Notes From Elsewhere

Ainsworth Star-Journal: Mrs. Lamoreaux and children came over from Keya Paha county and on Sunday morning boarded the train at this point for O'Neill to meet her husband on his return trip form Omaha markets, where he had been with 1,000 head of cattle.

The corn crop is reported to exceed the expectations generally throughout the country, especially in the territory north of Stuart between here and the Niobrara river, says the Ledger. Frank Hughes, living near Dustin, says that his corn will average from thirty to fifty bushels per acre, oats yielding as high as forty and fifty bushels. He reports that the good corn, out of the way of the frost, exceeds both the good and bad yields of place four and a half miles southwest previous years. The rye crop throughtout the county is lighter than usual. Next Monday she, with her adopted Joe Dennis of Cleveland, who is farm- son Mert, goes with her son Fred to ing on a big scale and who has the Kinkaid farm fourteen miles from here, has threshed a piece of oats that brought eighty bushels to the acre. Another piece averaged sixty bushels. Mr. Bloom of the Bloom & Haisch ranch reports an immense crop of wheat, oats, rye and corn.

CLOAK AND SUIT SALE

ATURDAY, October 10, I will show to the the trade of O'Neill and Holt county the largest stock of Cloaks and Ladies' Tailored Suits ever opened to the trade. It will be a treat to come to my cloak parlor and make your fall selections, as there are very few places in eastern cities that show such a fine selection of up-to date garments as I do. I have been successful the past seasons in showing to the trade the best, the latest in style, and the cheapest garments in this city. I promise you I am better prepared this tall than ever before; and furthermore, every garment carries the maker's guarantee as to make, fit and style.
