CLEAN GUESS.

Which Nettle a Broken and Sick Man a Little Fortune.

New York Mail and Express: "Did you ever have a big piece of pure luck when you really needed it badly?" said one who is at present a high railroad official. "I did once, and never again. It happened in Denver in 1882. I was broke. I had just come out of the hospital after a long tussle with pneumonia and I was unable to do manual labor, which was the only thing I could find. One afternoon, when things were at their very worst, I was sitting in the old Charplot hotel and overheard two men talking very secretly about a big strike in some mine. I inferred from their conversation that it was somewhere in the San Juan district, but they didn't mention the exact location or the name of the property. When they went out I noticed a tiny piece of ore lying on one of the chairs, where it had evidently been dropped while they were examining some specimens. It was brown quartz, literally full of gold. It was ore that made a fellow's heart jump just to look at it, and while I was turning it between my fingers it all of a sudden flashed into my mind that it must have come from the Lady Alice. They had taken stuff from it once, but the vein had 'pinched out,' and the property was supposed to be N. G. Its stock had dropped to nothing. Of course, it was only a guess," continued the speaker, "and there were several hundred chances that it wasn't the Alice at all. I did some quick thinking. There was a banker up town who owned a lot of Alice stock, and in two minutes I was on my way to his office. 'Look here,' says I, when I finally got into his den, 'I have information worth a lot of money to you; what is it worth to me?' 'Not a cent down,' says he, promptly, 'but 10 per cent if I get it.' I handed him the piece of ore; it was about as big as the end of my thumb. 'They've struck that in the Lady Alice,' says I. To my surprise he turned pale as death and yelled for a clerk. 'Run after Smith!' he bawled, 'and bring him back with that stock!' Smith, it turned out, was the messenger, and he was then on his way to deliver a bundle of Alice stock for which the banker had just been offered a couple of hundred dollars. He had thought it a good trade until he saw my ore. Smith came back and the banker tried his best to pump me, but I wouldn't tell him any more. If he had known I was only guessing he would have kicked me out, but the fates were with me. The next day the news of the discovery got to the public; it was Alice, sure enough, and the stock went scotching skyward. Meanwhile the fellows in on the secret had bought up all they could. My banker scooped in a big pot of money and I got $2,500 for my share."

From the County Papers

Atkinson Plain Dealer:
John Skirving and Joe Meredith were in the city last Friday morning, but of course there was no politics in their visit although Joe is an aspirant for the republican nomination for representative.

Pratt Haner, a brother of Rev. Haner's from the Catskill mountain region of New York, arrived in town last Saturday evening with his family. He will soon move onto the Allison farm south of town where he expects to reside the coming summer. And yet there is lots of room for such families in this locality and we hope they will continue to arrive.

People's Advocate:
Ewing has a new bank, a new implement house and a new opera house and lodge room. Ewing needs three or four new dwellings for immediate occupancy.

Anthony Dizewicki, who recently had a public sale of his property at Chambers, has bought 75 acres of the Robins place on the east side from J. A. Trommershauser and will build thereon this spring and become a Ewingite.

M. R. Chittick, who will have charge of the bank to be established in Ewing, arrived from Geneva on Wednesday night with his family. We can assure Mr. Chittick and wife of a hospitable welcome to the social and business circles of Ewing.

Clyde Rumsey who was taken to his grand parents at Grant City Mo., a few weeks ago, took French leave of them a few days ago and is now in Chicago. Although only twelve years old this lad has bummed his way over nearly the whole United States.

Mr. Ward, who established a bank at Orchard a couple of months ago, voluntarily closed the bank last Saturday and yesterday left for Decatur, this state, where he thinks some of engaging in the business. He alleges that there was not business enough for the bank to warrant him in remaining in Orchard.

Chambers Bugle:
H. H. Hoppe came in Friday night with a Cruikshank bull that he bought in Missouri. We understand that he paid $400 for the animal.

Az Perry of the A. & N. passed through our city Wednesday, on his way to meet the surveying party who are now working this side of Spaulding. Mr. Perry reports everything moving smoothly.

The Welch boys are erecting new dwelling houses on their ranch and from the way things look—we'll have to know the reason "for cause why?"

A very quiet wedding occurred at 4 o'clock, Friday, March 9, at the Baptist parsonage, when Miss Belle Scott, and Mr. Frederick Ives were married. Only a few friends witnessed the service, which was performed by Rev. D. J. Briggs. Mr. and Mrs. Ives will make their home in Holt county, west of Chambers. The Bugle joins their many friends in wishing them a happy and prosperous future. May they live long and prosper. Blessings be with them and eternal praise. May their lives be as "Sweet spring, full of sweet days and roses."

A FIENDISH ATTACK.

An attack was lately made on C. F. Coiler of Cherokee, Iowa, that nearly proved fatal. It came through his kidneys. His back got so lame he could not stoop without great pain nor sit, in a chair except propped by cushions. No remedy helped him until he tried Electric Bitters which effected such a wonderful change that he writes he feels like a new man. This marvellous medicine cures backache and kidney trouble, purifies the blood and builds up your health. Only 25c at C. P. Corigan's.

DOWN AN AVALANCHE

EXCITING EXPERIENCE OF A COLORADO MINER.

Mounted a Passing Log and Made the Journey in Safety—A Remarkable Ride on the Back of Death—Seconds Seemed Minutes.

George D. Williamson, now engaged in mining near Lake City, Col., tells a thrilling story of his experience in a snowslide in the mountains of Hinsdale county.

Mr. Williamson and a companion had been to look at a mining claim in which they were interested and were returning along the trail when they came to a point at which there were evidences of a movement of a heavy mass of snow lying on the mountain side.

"I saw that it was liable to move again at any time," said Mr. Williamson, "and started back with the remark that it was much as a man's life was worth to attempt to cross the snow that had poured across the trail. From where we stood to the bottom of the gulch was about 1,000 feet, and we could see that the movement of the snow had stopped about fifty feet below the trail on which we were standing. I thought that by going around the trail carefully we could escape and save ourselves a long trip. I began clambering down the rocks on the edge of the slide. When I had reached a point near the end of the slide I looked back to where my friend stood at a safe distance and called to him that it was all right. A big dead tree had been brought down by the slide and rested on about three feet of snow, packed quite solid. The top of the tree projected about twenty feet beyond the end of the slide. Instead of going around the tree I sprang upon the trunk, intending to leap from it to the ground on the other side. The moment I touched the log I knew I was gone. Whether the slide started of its own weight or whether my weight started it I will never know, but in an instant I was flying down the mountain. As the log began to move I dropped and fell astride it, grasping a limb in front of me with both hands. I heard the scream of my friend as I began to move and then heard nothing more except the terrible roar of an avalanche behind me. There were no trees in the way and the log went as straight as a die down the mountain side, fortunately for me keeping on top of the snow. I don't know what I thought. There was no time to do much thinking, and all my energy was devoted to the maintenance of my position. We passed some dead bushes, the broken twigs from which were dashed into my face, cutting the skin, and the wind almost stopped my breath. At the bottom of the narrow gulch the tree stopped for an instant, but before I could get off the pressure of the snow behind started it again, and it shot up the side of the opposite hill with but scarcely little diminution of force.

"Gradually the avalanche spent its energy, and when the log came to a standstill I was sitting on it, holding the limb tightly more than 200 feet up the mountain side, while behind me the snow, timbers and rocks filled the gulch to the level of my position, forming a bridge 150 feet high. The whole thing was over in half a minute, and except for the scratches on my face I was unhurt. As I shook the snow off and looked around I saw my friend tearing down the mountain on the other side of the gulch with the expectation that he would find my mangled body under the debris. Needless to say, he was astonished when he heard of my remarkable ride on the back of Death."

Holland's Young Queen.

Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands dislikes to be called "the little queen." She thinks the phrase reflects upon her kingdom, and she is 5 feet 11½ inches in height. The queen of Spain is 5 feet 5-5 inches; the empress of Russia, 5 feet 2½ inches; the empress of Germany and Queen Victoria, still smaller. Aside from her height, the young Dutch queen is also of the best build. Her 21½-inch waist measure and 42-inch bust gives an admirable proportion. Her powers of endurance were well tested on coronation day, when for six long hours she wore the ceremonial mantle of red velvet trimmed with ermine, a weight of not less than thirty pounds, and showed no marked symptoms of fatigue.

What Johnnie Wanted to Sing.
In one of the schools of Worcester, Mass., the teacher, intending to relieve the monotony of the regular exercises, asked the pupils if they would not like to sing. Of course there was an instant clamor in the affirmative and then the teacher asked what song they would prefer. One little boy, in his eagerness to make the selection, spluttered out something which the teacher did not catch. Turning to the boy across the aisle, she asked what Johnnie said. "Please," came the unexpected answer, "he says he wants to sing 'His Country, 'Tis of Him.'"

A Good Plan
The landlady looked solemnly in the direction of the delinquent one. "It's a rule in this house to pay as you go," said she. The delinquent one smiled. "It's a good plan," said he; "you get it all in a bunch then—or nothing!"—Syracuse Herald.

The Ink Plant.
The ink plant of New Granada is a curiosity. The juice of it can be used as ink without any preparation. At first the writing is red, but after a few hours it changes to black.

SHYLOCK IN JAPANESE.

Changes in the Text of Shakespeare's Great Play.

Two tragedies were given by the Japanese players at the Boston theater recently, and the author of both—Kawakami—played the leading part in each. Japanese playwrights are certainly versatile, and when the amount of physical labor involved in these tragedies is considered, they cannot be said to be afraid of hard work, says the Boston Herald. The Japanese idea of "The Merchant of Venice," which the author attempts to show in "Sairoku" and in which he plays the name part, proved hardly as entertaining as might be expected. It might be called wearisome in places, owing to the protracted dialogue and insufficient pantomime to clearly indicate what the people were talking about. The main features of the play are copied, with some changes. Thus the Jewish miser becomes a Japanese miserly fisherman, the pound of flesh is "three square inches," he cut off nearest the heart of the lover of the miser's daughter, who has borrowed 3,000 ryo under the pledge of flesh forfeiture; and an older daughter is the Portia who becomes the judge and saves the lover's life. The play ends happily in the repentance of Siroku, though not before the tragic element is devolved in the suicide of the younger daughter. The shorter play that opened the bill and is called "Scarlet Snow" is based on events following the visit of Commodore Perry in Japan in 1853, and the tragic fate of Minister Tairo Kamon in consequence of his signing a treaty in opposition to the wishes of the exclusion party. The hand-to-hand fighting that comprises almost the entire second act and that reddens the deep snow with blood gives the name to the play, and is a study of muscular realism on the stage. The play is given entirely by the men, but in "Siroku" two ladies of the company, Sada Yacco and Mikami, give delightful performances as the two daughters.

Summer Children Are Tall.
That children tall for their ages are generally born in the summer is a novel theory. As far as boys alone are concerned those who first see light during autumn and winter are not so tall as those born in spring and summer. Those born in November are the shortest, in July the tallest. Averages for girls show that those born in winter and spring have less length of body than those born in summer and autumn. The tallest girls are born in August.

We have saved many doctor bills since we began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in our home. We keep a bottle open all the time and whenever any of my family or myself begin to catch cold we begin to use the Cough Remedy, and as a result we never have to send away for a doctor and incur a large doctor bill, for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy never fails to cure. It is certainly a medicine of great merit and worth.—D. S. Meakle, General Merchant and Farmer, Mattie, Bedford county, Pa. For sale by P. C. Corrigan.
