Professor Stewart is very proud of the fact that he is training one of the largest and most brilliant grad uating classes that ever perfected their course in the Atkinson high school. The class numbers thir teen, but there is no indication that this number will prove an evil omen as the class both individually and collectively are going to make an average that will reflect both credit upon themselves and their worthy pedigogue. This class, with Professor Stewart's assistance, is pre paring a class history that will soon be published in a neat volume of about 40 pages which will be one of the most up to-date and original sphool souvenirs ever published from any high school in Nebraska.

Spain's Greatest Need.

Mr. R. P. Olivia of Barcelonia, Spain, spends his winters at Aiken, S. C. Weak nerves had caused severe pains in the head. On using Electric Bittters, America's greatest blood and nerve remedy, all pain soon left him. He says this grand medicine is what his country needs. All America knows that it cures liver and kidney trouble, purifies the blood, tones up the stomach, strengthens the nerves, puts vim, vigor and new life into every muscle, nerve and organ of the body. If weak, tired or ailing you need it. Every bottle guaranteed, only 50 cents. Sold by P. C. Corrigan,

AN UNKISSED KISS

Hon. William Jennings Bryan declined to kiss a pretty girl in Texas last week, remarking at the same time that he was not Hobson. There was probably no intention on Mr. Bryan's part to make the young lady feel badly or to reflect on the osculatory achievments of the hero of the Merrimac. Doubtless what he meant to intimate was that he lacked Hobson's capacity and endurance, and that he would prove a dissapointment to the ladies if he attempted to enact a role that might demand millions of kisses in the course of the next year or two. Possibly he also had private reasons of a domestic character that were weighty and convincing.

The unmarried hero may rove gayly about in the gardens of female loveliness, sipping honey from every flower that holds up its pretty lips to him, but the married hero is obliged to conduct himself with tled on the farm purchased by them more reserve and less gayety. He has a superior officer at home to whom he is responsible for his beto Clearwater where they have a havior and who is not likely to view with favor campaigns of sentiment and osculation.

> The wife of the political hero may have no objection to the free and unlimited coinage of silver, but she is very apt to veto free and unlimited kissing on the part of her husband, and as a domestic committee on resolutions to strike that plank out of his platform with a promptness and force that would reduce it to kindling wood.

Candie! Potatoes.

Candied sweet potatoes are prepared by boiling them until they are thoroughly cooked, but not mealy. They are then peeled and sliced. A shallow dish or tin is smeared with butter, and a layer of the sliced potatoes then put in; over this sugar is sprinkled, then another layer of potatoes and another of sugar, with a few bits of butter or top. Some cooks add a very little maple syrup just before putting them into the oven. As the potatoes are cooked they need only be left in a fairly how oven long enough to brown and caramel slightly.

Apple Jack.

A. J. Beveridge, the newly elected Senator from Indiana, was nicknamed "Apple Jack" by his fellow-students in De Pauw University. It is said that his first fame as an orator was brought about in a novel way. It was advertised in an Indiana town that ex-Governor Beveridge of Illinois would deliver an address. When young Beveridge arrived and saw the flaming posters he did not wish to speak, but finally decided to make the best of it When the crowd first saw the boy orator they laughed, but as he warmed and right there he made his public reputation as an orator. He has ever since been in great demand. He is a young athletic man, full of vigor and with a mind & his own.

The snail is blessed with great powers of vitality. A case is recorded of an Egyptian desert snail which came to life upon being immersed in warm water after having passed four years glued to a card in the English Museum. The eggs are as hard to destroy as the snail itself. They seem perfectly indifferent to freezing, and have been known to prove productive after having been shriveled up in an oven to the semblance of grains of sand.

The Verb to "Jew."

The earlier editions of Webster's Dictionary contained a verb, "to jew," and defined it "to cheat," "to play with," etc. At the request of a number of influential Israelites, the word was eliminated from the book. As a matter of fact, however, the word had no connection with or reference to the followers of the Mosaic faith. It was derived from the French "jeu," and "jouir," which means "to play with," "to cheat," etc., but its orthography had become corrupted to "jew." It did not appear in subsequent editions of the work .- Hebrew Standard
