The Frontier is not boosting any preferred candidate for Senator Millard's toga, but it don't know of any man in any party in Nebraska that could do the state more good in the national capitol than Editor Rosewater of the Bee. Rosewater has enemies galore, true enough, but he also has some friends and can "scrap" any man or set of men to a finish for what he believes to be right. He is on the Roosevelt side of railroad legislation, another strong point in his favor.

Never had the people of America more reason to be thankful to Almighty God for blessings vouchsafed than on this Thanksgiving day. Despite our errors and failures and short comings divine providence has dealt graciously the past year. Our barns and storehouses are full, the machinery of industry moves without a check and no wars nor famines nor pestilences nor commotions disturb the happiness and prosperity of the people. To Him who rules in the affairs of men, let due praise and reference be given.

Touching the announcement that the senate had yielded to the president's demand for railroad rate regulation, the Sioux City Tribune observes a point frequently overlooked: "But if ALL the newspapers of the United States had refused to give Roosevelt any support until it became manifest that he would win the fight, would the railroads and their senators have found an insurmountable public opinion in their way? If EVERYBODY had waited for the band wagon to come along, would there have been any band wagon? It is well not to lose sight of those who fought the real fight for Roosevelt. And those who waited till the tide of victory had turned before taking sides, should be branded the cowards or traitors they are."

Fremont Tribune: Lee Herdman, who for long has been a prominent democratic oracle, is quoted by a Lincoln paper as saying that unquestionably G. W. Wattles of Omaha will be a formidable candidate for United States senator on the republican side. Mr. Wattles will, according to Mr. Herdman, contribute freely of his financial increment, and as he is a rich man it is thought by many this will aid him very materially in his quest of the senatorial toga. It may be taken for granted that there will be some lively campaigning in Douglas county. Senator Millard has been at work there and elsewhere for a long time. He, too has money; and there is Rosewater, who has a newspaper. What will come out of the conflict between these three forces can not be predicted with accuracy. Thus the Omaha candidate is likely to suffer a handicap, even with a horde of gold at his command, for his identity will not be known until late in the campaign. Mr. Wattles is said to be opposed to a convention nomination, though he will not offer opposition openly and publicly, not at this time. Mr. Millard has served notice that he has accepted the situation and, bowing to the will of his party, will favor one next year. In this he evidently has the advantage of Mr. Wattles, for it might as well be known now that the republicans of Nebraska are in 1906 going to repeat the Burkett experiment. Under the new method of popular nominations senatorships are not palpably open to the highest bidders and the fact that a few rich men are looking longingly on the senatorial seat may not mar other aspirants. Senator Burkett did not expend a hundred dollars to get a practically unanimous nomination.

"TWO FELLOWS IN THE THIRD."

The Independent says the only democrats in O'Neill who would subscribe for a democratic paper were one started here as "two fellows in the Third ward." Be that as it may, this reminds us of a little late election history. Early in the summer the writer heard a party of leading citizens of the county who have been lifelong democrats and party leaders discussing the party prospects for the future, and they were a unit for holding a straight democratic county convention and once for all repudiate fusion. The word went out through the county that there would be a straight convention and no fusion.

Then the emissaries of fusion and populism or anything for office and spoils got busy and manipulated affairs so the democratic and populist conventions were called for the same date.

This accomplished the rest was easy. The pops stood for fusion and the democratic camp only needed "making right." By getting pops like McCarthy, Fisher and Shanner and mugwumps and political nondescripts like Johnson and McCafferty on the democratic delegations they captured the convention. The straight democrats showed their contempt and disgust by walking out or staying away altogether. They further and more effectually showed it by using their influence and casting their votes to defeat the mongrel ticket. The head push on the fusion ticket received more than 370 votes less than the fusion nominee for the same office in 1903. Hence there were something over 370 voters like the "two fellows in the Third ward."

The sum of the matter is this: The pop manipulators and grafters wanted to retain the offices at any cost. Their greed and desperation overreached. They could capture the democrat's convention but they couldn't make the democrats vote the ticket. Hence they are down and out—and mad.

ANOTHER "GREATEST."

From the close of the civil war to Spanish-American war the democratic cry was that the tariff problem was greatest before the American people. The republican party long ago disposed of this "greatest" problem and established the varied industries of the nation on a firm footing. From the rise of Mr. Bryan's political star to the calamity that befell him the democratic cry was that the free silver problem was the greatest that confronted the American people. The republican party settled this greatest of problems and gave us a medium of circulation that is worth dollar for dollar anywhere on the globe. From the capitulation of Manila to the final defeat of Bryan, the democratic cry was that imperialism was the greatest problem confronting the American people. The republican party has settled this "greatest" of problems and the country still stands under one flag. The republican party, through the administration, has successfully solved the national problems and has been instrumental in establishing and maintaining manifold peace and prosperity. The democratic party has hampered the work in every way it could but the work has gone on.

The democratic cry now goes up, "the transportation problem is the greatest which confronts the American people." Just as all of these real or imaginary "greatest" democratic problems have been successfully met, so will the transportation problem. The national administration has shown itself capable of handling intricate problems by more than one master stroke, and whatever there is to this present "greatest" problem will be worked out to the good of all.

There is much truth in this comment from the Omaha Bee relative to what is shown by the report of the treasurer of the republican state committee: Of the whole Nebraska delegation in congress, every one of whom holds his place as a republican, only two congressmen came to the front with contributions to help maintain the party organization. There are a lot of others, too, who owe everything to the party, but who return nothing to it. On the other hand, the little office holders who get a meager salary are proportionately the most loyal party subjects and the most liberal contributors to the party. The question naturally presents itself how people who neither have nor look for political favors can be expected to put up to keep the party machinery running when those most signally honored turn deaf ears to all solicitations.

Testimonial Monarch

for the... MALLEABLE

O'Neill, Nov. 23.—To Mr. Neil Brennan: After thoroughly testing the Monarch Malleable Range bought of you, I freely say there could be no better stove made for general purposes in the kitchen. It is the best baker and requires less fuel than any stove I ever used. Mrs. Peter Donohue.

Monarch Malleable Ranges require no more fuel, no more time and no more labor to do the work after ten or fifteen years' use than they do at first. The satisfaction they give is not alone for the first year of their use but continues the same year after year. Those contemplating buying a cook stove or range should see the Monarch before they buy.

We still have the biggest stock at the lowest prices of hardware, tinware, farm implements, wagons, buggies, lamps, fancy dishes, silverware, paints and oils.

NEIL BRENNAN

Sells More of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy Than of All Others Put Together.

Mr. Thomas George, a merchant at Mt. Elgin, Ontario, says: "I have had the local agency Chamberlain's Cough Remedy ever since it was introduced into Canada, and I sell as much of it as I do on all other lines put together. Of the many dozens sold under guarantee, I have not had one bottle returned. I can personally recommend this method as I have used it myself and give it to my children and always with the best results." For sale by P. C. Corrigan.

Poor Farm Notice.

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the County Clerk O'Neill, until noon on Saturday the 23rd day of December 1905 for the sale to Holt County of 320 acres of land to be used as a County poor farm, said land to be not over five miles from a railroad station in said county, said proposals to give section, township and range in which the land is situated. All bids to be sealed and marked "proposals for poor farm," the Board of Supervisors reserve the right to reject any or all bids, dated O'Neill, Neb. Nov. 21st, 1905.

Son Lost Mother.

"Consumption runs in our family, and through it, I lost my mother," writes E. B. Reid, of Harmony, Me. "For the past five years, however, on the slightest sign of a cough or cold, I have taken Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption which has saved me from serious lung trouble." His mother's death was a sad loss for Mr. Reid, but he learned that lung trouble must not be neglected and how to cure it. Quickest relief and cure for coughs and colds. Price 50c and $1. guaranteed at Corrigan's drug store. Trial bottle free.

John Kurtz, the night foreman at the Northwestern shops at Long Pine, who after a domestic quarrel left home a week ago last Friday with a bottle of strychnine in his pocket and a threat to his family that they would never see him alive again and for whom search parties had since been scouring the country, was found last Saturday within a quarter of a mile of town dead and hideously distorted within a stone's throw of the Northwestern tracks and in sight of his own home and other dwellings and public roads.

The Exact Thing Required For Constipation.

"As a certain purgative and stomach purifier Chamqerlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets seem to be the exact thing required, strong enough for the most robust, yet mild enough and safe for children and without that terrible griping so common to most purgatives," say R. S. Webster & Co., Udon, Ontario, Canada. For sale by P. C. Corrigan.
