Last Wednesday evening the Degree of Honor gave an entertainment at their hall for the benefit of its members and families. A pleasant evening was spent in the rendition of a musical and literary program. The McGreevy orchestra furnished the music and recitations and singing was provided by a number of children.

An overflow of the standpipe Monday covered the court-house hill with ice and did some damage to the trees in the court-house yard. Water flowed from the pipe at the top and was carried by the wind in a spray settling on the trees and freezing. The weight of the ice broke off many branches and snapped the trunks of trees close to the ground.

The Christmas season was observed at the Methodist and Presbyterian churches on Monday evening when Santa Claus appeared to make his annual distribution of presents to eager, expectant children. Music appropriate to the occasion also was a feature of the exercises and it was made a very pleasant time especially for the younger folks.

J. H. Peeler has painted the old Ward hardware store inside and out and it now presents a very nice appearance. He has also added to his stock and has more goods on the way and when they arrive he will have a complete line of heavy and light hardware with which to supply the demands of his customers. The Frontier wishes him success in the business.

Although having very bad weather to contend with the entertainment given by the Philomathean Debating society last Saturday evening was quite well attended and the society realized enough proceeds to defray the expenses attached. The program was of interest and those who took part carried their parts well.

The city hog buyers, Messrs. Campbell, Fallon and Ryan Bros., each have $10 that they don't know from whence it came. Three $10 bills were enclosed in three separate envelopes and dropped in the O'Neill post office addressed to each of these gentlemen. As no letters of explanation accompanied the money the receivers of the gifts can't tell who the generous individual is.

The holiday trade was something enormous with the merchants and shopkeepers of O'Neill. While buying was heavy for ten days previous to Christmas the greatest rush came on Monday, when the stores were crowded with people all day and the clerks had all the trade they could handle. In fact, the rush in the afternoon was so great that the stores had to adopt the barber plan and wait upon customers in turn. It is estimated that $3,000 in cash sales of Christmas goods was made Monday.

J. C. Addison was in from the Mineola country Monday with hogs. Mr. Addison reports the spread of the hog disease in his country and says it recently broke out in his herd by a sick hog wandering into his place from a neighbors. It would seem that men who have diseased hogs would take care of them so that the disease would not be carried by sick hogs roaming about over the prairie. Another way Mr. Addison thinks, the disease is perpetuated is by hauling the dead hogs out and letting them lie on the ground. Animals dying of disease should be burned, or at least buried.

ST. MARY'S CONVENT A FINE BUILDING

Through the courtesy of Brother Stander, The Frontier editorial staff recently was shown through the new Catholic school building, St. Mary's convent, by Mr. Theodore Piekbroek, who recently came here from the Rosebud country to assume the care of the building. We were started in at the furnace room in the basement and piloted through the myriads of chambers and apartments, some in the crude state of brick and mortar, others in the hands of the carpenters, some turned over to the painter and still others shedding a ray of resplendent glory fresh from the hand of the maker. The architectural editor feels that he is undertaking a task smaller only than the construction of such a structure when he takes his pen in hand to describe it. In the further corner of the basement to the left of the center arch is the furnace, a double concern of iron and pipes and thermometers and registers; here pipes extend to every room and hall in the building and conduct the hot water. The convent pays $5,000 for the privilege of heating itself, saying nothing about the cost of fuel. Adjoining the furnace room on the right is apartments for laundry not yet completed. On the south from the corner from which we start is a large room for boys to play in. Following a spacious hall to the right various rooms and apartments are seen—kitchen, pantries, storerooms and the girls' playroom to the farther side, similar to the one for the boys on the left. Leaving the basement and on the floor above is found the school rooms, music rooms, reception room and other apartments. The finishing work here is of the finest. The floors—as in the basement—are of hard maple. The stairways, balustrades, doors and entire woodwork is of the best material and the work of the highest grade of carving and constructing. The school rooms are well designed to make comfortable and pleasant surroundings for both pupil and teacher. They are large, well lighted from nature's own illuminary and designed for warmth in winter and coolness in summer. The reception room is to the left of the main entrance. On the third floor, after passing varied apartments we were ushered into the chapel. This department is the most richly finished of any in the building, the walls and ceiling being beautifully trimmed in fresco designs. There are three figures beautifully designed in harmoniously blended colors on the ceiling and an arch at the altar painted in rich and delicate colors. The frescoing is the work of an Omaha artist and is very fine. The fourth floor is occupied by two large dormitories at either end of the building and smaller storage apartments between. There is much work to be done yet before the convent will be rounded out a complete building, but the end is near enough that it is easy to see that St. Mary's convent is a magnificent structure and justly the pride of those who have been instrumental in having it built. There is an expense of about $50,000 attached to the erection of the convent.

The Frontier wishes to call the attention of those who may be going to have a public sale soon or later to the fact that The Frontier has the best equipped establishment in this section of Nebraska for turning out good attractive sale bills in any size. A matter of a dollar or two in the cost of advertising doesn't amount to anything to the one who is going to have a sale. What he wants is advertising that will draw a crowd and when he has a crowd the property will sell. The Frontier gets up advertising matter that people will look at because it doesn't make two alike and people will not overlook your bill when hung up because somebody else has bills just like yours. If you want anything advertised The Frontier can give you the widest publicity.

The board of supervisors has been in session a few days this week settling up affairs preparatory to closing business for the year.
 Among other important matters that have occupied the board's attention is the settlement with W. R. Butler, ex-county attorney. The board accepts in final settlement with Mr. Butler $151.84, although the apparent shortage is $278. The settlement involves a credit in Mr. Butler's favor of $59 sheriff returns which he claimed at the settlement had been paid to the county, but which previously he had claimed that he had never charged the county one cent on.
 Thus ends the Butler case. The Frontier has endeavored to keep the history of this affair straight before the public and the facts are now generally known throughout the county, the untiring efforts of the shining reformers who are putting on fat fried from a mesa of corruption to the contrary notwithstanding. To the members of the board of supervisors who have chased this thing to its legitimate end and the voters of the county owe an enduring debt of gratitude.
 We might add in this connection that Art Mullen, the gentleman about to be inaugurated county attorney for the ensuing term, was offered the opportunity of checking up Mr. Butler at $5 a day by the board, but he refused to do it.
 Christmas was appropriately observed by the churches of O'Neill. Mass was celebrated at 6 o'clock Tuesday morning at the Catholic church and again at 8 and 10:30 o'clock. There was also a fine musical program at each mass. The church was ablaze with lights and beautifully decorated and the sanctuary crowded with early worshippers. The sisters of St. Mary's convent introduced a new and impressive feature in decorations. In front of the altar to the left of the church they arranged a representation of the Babe of Bethlehem as He lay in the manger with Joseph and Mary standing by. A row of green and red tumbrels filled with water was placed along the front of the altar and a lighted candle by each reflected a beautiful light. The manger filled with hay, the life like imagery of the babe and Joseph and Mary with the beautiful lights blazing about the altar made a very pretty scene.

HYMENEAL.

"Therefore shall a man leave his father and mother and cleave unto his wife, and they twain shall be one flesh." The divine injunction has come in remembrance to the young people of Holt county at this Christmas tide as not before for many months. An even dozen marriages have been celebrated since the holiday season begun. The Frontier last week reported those that occurred up until Wednesday and we complete the list this week. Those who have ventured upon the matrimonial career since our last issue or procured license for the same are:

Mr. Commodore Crawford of Lynch to Miss Julia Hartland of Redbird.
 Mr. Harry Hubbard to Miss Nellie Richardson, both of Chambers; wedding celebrated at Hotel Evans Christmas day, Judge Selah officiating.
 Mr. William A. Peters of Burwell to Miss Minnie Carrol of Amelia, license issued.
 Mr. Hay W. McClure to Miss Bertha Trussell, both of Chambers; license issued on Monday and wedding occurring on Christmas.

 Mr. Fred Dobney of Stuart to Miss Minnie Marlow of Atkinson, license issued.
 Mr. W. F. Feher to Miss Dora Roth, both of Atkinson, Rev Rominger officiating.

The Frontier offers congratulations to the young people who have decided that it is not good for man to dwell alone and trusts that the days and years to come may all have in store for them the same joy as the wedding day.

TROUBLE FOR TREASURER HENRY

Some time last spring the Holt County Independent filed claims against Holt county aggregating $457.90. At a meeting of the county board in July the bills were taken up and allowed in part. The Independent company appealed the case to the district court and it was tried last month, a judgment being rendered against the county for $390.04 and costs. Just what is to become of this case is now before the county board. The county fathers appear to be dissatisfied with the judgment of the court and are considering the advisability of taking the case to the supreme court, but much trouble seems to be in store for them. From the record it appears that judgment was rendered in the case Nov. 27 and that the same was on the 30th day of November assigned to the First National bank of this city, and County Treasurer Henry on Dec. 3 paid the judgment and costs into the office of the clerk of the district court, and the clerk on December 5 paid the money out to the bank. This action on the part of the treasurer seemed a little rapid for the board who are unaccustomed to such apparent hasty transactions.

The action of the treasurer brought an investigation of the facts by the board. When Mr. Henry was questioned on the subject he stated that he used to pay the judgment, money collected by him as treasurer on a judgment levy made by the county board to certain judgments held by P. C. Corrigan and others against the county. The records show that the judgment is paid and if it be permitted to stand and the county should attempt to take the case to the supreme court it would there be dismissed, the judgment having been paid. The board before it can take the case to the supreme court must have the record of the payment of the judgment set aside. The payment by the treasurer under such circumstance give the board good reasons to call in question the honesty of his official act. The apparent haste with which he paid the judgment; the unlawful and unauthorized taking of money collected for a certain specific purpose and the payment of it out on a judgment just rendered—and that too without consulting the board of supervisors—leads one to believe that he was a party to a scheme concocted in some dark and shaded dell in the dead hour of night to prevent the county from having the case reviewed in the supreme court. Things have come to a pretty pass when the county treasurer can be induced to become a party to such an unlawful and unauthorized act. What must be the pressure on him when he will manipulate the funds of the county. We understand the treasurer is now much concerned over his doings and that he is making strenuous efforts to induce the board not to take the case to the supreme court, and has called to his assistance County Attorney-elect Mullen, who was the paid attorney of Eves, to advise the board that the case cannot be reversed by the supreme court. He advised the board that he would dismiss the case if it was taken to the supreme court as soon he was qualified county attorney.

 One member of the board, in expressing himself on the case, ventured the opinion that before they got through "lightning would strike the high places."
 The board is very much dissatisfied with the overruling of the motion for a new trial by Judge Westover in the absence of the attorney for the county, Mr. Dickson being out of town having been excused by the court, and County Attorney McCutcheon in the city and not even sent for. These, and many other similar circumstances lead the board to believe that they are up against the real thing.
 The question now is, will the board run the county or will it be run by the ring?
 This afternoon, after the above was put in type, the county board adopted a resolution, the preamble of which recited the facts set forth in the above article and severely censuring the treasurer for his action in the matter, winding up with the following paragraph:
 "Therefore, be it resolved by this board that the payment of said judgment be repudiated and his payment be not confirmed, sanctioned, or approved, and that the county attorney is hereby instructed to take such steps as once as may be necessary to have the records of payment of said judgment by said treasurer set aside as unauthorized and unlawful that the same may not be binding on the county."
 So it would seem after a perusal of the resolution that Mr. Henry overreached his authority as treasurer and will probably have to pay back into the treasury the money he so hastily paid Mr. Eves on his judgment.
