It was fusion and confusion.

Thompson, Powers, Barry and defeat.

Wanted—A scarecrow for 1904. Address National Democratic Party.

Our beef eating article of last week seems to have stirred up the cellar sheet.

In many old time populist strongholds no township caucuses have been held by that party this year.

A vote for Judge Kinkaid is a vote to sustain the splendid administrations of Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt.

The man who makes an effort to make tax reform a party issue, thereby advertises his insincerity. He can't be trusted.

A popocrat can accomplish but little in a republican congress. Vote for Kinkaid and give the Big Sixth a chance at the pie counter.

The World-Herald is not pleased with our alteration of the three P's and three C's. It was too true to be appreciated by that propounder of palpably false policies.

The old line populists have taken to the woods; the dose of democracy prepared by the fusion medicine mixers at Grand Island was too too strong for them to swallow.

There is nothing about the republican platform this year to befuddle the average voter. Stripped of all the outside flourishes of oratory it is simply: "Abundant work and good wages to be perpetuated."

Massachusetts democrats have solemnly declared in favor of a reduction of the tariff on hides. There has been so many democratic hides hung on the fence that they ought to be satisfied with the present supply.

Hon. George D. Follmer has introduced many reforms in the management of the Land Commissioner's office and now has that department in better shape than ever before in the history of the state.

The prohibition congressional convention for the Sixth district is called to meet in Valentine, Neb., on Monday, October 7, 1902, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Congress. Each county is entitled to five delegates.

Would it not be the height of indiscretion for the busy and prosperous producers of this wonderful country to heed the calamity cry of the democrats and stop in the march of progress for the sole purpose of "making a change?"

Bryan's former doleful prophecies of a continued fall in prices under the gold standard echoing down the corridors of time continue to proclaim him a false prophet and discounts his present day utterances on other "paramount" issues.

Southern Democratic leaders loudly claim that they are not at a loss for issues in the present campaign. That is true, but the ones they are now struggling over have been dead since the surrender of General Lee's forces at Appomattox.

The memory of four years of fusion mismanagement of state affairs does not incline the sober minded citizen to vote for a return to power of the hypocritical horde of popocratic grafters pried loose from the public treasury by the avalanche of 1900.

Our wind-jamming friends have failed to find an issue for this campaign. It is too soon after the rank record of the fusion state officials for their hypocritical howls about railroad taxation to be taken with any seriousness by the people. It won't work, and no one knows it better than the aforesaid wind-jammers.

Senator Jones, of Arkansas, the "democratic Moses," who has never yet in his career tasted the sweet fruits of national victory, is busily engaged in a claiming contest. He has already attached to the democratic congressional column all the close districts in the north, south, east and west, and is now awaiting advices from Porto Rico and Hawaii. Senator Jones ought to make good once in a while for he has been in training many moons as a rainbow chaser.

"The democratic party can not stand the tests of time and experience. Its assertions are always denied by the event. It is always explaining why it was wrong." There is a great deal in that. The democratic party does not wear well. Occasionally it flashes up a policy which is attractive to thoughtless people, but before election day comes, their wiser neighbors will argue them out of it, so no one is harmed. But if by some accident, the democrats win the country suffers and the party gets into disrepute.

The only federal law ever passed for the regulation of trusts was passed by a republican congress. Don't overlook that fact. The democrats subsequently had control of congress, as well as of the presidency, but not only did they fail to pass anti-trust laws through their congress but their president and Attorney-general failed to execute the laws that actually were on the statute books, placed there by a republican congress. When democrats talk about the great things the democratic party would do against the trusts, just spring that record on them.

The barometer of prosperity is steadily showing an upward tendency. Treasury receipts from customs indicate the purchasing inclination of the people, and measured by this test national prosperity has been rising ever since the passage of the Dingley law. The increase in customs receipts for the current month thus far exceeds by $2,500,000 that of the corresponding period a year ago. The accumulation of gold in the treasury vaults has now reached the sum, unprecedented in this country, of $580,000,000. An abundant harvest is yet to be gathered. Truly are these republican years of fatness.

Every student of political economy knows that the so-called trusts are the result of present wonderful industrial conditions. It is simply evolution. Just as the individual manufacturer, in his small shop or house, gave place to the joint-stock company and the factory system, so the combination of factories and plants succeeds the smaller corporation. President Roosevelt rightly says they will be wonderful benefit to the county if handled by prudent men in the right manner. The republican party has never been found wanting in an emergency.

The democratic campaign committee announces that it is short of orators for the campaign. The republican party is held responsible for this dearth of democratic spell-binders. In 1896 there were calamity howlers to be found on every street corner, insisting that the "crime of '73" had plunged the country into distress and that "16 to 1" was the only remedy. We had "Coin" Harvey and his financial primer, and a host of other financial experts to aid Mr. Bryan in his free silver campaign. There was Jones of Arkansas, Hogg of Texas, James Hamilton Lewis of Washington, Gov. Altgeld and Buck Hendrickson of Illinois, Sockless Simpson of Kansas, Teller of Colorado, Stewart of Nevada, George Fred Williams of Massachusetts, Charley Towne of Minnesota, and a host of other picturesque orators and teachers of finance. They made the country ring with their dismal forebodings of what would follow the firmer fixture of the gold standard. But few of these orators are to be heard today in connection with the democratic campaign. The republican party by the revival of protection and the establishment of the gold standard, has restored prosperity and even the democratic calamity howlers of 1896 and 1900 have become busy with other and more remunerative employment. Tom L. Johnson, the picturesque mayor of Cleveland, is the only old-time democratic spell-binder to be heard in the campaign, and he is Bryan's heir to the presidential nomination. Mr. Bryan is busy making money with his newspaper and lecturing. He has little time to spare to the cause of the democratic party. "Coin" Harvey is coining wealth down in Arkansas; James J. Jones, chairman of the democratic national committee has become a trust magnate operating in cotton presses; Charles Towne has made money in Texas oil and now has his office in Wall street where he no longer fears to walk among the gold bugs; Hogg of Texas, has been busy in England, floating Texas oil stock and hobnobbing with royalty; James Hamilton Lewis is too busy handling gold mining properties in the northwest to care whether there is a democratic campaign or a silver mine in the world; George Fred Williams has been discarded by the democrats of Massachusetts; Henry Watterson has turned his attention to the morals of the "four hundred," Dave Hill is at Woolfort's Roost waiting to see what the future will bring forth; Gorman of Maryland is keeping silent; Altgeld is dead; Buck Hendrickson has turned his talents to legitimate fiction; and the democratic committee has to look for a new crop of orators. And this is the work of prosperity and the republican party. They have robbed the democratic party of its most picturesque campaign orators.

THE MILL OWNERS' POSITION.
The Texas Cotton Manufacturers' Association has taken the child labor question up of its own accord, and at Brenham recently adopted the following propositions:
"To the President of the Texas Cotton Manufacturers' Association: Your committee to take in consideration the proposed legislation in Texas on child labor, respectfully begs leave to make the following report:
"1. The cotton mills in Texas are unanimously of the opinion that the working of children under the age of 12 years is unprofitable to the mills and should, so far as practicable, be eliminated.
"2. The cotton mill managements of Texas have never advocated the employment of children of tender years and have only done so in exceptional cases—for instance, when the wages of the child was necessary to the support of the family. This is proved by that of the cotton mills reporting only forty children under 12 years of age were employed by mills working 1,575 hands.
"3. In order that the evils of child labor may be corrected we respectfully recommend that the following agreement be entered into by the mills belonging to this association, and that we use our best endeavor to have it adopted by all Texas mills: (1) No child under 14 years of age shall be allowed to work at night, and no child under 12 years of age shall be allowed to work under any circumstances. (2) Between the age of 12 and 14 years child may work in the daytime only under the following condition: First, that the child can read and write; second that the child has a widowed mother or parents physically incapacitated to support it. This agreement to go into effect Dec. 1, 1902.

We recommend that each of the mills sign the above agreement and that a copy of the same be conspicuously posted in each mill."

The above shows the progress that is being made regarding the sentiment opposed to the employment of child labor. The school room is the place for all children.

Stricken With Paralysis.
Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured.—Geo. R. McDonald, Man, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by P. C. Corrigan.

It Pays To Dip.
Cattle, hogs and sheep and it pays especially to use Lee's Carbolic Dip, made by Geo. H. Lee Co. of Omaha. This Dip is the best of coal-tar dips and is supplied direct from factory at the very low price of 65 cents per gallon in barrels; 75 cents per gallon in 5 gallon cans. Send for Dip Catalogue with testimonials to above named firm.

The Market.
(Special market letter from Nye & Buchanan Co., Live Stock Commission Merchants, South Omaha, Nebraska.)
Three days of this week bring heavy receipts of cattle again. There has never been, however, an over-supply of desirable feeders or killers this season and only the common kinds have been a drug on the market. Wyoming is sending in some pretty thin cattle on account of a shortage of feed. Choice grass beef shows little decline. We quote cornfed beef $6.00 to $8.00; best, heavy range steers $5.00 to $5.40, but there are very few arriving; high grade stockers and feeders $4.40 to $4.75, fair $3.90 to $4.40, common or light-weights $3.40 to $3.80; choice fat cows $3.50 to $4.00, good $3.00 to $3.50; canners and cutters $1.75 to $2.72; stock heifers $2.75 to $3.00; veal $4.00 to $6.00.

Hogs declined 30c last of the week and are barely steady now. Range $7.15 to $7.35.
Sheep receipts still heavy. Chicago market demoralized first of week.

Choice fat lambs scarce, price strong. Feeding lambs plenty and prices about steady with last week. Good ewes steady; yearlings steady.
Killers Feeders
Lambs $ 4.50 5.00 $ 3.65 3.85
Yearlings 3.75 4.00 3.10 3.30
Wethers 3.30 3.50 3.00 3.20
Ewes 2.75 3.15 2.00 2.25
