmed, and another kind, the frilled lizard, can lift its fore legs and hop about like a kangaroo. The monitor, or fork-tongue lizard, burrows in the earth, climbs and swims and grows to a length of nine or ten feet. The crocodiles of Queensland, however, grow to a length sometimes of forty eet. Some of the Australian species of lizards can change their color not only from light to dark but from gray to red. All kinds of turtle are caugh I saw one caught there that was ten

WHENCE CAME THE FROGS? A Shower in New Jersey Suggests Some Scientific Speculation

During a thunderstorm in New Jersey lately it "rained frogs" to such an extent that, according to the testimony of multitudinous witnesses, the streets of Port Morris were alive with hundreds of these creatures. Here's a state of things which more explain to-day than it could two thousand years ago. It is still said, of course, that these frogs were sucked up in marshes and carried into the clouds, but no human being ever yet saw a frog thus taken up, and it is odd that nothing is ever "raised to eminence in this way except the frog, though plenty of other living things may be near by all ready to be sucked

A good many observers hold to the curious and interesting opinion that under certain very rare electrical conditions life seems generated spontaneously. The frog is a peculiarly electrical creature, and in fact, first suggested the existence of animal magnetism as a distinct force to science. If any animal could be thus suddenly and strangely called into being it might well be the frog. Now that the university extension professors are setting to work teaching the people science, it would be interesting to hear them explain mysteries such as the descent of frogs, which has been the talk of Port Morris and all the region round about.

Men who become suddenly rich should be judged leniently. They have many temptations from which the rest of us are, happily, delivered. Mr. John Johnson, a man of this class, was desirous to be known as of a literary turn of mind, and to that end proceeded to lay in a library. One of his purchases was an old dictionary, which, being somewhat out of repair, was sent to the binders. When it was returned to the purchaser he found printed on its back the words, "Johnson's Dictionary." The sight threw him into a furious passion, and he demanded of the messenger: "Why didn't he put the full name on. John Johnson's Dictionary?"

There was dug up recently at Elliott, Me., a gold ring, bright and shining, bearing the inscription: "Hon. John Frost, Esq., ob. 25 Feb, 1822-3 E. 51." Hon. John Frost was the son of Capt. Charles Frost, who was killed by the Indians near the Berwick line of Kittery about 1782. Capt. Frost was a noted Indian fighter, and when he was buried by his friends the Indians dug him up and elevated the body on poles. The whites were obliged to bury the body again at a great depth, and cover the grave with stones to prevent further desecration.