Work on the convent is progressing rapidly. The brick layers expect to finish up this week. A tinner from Omaha is here putting on the cornice and as soon as the rafters are placed the work of putting on the slate roof will commence. It is expected that two of the school rooms ready for occupancy not later than September 10.

The youths of O'Neill are nothing if not ingenious. Yesterday they organized a circus, gave a street parade and loudly proclaimed from the head of the procession that it only took the enormous sum of one cent to secure admittance to the big show. It was an amusing spectacle, but no doubt the boys thoroughly enjoyed it.

The Independent, which double leads a couple columns a week to The Frontier with Frontier leads and never has a news item, stopped over its chases last week with a half column trying to make a white mouse look like a black elephant. The Frontier is duly grateful that the Independent produced the paragraph from this department at the head of its singular comment.

The townships of Atkinson and Chambers voted on issuing bonds for the new railroad last Saturday. The proposition was lost in Atkinson by a big majority, and although carried on the face of the returns in Chambers it in reality was lost there also. O'Neill, of course, is blamed for the whole thing, but bless their dear hearts O'Neill cared not if they voted bonds or no. It cost us no trouble nor money.

The Holt county teachers' institute convened Monday. The enrollment up to today is 106. The educational workers express themselves as highly gratified with the work thus far and speak in the highest terms of the instruction given by the various instructors. Last evening Professor Owens, superintendent of the O'Neill schools, gave a lecture on philosophy. Next week Chancellor Andrews writes that he will be here for an evening lecture.

The populists had quite a contest in the Grattan township caucus last Saturday. The contention was over the candidacy for supervisor. There were two candidates, John Coffey from the west end and John P. Sullivan from the east end of the township. Sullivan won out on the delegation and it is understood that he will be nominated and contest for the election with the republican nominee, R. J. Marsh, although it would not surprise the wisecracks to see him turned down and a dark horse nominated. But it is immaterial who they select as Mr. Marsh is sure to be elected.

On Wednesday evening, August 29, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Sherry's peerless musicians, vocalists and dancers will appear at the opera-house in a program of exceptional interest, consisting of the latest and most popular selections on the banjo, mandolin and guitar. Prof. Sherry was two years instructor of string music at the Colorado State University and as a soloist has no superior and but few equals in America. All lovers of string music should not fail to hear him. Beautiful ballads, latest oon songs, artistic songs and dances, Irish reels, etc., dancing and playing upon the banjo at the same time. Everything refined, artistic, instructive and strictly up to date. Admission 15, 25 and 35 cents. Reserved Seats at usual place.

A good sized audience greeted Charles Peterson's Concert company at the opera-house Tuesday evening. Their program consisted of violin, piano and vocal music and each number was roundly cheered, and the performers more than once responded to encores. Mr. Albert handles the violin charmingly and his O'Neill audience was much pleased with his playing. The soprano, Mrs. Wagner-Thomas, is not a stanger here. She was formerly a resident of this city, her husband being connected with the State bank. Her singing was highly pleasing as was shown by the many times she was recalled to the stage. A piano selection by Miss Nellie Hagerty of this city was one of the pleasing features of program. Walter and Willie Lavoilette of this city also played in a violin trio with Mr. Albert.

The Independent a couple of weeks ago made the announcement that Patrick Gagahan had been selected as one of the vice presidents of the Holt County Bryan Veteran club. About the same time a message was sent to the Omaha World-Herald announcing that Mr. Gagahan was among the life-long republicans of this community who had deserted the republican party and joined the Bryanites. Mr. Gagahan requests us to denounce the story as false and says he is a stronger republican today than ever before and a loyal supporter of his old comrade-in-arms, President McKinley, and the hero of San Juan, gallant, dashing, fearless Teddy Roosevelt. Stories of this kind are manufactured in all parts of the state by the Bryanites and scattered broadcast, the evident intent being to deceive and to lead voters to believe that many are deserting the party of progress and prosperity and affiliating with the democrats, the party of anti-progress, anti-freedom—as the recent election in South Carolina will testify—anti-American and anti everything but the offices. But it will not work. Bryanism and all that it signifies will be buried so deep next November that not even the scorching rays of a mid-summer sun can resurrect it.

The Neligh Advocate has undertaken to set the world right as to the people of O'Neill and said last week that it "is in receipt of many compliments from Atkinson regarding the stand it has taken on the O'Neill game law violation." Now everybody knows Atkinson would forego the opportunity of a new railroad in order to talk mean about O'Neill and it is not surprising that she has gone to Neligh with a gossiping tongue. She has evidently found an attentive ear down there. Again the Advocate says: "We are glad to know that there are some in Holt county who are not in sympathy with the spirit that prevades at O'Neill." The esteemed Advocate simply don't know what it is talking about. In the first place there has been but one man arrested for shooting chickens; he was not an O'Neill man by about twenty-five miles, and no evidence could be produced against him. Further there has been no wholesale arrests of law breakers nor no general uprising of men to persecute the prairie chicken such as the Advocate is trying to impress upon its readers. But to say that there are no chickens killed before September 1 here or at Atkinson or Neligh is folly. But the Frontier brands as a lie the Atkinson-Neligh concoction that O'Neill people are a set of lawbreakers. The trouble of this whole fool business is the changing of the game limit to September 1. It is merely for the benefit of eastern Nebraska and Iowa hunters, who keep their emissaries out in the chicken districts during the "ripening" season to keep the people who live there from doing any shooting, and the moment the law expires these hunters are on the grounds and kill chickens by the hundreds to ship to Omaha and Sioux City. In justice to the people whose grain fields fatten the chickens the law expiring August 15 should be restored.

Dies of Typhoid.
HARDING—Susie C., wife of L. E. Harding, died August 20, 1900, of typhoid fever, at her home 13 miles north of O'Neill, age 28 years.
Mrs. Harding had been ill for about three weeks, and was constantly under the care of a doctor and an experienced nurse. She was believed to be beyond recovery some days before death came, but again revived and fears were dispelled. A short time before her death a sudden change for the worse came and death shortly followed.

Susie C. Hamilton was born in Milwaukee, Wis., June 20, 1872, and came to Albion, Neb., with her parents at the age of ten years. In 1890 she was married to L. E. Harding, who, with five children, eldest nine years and youngest nine months, survives her. Mrs. Harding was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hamilton, her father being county judge of Boone county and her mother being dead.

The funeral was held Tuesday at the Presbyterian church in this city, conducted by Rev. Beckes. Deceased was a member of the Congregational church. Mr. Hamilton of Albion, father of deceased, and J. E. Harding of Merville, Ia., brother of L. E. Harding, were in attendance at the funeral.

The bereaved husband and motherless children have lost a maternal gem from their home, but in the darkest hour of human sorrow there is still a sweet consolation in the One who binds up the broken hearts and speaks the living words, "I am the resurrection and the life."

Note of Thanks—Words are but feeble agents to express the feelings of gratitude of those who are lead down into the dark shadows when friends administer with tender sympathies and untiring hands. My neighbors and friends have been more than kind; they have devotedly helped me. I thank you all.—L. E. Harding.

Finnigan Works Them.
Bassett Eagle: A young man by the name of Dan Finnigan, hailing from the vicinity of O'Neill and bearing the appearance of an ordinary laboring man spent a few days in Bassett last week working (?) on the railroad with section foreman Chris Grebe. He carelessly hinted that he could run a little, and as Bassett, like many other western towns, has in her midst young athletes who make some pretensions in this line, it did not take long to arrange the preliminaries for a race. The money was put up and the race came off last Saturday. The betting was not very heavy as our sporting fraternity were a little suspicious of the stranger, although his appearance would not indicate much speed but when he stripped down to a neat running suit all who had money on the local sprinter would have been glad for an opportunity to hedge. The distance run was seventy-five yards, and the professional (which he proved to be) won the race by about a foot. The race was close enough to make it interesting, but it is the opinion of some of our sportsmen that the stranger could easily have beaten Mac several.

Appeal to the Gentler Sex.
(W. J. Lampton in Philadelphia North American. Called for by the prevailing manner of carrying their skirts while walking.)

Oh, women,
In our hours of ease,
Uncertain, coy
And hard to please,
Why do you
Hold your dresses so,
When on the streets
You're pleased to go?

Say, ladies,
Are you quite aware
The way you hold them
Makes folks stare
And wonder
Not a little bit,
If they are made
So tight to fit?

Or are you
To their snugness blind,
Because you cannot
See behind,
To learn why people
Grim and pause?
Or do you
Do it "just because?"

If you are
Thin it's not so bad,
When you are somewhat
Thickly clad;
But if you
Have a figure—why,
Words fail to tell
What meets the eye.

Dear woman,
Whose're it be
That makes the visions
Which we see,
Correct it.
Please, this very day,
And hold your skirts
Some other way.

UNKNOWN MAN IS FOUND DEAD

Early arrivals up town this (Thursday) morning saw a ghastly sight at Undertaker Biglin's establishment. A man with his clothing on lay stretched out on a board dead. The blackened face, slightly open eyes and mouth, drops of moisture on the skin and hands tied with a chord across the breast, formed a sinister object around which a crowd of men assembled inquiring for particulars.

The dead man was brought in from Inman early this morning. He is unknown. Yesterday evening he landed in Inman on a stock train. He bought a ticket there for O'Neill, evidently intending to go out on the night passenger. He sat down upon the depot platform and shortly it was observed that the man had fallen over dead. Coroner Kline was summoned from O'Neill and an inquest held. The verdict was heart disease. A little incident occurred which caused some suspicion of suicide. The stranger was sitting near the station pump and when someone came for a drink he remarked that they better wash the cup as he had taken medicine from it.

The dead body is in the charge of Mr. Biglin, who is endeavoring to learn something to identify it. There was nothing about the clothing to disclose his name and the only things found about his person were 25 cents, the railroad ticket and two small pieces of lead-pencils. Two strangers who were in the city this morning said they had seen this man at Chadron and at Valentine. Mike Kirwin also thinks he recognizes him as belonging in Valentine and that he believes his name is Mike Fitzgerald. It is also stated indefinitely that a brother-in-law of the dead man, William Cavanaugh by name, lives near Valentine. Mr. Biglin has wired to that town but has received no word at this writing. The man is rather tall, sandy mustache and was poorly clad.

Later—Mr. Cavanaugh came down from Valentine Friday. He says the dead man is a stranger to him.

Admission: Reserved seats 50c, general 35c, children 20c. Tickets on sale at Wilson's drug store.
