

THE W. C. T. U. CORNER

"For God and Home and Native Land"
MRS. EMMA KELLEY, SUPT.
O'Neill needs a gymnasium.

May twentieth will be observed as temperance Sunday throughout the United States.

Everyone has to deal with the questions of right and wrong each day of their lives. There is no neutral ground. To choose the easy way in preference to the right never has and never will prove safe.

In an article published in "Woman's Home Companion" under the heading "Is the World Growing Better" by Dr. Lyman Abbott; temperance people will find some very encouraging facts. His comparison of intemperance as it existed fifty years ago and today shows the progress that has been made.

The force of heredity is now recognized by the majority of thinking people. A great man was once asked when the training of a child should commence. His reply: "With its grandfather" carries with it food for thought. Pure waters do not flow from contaminated springs. Every generation has the use of a vast store of good or evil habits bequeathed to it by previous generations, and transmits that store, augmented by fresh acquisitions to future ages.

The "Woman's Home Companion" has commenced a battle for the abolishment of child slavery in the United States. This should receive the encouragement and endorsement of every good man and woman. It is stated that there are today nearly three million children under fifteen years of age toiling in mills, factories, mines and sweat shops under conditions that, could you see them with your own eyes, would shock you beyond expression. Think of it fathers and mothers as you look into the faces of your own little ones and picture all those between the ages of four and fifteen laboring from early morn until dark. Every father and mother should voice a protest until such a sentiment is aroused as should abolish the evil. It is a disgrace to the nation.

The following item from a recent publication shows the growth of temperance sentiment in England: Hon. Keir Hardie, leader of the labor party in the House of Commons, has formulated a pledge which every one of the fifty labor members has signed. This pledge is to affect that the signers will drink no alcoholic liquors while the house is in session. Most of the one hundred or more Irish members of parliament have also signed the pledge. This reform promises to make the House of Commons in future practically a temperance organization. It is a prophecy of the time not far distant, when the saloon will cease to be a political power.

There is a great need in our city of a public library and reading room. A place where the boys and young men could congregate. Where good wholesome literature can be had and an evening or afternoon passed away from the temptation of the street and saloon. The boys of today will be the men of tomorrow. As their characters are formed now, so will be the character of our citizens a few years hence. Surely, among our business men there are those who have the future welfare of our city at heart; who are public-spirited enough to see the need of such an institution, and to take the matter up and carry it to completion. A building containing gymnasium rooms, a public library and reading rooms would do much for the moral up lifting of our young people. I believe, if managed on good business principles, it would be a good investment and could be made self supporting. It would also be a good advertisement for our city.

A STORY OF THE ELKHORN.

Major Buchanan Will Add a Chapter to Nebraska History.

Lincoln Journal: Major Buchanan of Waukesha, Wis., is coming to Lincoln the first of June to consult the state records preparatory to writing a history of the Elkhorn valley with particular reference to the construction of the old Fremont, Elkhorn and Missouri Valley railroad. The history will be used in connection with the history of Nebraska. In this connection Frank Burgess, son of the first Indian agent in Nebraska, and a recognized ethnologist, will visit Nebraska and the places where the Pawnee Indians had villages and camps. He will endeavor to supply the Indian names to all the rivers and streams, making the trip from their Nebraska hunting grounds clear to their present home on the southern reservation.

Major Buchanan came to the Fremont, Elkhorn & Missouri Valley railroad as general passenger agent in the early eighties, and his great work was in connection with the settlement of the Elkhorn valley. He advertised the valley, knowing that the only way to get business for his road was to fill the country from which it drained traffic with people. One afternoon in June, 1892, and but a short time before he retired from the passenger department of the road, Major Buchanan was escorting a party to the Black Hills in a private car. Looking back from the car as the fertile acres of the Elkhorn valley were being left behind, he said: "I have done much to attract people to this valley. I told them the land was rich and fertile and that it would increase many times in value. I believed it as firmly when I first began to tell them as I do now. I could have bought many acres of it for myself at prices too low to be believed now. I urged others to buy and they bought. I bought none of it; but it was not lack of faith that prevented me. I was too busy with my work to think about it."

Major Buchanan has many friends in Nebraska who will welcome him back to the state, even though he comes on a short business trip.

Lloyd Gillespie has removed from the rooms over the land office, and has taken up office quarters in the building vacated by Lyman Waterman. The rooms over the land office are being cleaned and papered for the occupancy of Mr. Parker and wife.

The Frontier notes by a recent issue of the Waterloo, Neb., Gazette, published by J. H. Riggs formerly of O'Neill, that his father, A. W. Riggs, died on April 15 at his home in Eddyville, Ia. The senior Mr. Riggs visited O'Neill a number of times and will be remembered by some of our people. Mr. Riggs was the father of Mrs. J. H. Meredith of this city.

The citizens of Butte, and especially the postmistress, were thrown into a state of excitement on April 28 by the discovery that their post office had been robbed and $835 in stamps and $225 in cash stolen. The Gazette said last week that $171 of the stolen money was subsequently found in a coal shed and that it was hoped by this clue to chase down the rest of the plunder.

Rev. Wells will preach at the Episcopal chapel on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

There is a pretty strong demand for cement walk builders around town. Aside from the side walks being put in by individuals, the city is taking upon itself to try some more cross walks made of cement, the one built last summer having proven satisfactory.

R. E. Bowden of Agee sends us a long communication relative to the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic at Lincoln next week. The communication arrived too late for us to get it in the paper. The encampment opens on Tuesday, the 15th, and Mr. Bowden is solicitous that all old soldiers who can attend.

The Ditch company have been running their cattle through the dipping tank located at the stock yards south of the Northwestern tracks. They have about 3,300 head in all that they are putting through the dip before taking them to the ranch. James Ryan has a bunch of about 1,500 that have been put through the tank and were taken to the Ryan place Tuesday. A good sized force of men are at the tanks assisting in the work.

W. S. Grimes and Mr. Perren of Chambers started Monday over the Northwestern for Minneapolis, where they went as the representatives of Chambers township to secure a large road grader to use on the roads over in that country. The roads over south are rendered almost impassable every spring by high water. The township board of Chambers have taken the matter of roads in hand and propose to remedy affairs so far as they can. In this connection, it looks like the county might better expend some of the money going into bridges over the Niobrara river in bettering the highways in the South Folk country.

Joseph V. Waid, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Waid, was married on Sunday at Ewing to Miss Seva Bryan of Newboro, Neb. The young couple came up to the home of the groom's parents north of town that evening and were taken somewhat unawares by a number of young people of the neighborhood who went to the Waid home to serenade the young couple. Congratulations were tendered the happily married young people by the unexpected guests, who were invited in and given some light refreshments. The groom is one of the industrious young men of this community with a reputation any one might be proud of, and The Frontier wishes him and his bride much happiness.

The marriage of Mr. Opie Chambers of Herrick, S. D., to Miss Belle Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bennet Martin of this city, was celebrated at the home of the bride on Tuesday evening, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Kelly, pastor of the Methodist church at Page. A large number of guests were present to witness the marriage, participating in the joys and festivities and feasting of the occasion and offer their congratulations and extend their complements to the bride and groom. The wedding was made one of the most notable occasions of the kind to occur here for some time. The bride, who is one of O'Neill's fairest young ladies, is too well and favorably known here to need any introduction on the part of The Frontier. She has resided here all her life and has been connected more or less with educational work in this city and throughout the county for the past few years, teaching for a number of terms in the O'Neill schools. She is a young lady of ability and many accomplishments, and Mr. Chambers wins a worthy bride. The groom is a newspaper man, being publisher of the Press of Herrick. The parthid Wednesday morning for a short visit at Chicago, Agricultural Society Meeting.

A meeting of the Holt County Agricultural society was held last evening at the office of A. F. Mullen to elect officers and start the project of this fall's events going. The meeting was well attended and a good interest manifested. The officers elected were:

President, P. J. McManus; vice-president, Dave Stannard; secretary, S. J. Weekes; treasurer, J. F. O'Donnell; board of managers, Ed F. Gallagher, O. F. Biglin, D. J. Cronin, John Carr and W. H. Graver.

A new feature was decided upon for the race meeting this year. In addition to the races there will be a thoroughbred stock show, embracing horses, cattle and hogs. For this purpose the society will expend some $1,300 in the erection of exhibition sheds.

The races and live stock show will be held the first week in September.

Too Many Jokes.

Atchinson Globe: Some people never make the most trifling remark without running in a joke. If they call at market to order meat, they get off a joke, although there are so many jokers and jokes that butchers are tired of both. You may think the butcher is very much amused when you ask if his sausage is made of dog meat, but he is not; he will curse you after you are gone for a fool, and there is more sense in what the butcher says than in what you say about dog meat. Butchers have heard the dog meat joke until they almost scream when a fresh idiot rushes in and gets it off. There are certain jokes heard around a printing office; another kind are always heard in a law office, and another kind in stores, so that joking is becoming one of the most dreadful curses of the country. Some of these days a butcher will kill a man for getting off the dog meat joke, not because he cares because of the insult, but because he is so awfully tired of hearing old jokes. The reader of this is invited to take the suggestion to heart, and think it over. Do you joke too much? In all reasonable probability you do. You should quit it.

Notice.

Notice is hereby given that all privy vaults and cesspools be disinfected by quick lime, chloride-of-lime or any standard disinfectant: that all hog pens, yards for cattle and horses, and yards about livery barns be cleaned and piles of decomposing material be at once removed. That the throwing of rubbish such as tin cans, etc., into the street be stopped, and hogs must be removed outside the city if more than one hog is in a pen or that unclean. Failing to comply the law will be invoked as the health of the city demand these precautions, and I ask your assistance. Respectfully, J. P. Gilligan, Health Physician.

I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as the most wonderful medicine in existence." Surest Cough and Cold cure and Throat and Lung healer. Guaranteed by Pixley & Hanley, druggist 50c and $1.
