Medicines that are advertised to cure everything cannot be specifics for anything.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will not cure every kind of illness that may afflict men, women and children, but proof is monumental that it will and does cure all the ills peculiar to women.

When Housekeepers Are Brightening the Interiors of Their Homes.

Now that the backbone of this remarkable winter is broken, housekeepers are remarking the dingy look of the home interior. The question of new wall coverings is up. Paper is dear and short lived; kalsomines are dirty and scaly; paint is costly. The use of such a cement as Alabastine, for instance, will solve the problem. This admirable wall coating is clean, pure and wholesome. It can be put on with no trouble by anyone; there is choice of many beautiful tints; and it is long lasting.

Great Ships for the Pacific. President Hill of the Great Northern Railroad says that for his proposed transpacific steamship line he has ordered vessels that will carry 20,000 tons, or a measurement capacity of over 28,000 tons. In other words, he will have in operation, eighteen months hence, vessels equal in carrying capacity to the Campania and the Lucania combined. The deck room of each vessel will amount to over five acres.

the road and deep under the farther bank, from which oaks or elms, or often one single tree, rise with an upward curve, with a woven mass of roots and rootlets going far down below the surface level. The field ponds, often set at the corner where four fences meet, so as to afford water to four fields equally, are prettier and more varied, but often so overhung by masses of thorn and briars that the branches shut out the light and air.

When these ponds lie in the center of the meadows they are really beautiful objects. In the more waterless counties, such as Suffolk and Essex, they are numerous and very ancient. Rare, indeed, is the farm on which history records the making of any one of them.

At one end the cattle enter to drink, easy. There the tall water plantains, with pale gray flowers, and the water grasses grow. Beyond, the whole surface is covered with a narrow-leafed pointing all ways, like the leaves of frost crystals, just separated by narrow settings of water. The finest hawthorns and the oldest pollard oaks, full of polypody fern on the lower side, hang over these ponds, and in them dwell a tough and ancient race of carp, proof against all weather and drought, which seal the field ponds with ice from lip to lip. In the clay counties, and in places where there was little running water, the larger ponds were only half left to nature. They were dug for fishpools, or purely for ornament, though the fish were mainly carp and tench, and not the good trout of the southern pools. The grass is still kept smooth upon their banks.and the sides of the pools are planted with the trees in fashion eighty years ago.

The quince was the favorite pondside tree of our ancestors. It grows best by water, and from spring, when the pink blossom and gray leaves cover the drooping branches, till late in autumn, when the golden fruits dropped into the pool, and were gathered thence after a week's bath, which was believed to improve their flavor, the tree was always an ornament to the mar-

SHE KNEW HAWTHORNE.

I do not recollect Hawthorne's talking much at the table. Indeed he was a very tactiturn man. One day, tired of seeing him sitting immovable on the sofa in the hall, as I was learning some verses to recite at the evening class, of recitation formed by Charles A. Dana, I daringly took my book, pushed it into his hands, and said, Will you hear my poetry, Mr. Hawthorne?" He gave me a sidelong glance from his very shy eyes, took the book, and most kindly heard me. After that he was on the sofa every week to hear me recite. He was one evening alone in the hall, sitting on a chair at the farther end, when my roommate, Ellen Slade, and myself were going upstairs. She whispered to me, "Let's throw the sofa pillows at Mr. Hawthorne." Reaching over the banisters, we each took a cushion and threw it. Quick as a flash he put out his hand, seized a broom that was hanging near him, warded off our cushions, and threw them back with sure aim. As fast as we could throw them at him he returned them with effect, hitting us every time, while we could hit only the broom. He must have been very quick in his movements. Through it all not a word was spoken. We laughed and laughed, and his eyes shone and twinkled like stars with laughter. Wonderful eyes they were, and when anything witty was said I always looked quickly at Mr. Hawthorne; for his dark eyes lighted up as if flames were suddenly kindled behind them, and then the smile came down to his lips. We laughed merrily, and went off to bed, vanquished, without a word. I suppose Mr. Hawthorne's face must have worn that wonderful smile, which always seemed suddenly kindled behind his eyes, twinkled there for a second, and then ran swiftly over his intensely grace ace .- Atlantic Monthly.

A Queer Caller.

A writer in Cassell's Little Folks tells a story of a runaway hippopciamus, whose keeper succeeded in recapturing him in an unusual manner. In the days when Mr. A. D. Bartlett was king of the Zoo the hippopotamus once managed to break out of his house. It employed its freedom very properly to make a friendly call on Mr. Bartlett. He was not pleased to see this huge charge out of bounds, and sent for one of the elephant keepers to come and secure it. To this man the "hippo" of the Age had taken extreme dislike, and when he shouted to it, it turned and chased No Bolling No Cooking him. Away flew the keeper at the top of his speed toward the hippo's den the big beast in hot pursuit.
