The Madison Star-Mail contains this item relative to a former O'Neill boy: Dan Harrington returned Wednesday evening from Buffalo, New York, where he visited his sister, who entered a convent while he was there.

The case in county court against Fred Stormont, who is alleged to have assaulted Justin Spittler "with intent to shoot," set for hearing the 14th, has not been tried, the complaining witness failing to appear for prosecution.

Not the most flattering comments are heard of the Sioux City fair from O'Neill people who attended last week. These enterprises as carried on by most of the big towns now are designed more to get the country people's money than to furnish the visitors entertainment.

O. O. Snyder and daughter, Miss Mabel, left for Lincoln last Sunday morning, where Miss Mabel enters the state university. Mr. Snyder returned home Wednesday evening, and says the heavy rains in the eastern part of the state were very destructive to crops and railroad ties.

The item in this paper last week noting the marriage of William A. Lewis and Mrs. Myrtle Conway gave the address of Mr. Lewis at Amelia. He tells us his home is not Amelia but Neligh, which was also the home of the bride. Mr. Lewis says he is contemplating removing to O'Neill.

County Clerk Simar issued six hunting licenses Monday to a party who came in Sunday evening over the Northwestern in a private car. The party consisted of W. O. Johnson, W.

D. Guilbert, D. M. Tatman, E. H. Tripp and A. A. Tripp, all of Chicago, and W. T. Durbin of Indianapolis. After a chicken hunt over the prairies in this section, the party went west.

News was received here Tuesday of the death by asphyxiation of Andrew Morgan at Sioux City. He was found dead about noon that day in a room in the Stevens block at Fourth and Iowa streets, an open gas jet explaining the cause of death. He has brothers and other relatives living in this county, John and Will Morgan residing near Atkinson, and was a cousin of the Ward boys of this city. John Morgan and Joe McCaffrey went after the remains yesterday.

P. D. Mullen says he has missed a horse and pair of bridles from his livery since the fair. A number of livery horses were tied outside the barn during Thursday night to accommodate the transients. One of them, a gray mare, was missing Friday morning as was also a horse belonging to a farmer. Mr. Mullen thought his horse had got loose and gone back to the pasture where it had been all summer, but he has been unable to locate the animal any place and now thinks she was stolen.

Henry D. Grady, the popular mail carrier on route No. 1, has been off duty for some weeks preparing a neat little cottage home in the northwest part of town to which it has been generally understood he would soon take a bride. Tuesday morning he led to the altar Miss Mary M. Hayes, daughter of John F. and Mrs. Hayes of Atkinson, the wedding taking place at that town. Henry has not been seen around O'Neill since and it is supposed the happy couple are enjoying a blissful honeymoon. Henry and his bride are both fine young people and the best wishes of all their friends are extended.

The national law regulating the naturalization of aliens becomes effective on the 29th of this month. The new law makes many changes in the mode of naturalization and it would be well for any contemplating becoming a naturalized citizen to visit the office of the clerk of the district court and obtain the needed information. The provisions of the new law are too numerous for us to attempt to publish them. The national government, through the department of commerce and labor, will have direct supervision of the naturalization of aliens. Among other things, aliens will be required to give ninety days notice before they can get their final papers.

The local radical revolutionary elements of democracy and populism, having exhausted their free trade, free silver and imperialist political resources, and taken up with the government ownership vagary for something sensational to hold their remaining following in line, announced a meeting for last Saturday night to organize a public ownership club. The meeting was a frost, as not more than a couple dozen responded to the call of the old war horses whose names were once wont to draw the crowds like magic. And of these were some who went as spectators. M. F. Harrington, Art Mullen, Sam Eves et al. were the inspiring and predominating spirits. A committee was made up, at least one member of which will not be a voter for some years to come yet, to solicit members and adjournment was taken to meet again on next Wednesday evening.

The removal of an old land mark that has stood just north of town for many years is the cause of a suit wherein Joseph W. Blabon, a nonresident, is plaintiff and Thomas N. J. Hynes, Henry C. Gilg, William Fallon and Joel McEvony are named as defendants. The suit is docketed in district court, but owing to the absence of both district judges a temporary injunction was obtained before the county judge. Mr. Blabon claims ownership to two acres of land with the buildings thereon where the Hynes family have made their home for the past twenty-five years. According to the plaintiff's petition Mr. Hynes has purported to sell the house to Henry C. Gilg and the same was being removed from the premises into town when suit was begun by Mr. Blabon, through Attorney Dickson, to prevent the removal of the house. An injunction was granted by Judge Malone restraining the parties from removing the house.

"Do you know, brethren, that we hang our hollyhocks of applause on the necks of a good many false alarms?" asks a contemporary. "We are fooled lots of times by personal advertisements and our cheers ring out for base counterfeits. Who are our Good Samaritans? Not the ones, I trust, whose labors go on parade with a brass band accompaniment. No. We find the work of Good Samaritan hidden behind the veil of modesty. Whose hand is it that caresses the fevered brow and causes a smile to light up the wan and wasted face? Whose step is heard across the threshold of the home sobbing beneath its cloud of disgrace? Whose voice is it that sings in the lowly cottage the song that cheers the washerwoman to the end? Who is it that ministers in the sickroom through long hours of the night until the sun grows red at the east, while death peers in at the widow? You know of a few such humble instruments of God, do you not? I do. They are the ones to wear the laurel wreaths—to be our lieutenant generals—for peace bath its victories no less renowned than war. Our lieutenant generals are so modest, so retiring, so humble that the world in its mad march passes them by without saluting. I don't know what is in store Over Yonder for you or for me, but I've got a pretty good idea of what is waiting for the lieutenant general. Then, company attention, salute your lieutenant general before she has unfurled her banner beyond Jordan's stormy banks."

Passing of a Pioneer.
Darwin J. Sparks died at his home south of this city on Saturday last at the age of sixty-nine years, after an illness of several weeks. The funeral was held on Sunday at the Catholic church in this city.
The deceased was one of the early pioneers of this community and was known by all the old settlers. He was a native of New York, in which state he was born on March 24, 1837. His death is a double affliction to the widow and other friends as about a month ago their daughter, Mrs. Thomas Carlon, died at her home in Denver, Colo.

Superintendent's Notes.

The Holt county exhibit in class "J" at the Nebraska State Fair won the following prizes:

Lot 4. No. 1499, Manual Training by normal school, St. Mary's Academy.
Lot 21. D. County collective, Holt county 2d.

Lot 23, oil paintings, St. Mary's Academy.

On September 6th, a meeting of the county superintendents was held in the model school room on the state fair grounds for the purpose of discussing the needs and possibilities of securing a permanent educational building. Two years ago when the educational department was established a small portion of mercantile hall furnished a sufficient amount of space necessary for the exhibit. This year half of the same hall was donated, but the space was not sufficient for the exhibit; on account of having had a much larger display.

The prize offered by us for a collection of the greatest variety of Holt county grasses will be awarded to two districts, No. 158 in Stuart township, and No. 234 in Sheridan and Green Valley township. One of these districts furnished 90 varieties and the other 87, the prize will be a five dollar library to each district.

Miss Stanton has many friends in Bonesteel who hope to see her return soon.

Norfolk News: J. J. McCafferty of O'Neill was in town yesterday, looking up old-time friends. Mr. McCafferty has been a resident of Holt county since there was a Holt county, and he is using the information gained during these many years to write a history of that county, which will be published within the next twelve months. Holt is one of the counties of Nebraska that has made history, and a record of the early days as well told as Mr. McCafferty is capable of doing will make a work much sought after.
