The supervisor conventions of both parties for O'Neill and Grattan were held last Saturday. J. C. Horiskey was nominated by the republicans. Mr. Horiskey is a new man in politics, as this is his first candidacy for office. He is well known throughout the district and a man that all can vote for. John A. Golden, at present one of our justices, was nominated by the fusionists.

The record of births and deaths for the past year for O'Neill and vicinity shows that there were thirty-four deaths since October 3, 1905. This does not include those who died at other points and the remains brought here for enternment. There were a number of such deaths. Births largely outnumber deaths, there having been fifty-six children born in the same period.

Truant Officer A. P. Brooks is again after the delinquents. He has a list of names of children who either do not attend school at all or are absent a considerable portion of the time. The list has been presented to him prefaced by a petition asking him to see that the children whose names are given are brought into school, and is signed by a number of officials and prominent citizens. Mr. Brooks says he intends to look closely after the truants, and if need be the juvenile court law will be brought into play. Parents will certainly see it their duty to cooperate in giving their children an education and the needed training so that no harsh methods will be resorted to.
