Summer Catarrh Afflicts Men and Women.

Hon. Judson W. Lyons. Register of the United States treasury, in a letter from Washington, D. C., says:

"I find Peruna to be an excellent remedy for the catarrhal affections of spring and summer, and those who suffer from depression from the heat of the summer will find no remedy the equal of Peruna."-Judson W. Lyons.

No man is better known in the financial world than Judson W. Lyons, formerly of Augusta, Ga. His name on every piece of money of recent date makes his signature one of the most familiar ones in the United States.

Two Interesting Letters From Thankful Women.

Miss Camilla Chartier, 5 West Lexington St., Baltimore, Md.,

"Late suppers gradually affected my digestion and made me a miserable dyspeptic, suffering in-tensely at times. I took several kinds of medicine which were prescribed by different physicians but still continued to suffer. But the trial of one bottle of Peruna convinced me that it would rid me of this trouble, so I continued

Summer Catarrh.

Mrs. Kate Bohn, 1119 Willoughby Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"When I wrote you I was troubled with frequent headaches, dizzy, strange feeling in the head, sleeplessness, sinking feelings, faintness and numbness. Sometimes I had heartburn. My food would rise to my throat after every meal, and my bowels were very irregular.

"I wrote you for advice, and I now take pleasure in informing you that my improvement is very great indeed. I did not expect to improve so quickly after suffering

TORTURING DISFIGURING

Skin, Scalp and Blood Humours

From Pimples to Scrofula From Infancy to Age

Speedily Cured by Cuticura When All Else Fails.

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in Eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled Thead; the facial disfigurements, as in acne and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants, and anxiety of out parents, as in milk crust, tetter and salt rheum,-all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Sonp, Ointment and Resolvent are such stands proven beyond all doubt. No stands proven beyond an doubt. No statement is made regarding them that is not justified by the strongest evi-dence The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy, have made them the standard skin cures, blood purifiers and humour remedies of the civilized wor'd.

Bathe the affected parts with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry, without rubbing, and apply Cuticura Oint-ment freely, to allay itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and, lastly, take Cuticura Resolvent, to cool and cleanse the blood. This com-plete local and constitutional treatment affords instant relief, permits rest and sleep in the severest forms of eczema and other itching, burning and scaly humours of the skin, scalp and blood and points to a speedy, permanent and economical cure when all else fails.

English Kings at Rome.

The interesting historical fact that comes out in connection with King Edward's visit to Rome last week that he is only the third English king to visit the Eternal City. King Aethelwulf went on a pilgrimage to Rome in the year 855. Canute went to Rome in 1026, and some of the correspondence he sent home still exists. Since Canute no other king of England visited Rome until King Edward VII. went there last week.

The Burglar's One Great Mistake.

Small Piece of Carelessness That Put a Temporary Stop to Promising Career-Folly of Trying to Do Good Work With Second-Class Material

"You'd think now, wouldn't you," said the retired burglar, "that a man in my business, if anybody, would test his tools before bringing them into use, and so take no chances with them? You would, sure; but the best men neglect this, sometimes, and I did once, and came to grief.

The lip of my old jimmy had got chipped, and rather than have it drawn out and retempered I had a new one made. I had been doing pretty well along about then and I felt that I could afford it, to say nothing to the common sense of having only the best tools to work with.

That new jimmy was a beauty to under the hand, fine and perfect in every way, apparently, and I never tested it. I tried it on a safe I knew of that seemed to be just waiting for somebody to come along and crack it.

"This safe stood at the top landing of a pair of stairs that led up to the second story of a two-story detached building that was used for a factory of some sort, and that stood on the same lot with the house of the owner in a small country town. I suppose they put it out there so they could tumble it downstairs handy in case of fire.

"It didn't seem much of a safe. It was a loose-jointed, sort of ramshackle-looking old safe compared with what they build nowadays, but it didn't turn out as easy as I thought it was going to.

I wedged the door out a little, to get it started away from the door frame, and then I got the new jimmy in and began

"But the old safe, as I was saying turned out to be tougher than I had expected, and the first thing I knew there was a crack and a break, not in the safe door, but in the handle of my new jimmy-a flaw in the steel-and, standing as I was on that very top step and leaning out over the stairs look at, and well balanced and good at the moment, away I went, clean to

"It was plumb daylight when I came to, and then I was on a work bench on the first floor of this little factory, with the doctor bending over me on one side and the owner of the factory on the other. The owner had found me senseless at the bottom of the stairs, and there I had lain till he picked me up.

"He did his first duty to me, by sending for the doctor, and later he did his duty to the community. was easy to do that, with the handle of my broken jimmy beside me at the foot of the stairs, the part that matched it sticking in the safe, and my old bullseye standing on the top of the strong box.

You see. the one she had after she came home from college went and got married about three months ago, and since then the poor child has really had to wait on herself most of the time. We found a young woman who came here from Washington with excellent recommendations, and for a little while Alice was very happy. She thought she had found a jewel. Annie could button her shoes so lovely, and it seemed to be actually a pleasure for her to be dressed by the new maid, but one day a dreadful thing happened. Alice caught her using her tives.

The next maid Alice got stole one of her diamonds, and that, of course, was very unpleasant. Then she got one who always managed to upset something when she took the poor child's breakfast upstairs to her, and Alice couldn't get used to it. The maid she has now seems to mean well. but she is very inexperienced and often forgets to say 'Miss' when she answers questions. It's got on Alice's nerves, and I don't know what we shall do unless there is a change for the better very soon."

"It's too blamed bad," said Uncle Abner. "I s'pose she's bothered almost as much as you used to be when the cows wouldn't keep from switchin' at the flies while you set there milkin' 'em, eh?"

Her Reason.

Prof. Maxwell, in his tour of the city schools, was quizzing one of the high school classes on the important facts in English history. The class showed the greatest interest in Cromwell's career, and when the superintendent asked what was the most decisive event in his campaign, agreed. with one dissenting voice, that it was the battle of Naseby. But the dissenter-a bright young girl in her teens-had her own opinion, and stuck to it after the discussion had closed.

"Well," said Dr. Maxwell, "Charles I was Cromwell's opponent, and Charles I was certainly defeated at Naseby."

"Yes, he was defeated at Naseby," said the girl with a snap, "but he was beheaded at Whitehall, and beheading is far more serious than defeating."-New York Times.

His Arduous Duties. Capt. Sigsbee tells of a conversation

he once overheard between two marines who were arguing as to who had the least work to do on board a man-of-war. "It's the chaplain," said the first.

"How'd ye make that out?" asked the second. "Because he ain't got no work to do and all day to do it in.' The second marine snorted his disgust. "You ain't go it right, Jack," said he. "It's the cap'n of marines."

"How's that?" "Well, me boy, as you say, the chaplain's got nothin' to do and all day to do it in; but the cap'n of marines he ain't got anything to do and all day to do it in and a lieutenant of marines to help him do it." Fame without money is like a handsome gown on a skeleton.

Some Eminent Bachelors.

Many eminent men whose names are household words and who have left their impress upon the world were bachelors. Beethoven, Schubert, Bellini, Cinarosa and Donizetti, all great German musical composers, were bachelors. John G. Whittier, our American poet, was a bachelor. Kant, the great philosopher; Erasmus, scholar and philosopher; Leibnitz, the German mathematician; Humboldt, the philosopher; Galilei, who discovered the application of the pendulum and that the earth revolves; Hugens, the German astronomer, who discovered Saturn's ring and one satellite; Leibig, the chemist: Dr. Hahnemann, the originator of homeopathy; Dr. Franz Joseph Gail, the originator of phrenology, and Guericke, the inventor of the air pump, were all bachelors.

Coffee Tried and Found Guilty.

No one who has studied its effects on the human body can deny that coffee is a strong drug and liable to cause all kinds of ills, while Postum is a food drink and a powerful rebuilder that will correct the ills caused by coffee when used steadily in place of coffee.

An expert who has studied the subject says: "I have studied the value of food and the manufacture of food products from personal investigation and wish to bear testimony to the wonderful qualities of Postum Cereal Coffee. I was an excessive coffee drinker, although I knew it to be a slow poison. First it affected my nerves and then my heart, but when I once tried Postum I found it easy to give up the coffee, confirmed coffee flend though I was.

"Postum satisfied my craving for coffee, and since drinking Postum steadily in place of the coffee all my troubles have disappeared and I am again healthy and strong.

"I know that even where coffee is gamicted with Thompson's Eye Water not taken to excess it has bad effects on the constitution in some form or other, and I am convinced by my investigation that the only thing to do if health and happiness are of any value The only positive cure for Drunkenness, to one is to quit coffee and drink Pos-tum."
