Dr. Williams' Pink Pills A Reliable Remedy for the Weak, Ailing and Bloodless.

When the body is weak and the blood thin it is sometimes difficult to find the cause unless a wasting illness has preceded, or the sufferer happens to be a girl on the verge of womanhood.

Obscure influences, something unhealthful in one's surroundings or work. may lead to a slow impoverishment of the blood and an enfeeblement of the whole body. When a serious stage has been reached there seems to be nothing that will account for it.

Mr. C. E. Legg, of Tipton, W. Va., has found a successful method of treating weakness and bloodlessness. He says:

"I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for weakness caused by a lingering malarial fever that began in the spring of 1896. The worst effects of this were indigestion and a bad state of my blood. I was anemic, as the doctors say. People generally would say that I didn't have blood enough, or that I didn't have the right kind of blood; mine was too thin. My kidneys and liver were out of order. I was badly annoyed by sour risings from my stomach. There was a good deal of pain, too, in my back and under my right shoulder blade."
"How long did these troubles last?"

"For over two years. For four months of that time I was nuder the care of a physician, but his medicine did me no good. Meanwhile I learned of the cures that had been wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

they are helping others to whom I have ommended them. They have real merit and I know of nothing that would take their place."

From the Youth's Companio The four old captains of Salt Marsh after carefully studying the attractions offered by the mind reader who was to hold forth in the town hall, decided to attend the entertainment.

'We can go right from the postoffic when mail's in," said Captain Gregg, most adventurous of the four, "and there doesn't seem to be any need to consult our women folks, so far as I know. Most likely we sha'n't stay more'n a few min-

They were all agreed as to the advisability of this plan, and the next evening saw them seated in the last row, with interest written on their faces.

After a few preliminary exhibitions, which caused the scattered audience to gasp and wriggle, the mind reader said in solemn tone:
"There is one person in this audience who has been thinking ever since he came in here of a person who is perhaps the strongest influence in his life—a small, determined looking woman, with eyes that snap and—"

At this point the four old captains rose as if moved by a single as if moved by a single spring and filed from the hall. When they reached the safety of the steps, Captain Gregg turned to the others and spoke in a hoarse whis-

A Sane View of Divorce. From Harper's Weekly. Nothing else than a fairly liberal divorce code could hope at present to win adoption by very many of the states, but it would help matters somewhat if the states that go in for easy divorce should put their bars up and make it harder for outsiders coming into them for divorce purposes to acquire a residence. Whether even that much can be accomplished is doubtful, so hard is it to convince any "You owe your cure to these pills?" doubtful, so hard is it to convince any considerable number of our easy-going "I certainly do, and I also know that people that it is their duty to constrain partners to stay married after they are tired of their bargain. Married women are well protected by our laws as it is. It is very hard for a man to get loose from a lawful wife who has not misbehaved, unless she is willing. The rights of the children of a marriage that has collapsed deserve to be guarded with the utmost care, and perhaps the courts should distinguish as observers always do, between childless couples who seek divorce and couples who have children.

Inconstant men who hire their wives to get divorces in order that they may themselves be free to marry some one else should be denied this enlargement of their privileges. A relation that is only meretricious is much less mischlevous to society than the successive "marriages" of such persons. If they must have variety in domestic companionship, it is as well for them, and much better for their relatives and friends that they should find tives and friends, that they should find it outside of marriage. The chief differ-ence between adultery that has been legalriage, and adultery that has been regar-riage, and adultery that hasn't, is that in the latter case the sinners suffer the in-conveniences of their sin, and in the form-er case they shift a large share of them on society.

Treating Wrong Disease.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion or prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent, or over-busy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his and indifferent, or over-busy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some uterine disease. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering encourages this practice until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse, by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debili-

For over-worked, "worn-out," "run-down," debili-tated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women gen-erally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being un-equaled as an appetizing cordial and re-storative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, chorea, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Longest Single Span in the World. One of the most remarkable bridges in the world, not only from the engineering point of view, but also from its relations as a link in transcontinental traffic, will be that now under construction across the St. Lawrence river, about six miles above the city of Quebec and 170 miles below Montreal, says Technical World Magazine for April. It will contain the longest span in the world, and will be the link that will render possible another all-Canadian trans-continental railway. The structure, it is supposed, will be built in two years. All railways will be entitled to its use. In order to avoid obstruction to ocean-going craft, the bridge is not built on a series of piers extending across the stream, but consists technically of two great cantilevers carry a huge central expanded span having a total strength in the clear—that is, between the towers at either side—of 1,800 feet, which is 90 feet longer than each of the two spans of the famous bridge over the Firth of Forth near Edinburgh,

TERRIBLE SCALP HUMOR.

Badly Affected with Sores and Crusts -Another Cure by Cuticura.

"About ten years ago my scalp became badly affected with sore and itching humors, crusts, etc., and extended down behind the ears. My hair came out in places, also. I was greatly troubled; understood it was eczema. Tried various remedies, so called, without effect. Saw your Cuticura advertisement, and got the Cuticura Remedies at once. Applied them as to directions, etc., and after two weeks, I think, of use, was clear as a whistle. I have to state also that late last fall. October and November, 1904, I was suddenly afflicted with a bad eruption, painful and itching pustules over the lower part of the body. I suffered dreadfully. In two months, under the skillful treatment of my doctor, conjoined with Cutlcura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, I found myself cured. H. M. F. Weiss, Rosemond, Christian Co., Ill., Aug. 81, 1905."

Mme. Patti called at the studio to seek instruction in the method that enabled De Reszke at 55 to sing with the charm of earlier days. Lo, the Rich Red Man!

From the Metropolitar Magazine. Indian Territory as a name suggests vain things to the mind of the average dweller east of the Mississippi. The Indian Territory is a territory with very few Indians. The five civilized (and the term civilized is to be taken literally here) tribes—Cherokees, Choctaws, Creeks, Chickasaws and Seminoles—comprise about 86,000 persons. Only a small portion are full bloods, the rest being descendants of the negro and mulatto slaves of the era before 1865; mixed breed Indians of various shades of dilution up to persons who cannot be distinguished from whites, cannot be distinguished from whites, and white men and women who have been adopted into the tribes. And there are fragments of eight tribes, aggregating about 2,000 persons, in the territory's northeast corner. As against these 88,000 Indians, actual and constructive, there are six times as many whites in the Indian Territory. These, of course, constantly increase through immigration, while the Indians, restricted to the growth in excess of births over deaths, remain practically stationary.

The Flight Through the Sewer. 'rom "Reminiscences of a Long Life" by Carl Schurz in the March McClure's.

While we were thus engaged in taking counsel, we heard above us a dull, rumbling noise as from the wheels of vehicles and the heavy tread of great masses of men, from which we concluded that the Prussians were now entering the fortress and occupying the gates and ramparts. We also heard the striking of a church clock which gave the hour, our bench being near one of the manholes so that the sound of the upper world reached us without much difficulty. About $ o'clock in the evening it began to rain, so heavily that we could clearly hear the splashing of the water as it poured down. At first it seemed to us that the rain storm would be favorable to our plan of escape. But before long the matter appeared in a different light. We feit that the water was rising in our sewer and soon it began to shoot through it with great vehemence like a mountain stream. After a while it flooded the bench upon which we were sitting and reached up to our chests. We also perceived living creatures which suddenly, with great activity, rushed and one of the manholes so that the sound perceived living creatures which suddenly, with great activity, rushed and crawled around us. They were, undoubtedly, rats. "We have to get out," I sald to my companions, "or we shall be drowned." We left our bench and pushed forward. I had hardly advanced a few steps when in the darkness I ran my head against a hard object. I touched it with my hands and discovered that the obstacle was object. I touched it with my hands and discovered that the obstacle was an iron railing. At once the thought came to me that this railing had been put there for the purpose of cutting off in time of siege communication between the interior of the town and the outside through the sewer. This thought, which I communicated at once to my companions, brought us almost to despair. But when I grasped the railing with both hands, as a prisoner may sometimes shake the iron rods of his dungeon window, I noticed that it could be moved a little, and a further examination proved that it did not reach quite down to the bottom, but left a free space of about two feet. Probably the railing was so arranged that it could be pulled up or let down, so that the sewer might be opened for purposes of cleansing and then shut again.

Highways and Highways. From the St. Paul Dispatch.

Years ago, in the early days, before the railroad, states chartered corporations to construct and maintain highways—we called them toll roads, "pikes," in some parts, then-and empowered them to charge toll on all who used them, the state fixing the toll they might demand. Some were made of planks, and were the "plank roads" of the west; others of stone and were the macadamized roads of the east and south. These corporations did what the macadamized roads of the east and south. These corporations did what the state or its subdivisions were unwilling or financially unable to do at the time. They served their day and purpose. Then came a day when men asked why their roads should be made private property and they be made to pay for their use. Why should not the state or the county make these better roads and maintain them? And gradually, as this sentiment spread, the plank roads and the foll roads and the pikes—the last the last of all—became common roads, free to all, kept up by all, and one stage free to all, kept up by all, and one stage of private ownership of highways passed out, leaving only a foundation on which is being built our later movement for "good roads."
