Printers Auxiliary: The O'Neill Frontier has rounded its twentieth year, and as one of the largest and best paying papers in the state is moving along in smooth and easy channels. The publisher only briefly refers to the nineteen years that have been placed in the background, adding that the paper is a "stout, healthy and active kid," with promise of long life and usefulness before it.

The republican city caucuses were held last Monday afternoon and the following delegates elected to the county convention from the several wards: First Ward—B. A. DeYarman, S. J. Weekes, D. H. Cronin, C. L. Bright. Second Ward—E. S. Kinch, W. T. Evans, John Hoff, Jas. Stout. Third Ward—C. C. Millard, A. J. Roberts, John Davidson, James Trigg. Stood By His Friends.
An editor died the other day. The doctor said the cause of death was mental prostration produced by overwork. The editor's wife knew it was worry over financial matters as well as work that finished his earthly career. He hadn't been to church for seven years. The last time he went he saw a man teaching the bible class in Sunday school who owed him nine dollars on subscription and heard him sing, "Jesus Paid it All." When he died the preacher looked grave and shook his head and all the good people of the congregation took up the refrain and looked grave and shook their heads also. The editor boarded the lightning express flashed his mileage book and went straight to heaven. "Who's there?" asked St. Peter in response to his rap. "An editor from that little ball called World, western hemisphere, state of Nebraska. How are you this morning, Peter?" "Well, quite well, thank you. Walk right in. The best in the shop is yours. Select your own seat. I have two splendid jobs waiting for you. See that crowd down below? They are the fellows who didn't subscribe for their local paper, those who did subscribe but never paid and those who were always kicking on the paper. I want an reliable hand to drink ice water and throw coals of fire on their heads. Then there's that crowd up to the right. They are the men who never kicked, were always ready with a helping hand and a word of encouragement, paid their subscription promptly, advertised liberally and consistently and never went from home for their job work. I want an reliable hand to see that they get the best there is a going. They may be a trifle unreasonable at times but when on earth they treated people fairly. Which place do you want?" "Thank you, Pete, old boy, since I am to choose I'll go up with my friends and leave those fellows down below to the devil. They won't be lonesome in his company."—Stanton Picket.
