50,000 AMERICAN HORSES WANTED

Kansas City, Mo., December 23—Capt. Heygate, of the British army, is purchasing 50,000 cavalry horses and mules for the English forces in South Africa. He came here more than a year ago to buy horses and mules for the British army, but he was ordered home a short time ago, because it was thought that the Boer war over. But the unexpected renewal of hostilities has made the purchase of more horses and mules absolutely necessary.

As fast as the animals are inspected and bought they will be sent to New Orleans and shipped to Cape Town, Durban and New London in British transports, some of which are now on their way to the United States. One shipment of the animals will be taken to South Africa by Lieut. David B. Moberly, leaving New Orleans soon after January 1. Lieut. Moberly said:

"By the time the horses and mules are landed in South Africa they cost the British Government $360 a head.

"That is a large price for an animal which will be fit for service only six weeks. Most of the animals die because of the change of climate. They must cross the equator in going to South Africa, and the torrid heat of the tropics kills them rapidly. The average death rate on ship board is thirty two to the 1000.

"Forty days after a horse is purchased in Kansas City it is landed in South Africa. So great is the demand for horses at the front that it is impossible to give them the needed rest after landing before putting them into service. Consequently they go to the front in a weakened condition, and not getting a sufficient amount of food, they soon die.

"Since the beginning of the Boer war England has purchased over 100,000 head of horses and mules in the United States. It required sixty-five ships to carry them from New Orleans to South Africa. Government transports will be kept very busy from now on carrying the horses which England will need in South Africa, and which have been ordered purchased in the United States. Gen. Baden-Powell now has 25,000 mounted police, and it is proposed to mount 50,000 of the imperial infantry. England has discovered that her soldiers must be mounted to be able to cope with the Boer, who gets over the country with alarming rapidity."

The Alaskan and Klondike gold output for the year is estimated at $25,725,000.

The Boers captured 555 men and 18 officers of the force of Gen. Clements.

For family use in numberless ways Ballard's Snow Lintiment is a useful and valuable remedy. Price, 25 and 50 cents. P. C. Corrigan.
