KIDNEY TROUBLE

Suffered Two Years-Relieved In Three Months.

MR. C. B. FIZER, Mt. Sterling, Ky.,

"I have suffered with kidney and bladder trouble for ten years past.
"Last March I commenced using Peruna and continued for three months. have not used it since, nor have I lelt a pain.

"I believe that I am well and I therefore give my highest commendation to the curative qualities of Peruna."

Pe-ru-na for Kidney Trouble Mrs. Geo. H. Simser, Grant, Ontario,

Can., writes:
"I had not been well for about four years. I had kidney trouble, and, in fact, felt badly nearly all the time.

"This summer I got so very bad I thought I would try Peruna, so I wrote to you and began at once to take Peruna and Manalin.
"I tack only two bettler of Recommendations."

"I took only two bottles of Peruna and one of Manalin, and now I feel better than I bave for some time. "I feel that Peruna and Manalin cured me and made a different woman of me altogether. I bless the day I picked up the little book and read of your Peruna."

It is the Business of the kidneys to remove from the blood all poisonous materials. They must be active all the time, else the system suffers. There are times when they need a little assist Peruna is exactly this sort of a remedy. It has saved many people from disaster by rendering the kidneys service at a time when they were not able to bear their own burdens.

She Has Guided Thousands to Health. How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Mrs. Alice Berryhill.

It is a great satisfaction for a woman to feel that she can write to another telling her the most private and confidential details about her illness, and know that her letter will be seen by a woman only. Many thousands of cases of female diseases come before Mrs. Pinkham every year, some personally, others by mail. Mrs. Pink-ham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years under her direction and since her decease she has been advising sick women free of charge. Mrs. Pinkham never violates the confidence of women, and every testimonial letter published is done so with the written consent or request of the writer, in order that other sick women may be benefited as she has been.

Mrs. Alice Berryhill, of 313 Boyce Street, Chattanooga, Tenn., writes: Dear Mrs. Pinkham:-

"Three years ago life looked dark to me. I had ulceration and inflammation of the female organs and was in a serious condition. female organs and was in a serious condition.

"My health was completely broken down and the doctor told me that if I was not operated upon I would die within six months. I told him I would have no operation but would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. He tried to influence me against it but I sent for the medicine that same day and began to use it faithfully. Within five days I felt relief but was not entirely cured until I used it for some time.

"Your medicine is certainly fine. I have induced several friends and neighbors to take induced several friends and neighbors to take it and I know more than a dozen who had female troubles and who to-day are as well and strong as I am from using your Vegetable Compound."

From the Washington Star.

"Over in New York the other day," said a man who is back and forth a good deal, "I saw a rather gaudy and overdressed young woman sprinting after an elderly man on Broadway. As she ran she kept her rolled umbrella upraised. Her purpose was to catch the elderly man and chastise him with the umbrella. That purpose was obvious to everybody. It was particularly obvious to the elderly man-so obvious obvious to the elderly man—so obvious that he sprinted good and hard to avoid such a disaster. Despite his age, he was the better runner, making allowance, too, for the fact that the young woman was hampered by her skirts and by her very high heels in the sprinting business. After being chased for a block or so the elderly man lumbered into an office building, jumped into an elevator that was fortunately waiting on the ground floor, and went up to one of the upper floors to wait for the thing to blow over.

goo-goo that girl at all. He is one of the solidest and most decent man in all New York-a banker of the most unimpeachable reputation in everything that appertains to a high-grade man. He is the father of a large family of grown daughters, has no pleasure in life except in his own home, is just as far removed morally from the 'gay old dog' class as he is geograph-cally removed from Spitzbergen, and would just about as soon lie down and let a subway car run over him as even dream of flirting with a young woman, or an old woman, or any other kind of a woman on the street or anywhere else. In addition to a sort of cherubic, rosy face, which gives him the constant appearance of smiling, this thoroughly decent elderly banker has a nervous affection of the averbanker has a nervous affection of the eyes which at times causes them to roam about until he gets a certain focus, and when that focus is reached makes it impossible for him to remove his gaze until the momentary paralysis of his orbs has passed If he got that focus fixed on the eye of a yellow dog he couldn't remove it until he'd passed on. And that's how it happened. The young woman with the punitieve umbrella just got the wrong idea, that's all. She had a sort of a chip on her shoulder, and was just waiting for something to happen that would enable her to use her umbrella upon some brutish and Boetian

"These imaginative women, who dream male person. that most of the peripatetic males meet on the street are trying to slip them the goo-goo lamp are becoming mighty frequent and numerous these days, anyhow. You can hardly pick up a paper without reading about some women club-bing some man on the allegation which she excitedly puts forth after it is all over that he has attempted to mash her. I have gone to the bottom of a lot of these cases, and have actually seen plenty of them. I've found that the women are mis-taken in about three cases out of five.

Even the masher doesn't pick out the woman on the street who behaves, and, as for the non-masher, he'd just as soon take a chance on trying to attract the attention of a girl or woman who is going on about her business as he would of knocking a crossing cop's helmet off his head. It was found that this young female person deliberately flirted with men for the purpose of having them 'fall' to her charms, and then, when they addressed her, turned upon them and they addressed her, turned upon them and tried to whang the daylights out of them with her rain-shield. This thing was more than suspected by the police, and they verified it by putting their best-loking detective on the shopping beat generally taken by the young woman with the record for umbrella cases. He met up with the girl in due time, and she gave him the cunnin eye and the cheery smile, and, when he walked over to her and made some trifling remark upon how much some trifling remark upon how much weather there seemed to prevail, she up and tried to get her umbrella into action. The Wild Beasts of New York City.

From the Metropolitan.

As a matter of fact, it is not very generally known that wild trout may be taken and wild game killed within the corporate limits of New York city. Certainly I have found but few that seemed to know that foxes, and not always foxes bred for the purpose, but the genuine wild reynard, are chased on Staten island. The city limits are very extended. A good slice is taken off of Westchester county at the north—the whole of one end of Long island at the east, while Staten island entire is included at the south. There are wooded districts within these boundaries—brushy hills and swampy thickets—some of them well nigh inaccessible. There are fresh water streams and lakes, and there are vast areas of salt water; also, there are wide-set meadows or marsh lands where the waters of ocean and bay and sound swept long ago, and where salt creeks and inlets still make and ebb with the tide. Such haunts as these are ideal, and the creatures that have held them
