RIVER OF SALT WATER.
Flows Inland in a Greek Island and Then Disappears.
One of the most curious phenomena of geography is found on the southern coast of the island of Cephalonia, near Greece. It is a stream of salt water which for an unknown period has left the almost tideless sea and flowed inland with considerable volume.
The sea enters the land at four points where the coast is practically on a level with the salt water surface. The four initial streams unite to form the little river that flows inland in a broken rocky channel until it finally disappears in the limestone rock and sinks into the earth.
This inland flow has continued almost certainly for several centuries. It is far too great for removal by evaporation, chemical combination or even physical absorption by pores or caverns in the rocks. What becomes of the water that is constantly flowing inland and disappears finally in the fissures that have opened in the limestone?
The question has been the subject of much study, but no conclusive answer has been given. It is probable that there is an underground channel which carries the water back into the sea at no great depth below the surface. The constant influx of salt water at Cephalonia is duplicated as far as is known at no other point of the world.—New York Sun.

Where the Difference Lay.
"One of his complaints against his wife in the divorce suit," said the lawyer, "was that she smoked cigarettes."
"Oh, my goodness! And whenever he comes to see me," cried the bachelor girl, "I smoke and smoke!"
"Oh, he doesn't mind other women smoking cigarettes," declared the lawyer. "He likes it. It is only his wife."

WHEN IT'S HOT.
Add Your Own Idea to These Pictures of Oppressive Heat.
"Suppose we describe in turn the scene that our fancy pictures as illustrating our notion of oppressive heat," said one of a party discussing the extremes of weather. "What do we think of—what time, what place, what conditions?"
The suggestion was received with favor, and here are some of the responses:
"A new concrete sidewalk at noon, with the sun beating down on it and your heels sinking in, and the heat reflected in your face, and the air pervaded with the smell of tar."
"The desert, with an exhausted caravan struggling to reach a mirage that hovers on the horizon, but doomed to perish of thirst, as perished the man and the animal whose bleached bones they are passing."
"Washing dishes in the kitchen, with the thermometer at 95 out of doors and a hundred and something within, with your hands so soapsuds and greasy that you can't lift them to your face to wipe away the perspiration and with your whole being so tired and cross and miserable that you would cry—if you were not ashamed to."
"The deck of a becalmed yacht, with a glassy sea and a long, slow roll and the brasswork so hot that it burns your hand, the sun high, the sky cloudless, the sails hanging with not a breath to stir them, the victim prostrate and senseless, with no consciousness in the present except of heat and nausea and no expectation for the future but sunstroke."
"Standing alone in the middle of a broad, hot field that is flaming with scarlet lilies, with no sound save the notes of the grasshoppers and the locusts."
"Noon on a country road which lies between treeless, barren fields, with no living thing in sight but an ox team lurching slowly on its way in a cloud of yellow dust."
"A night in August when coolness has not come with darkness, when you cannot sleep and can hardly breathe and when it seems that morning would never come."—Chicago News.

MOONLIGHT IN MUSIC.
Story of How Beethoven Created His Wonderful Sonata.
Beethoven's famous composition, the "Moonlight Sonata," is said to have been composed under the following circumstances:
One evening as Beethoven and a friend were hurrying through the streets of Bonn they heard the familiar notes of the "Sonata in F." Something in the musician's touch attracted the attention of Beethoven, and he stopped and listened. Suddenly the music stopped, and the despairing words of the musician came to them through the open window, "Oh, if I could but hear some really good musician play this wonderful piece!" and the words ended in a sob.
"Let us go in," said Beethoven. They entered and found the player a young girl, poor and blind. Beethoven sat down at the old harpsichord and played as he had never played before. His listeners were spellbound. "Tell us," they begged, "who are you?" For answer he played the opening bars in the "Sonata in F." "It is Beethoven!" they exclaimed in awe and admiration. Suddenly the candle flickered and went out. Beethoven ceased playing and bowed his head upon his hand. His friend threw open the shutters. A flood of beautiful moonlight entered the room. Its transfiguring light touched upon the poor old instrument and rested upon the noble figure bowed before it. The profound silence was broken at last by the musician, who said: "Listen. I will improvise a sonata to the moonlight." Then was created this wonderful sonata, beginning in a sad, tender movement, the embodiment in sound of the gentle moonlight transfiguring and glorifying the dark earth.
Suddenly the music ceased, and with a brief farewell Beethoven hurried home to put upon paper this famous composition.

Antiquity of Tennis.
Among all the popular games of today none perhaps is of greater antiquity than tennis, for it is said to have originated in the ball games of the ancient Greeks and Romans. In the first place the ball was struck by the hand, later on heavy gloves were worn or cords strapped round the palm, and the racket was contrived during the fifteenth century in France, where the game was very popular, and thence introduced into England.—London Captain.

Indian Hemp and Catalepsy.
A single grain of the resin of Indian hemp will produce catalepsy in a man. A few hours are required for the effects to reach a climax, when his limbs may be placed in almost any position without difficulty, and when once placed they remain in the given position indefinitely, although the natural influence of gravity would cause them to fall. During the catalepsy the body is usually insensible to all impressions.—Exchange.

Taken In One Way.
He—So you persist in breaking off the engagement? She—Most decidedly. What do you take me for? He—Oh, about forty. Better think it over. It may be your last chance.—Harper's Weekly.

Lost to Secrecy.
Marryat—So that great inventor is dead and his wonderful secret is lost. Newitt—Not at all. He told his wife just before he died. Marryat—Yes, that's what I mean.—Philadelphia Press.

Minor Mention.
A petrified buffalo head was found seven feet under ground by Louis Stebner while working on the construction of a bridge on Eagle creek. Mr. Stebner brought the specimen to O'Neill and it is now in the county clerk's office.
Wm. Lockard is the proud owner of a motor cycle. Some of these days, should the machine take a notion to balk and run away with him, Will will wish he had an old Mexican cayuse instead. But the machine does certainly cover the ground.
Ed Alberts returned home last Thursday, his ball team, the South Dakota Cowboys, having finished the season and disbanded. They played through Iowa, Illinois and Indiana and had a successful season. Ed will finish the season with the O'Neill team.
Bill Wilson, Roy Bradley, Phil Pringle, Ed Richie, J. Brophy and Charley Richter, of the O'Neill ball team, were in Creighton last week where they helped that city to win the four games they played during their annual fair. The boys have been in great demand by base ball magnates in this portion of the state the past month.
M. R. Sullivan was down from Atkinson Sunday. It was reported that Michael was on a scouting expedition for league players to assist his team in their game against O'Neill tomorrow, and spent the biggest part of the day looking for George Stone, the St. Louis American League slugger, who, he had understood, was in O'Neill. We do not know whether he succeeded in finding him or not before he left town.
John McNichols arrived home from Butte last Saturday evening and will remain here for an indefinite period. The mining of copper ore at Butte and Anaconda has been discontinued and several thousand men have been thrown out of employment and the coming winter promises to be a severe one to those miners with families who are unable to leave these famous camps. John says most of the young men have left the camps for their former homes.
Coleridge Blade: There are some things that happen in all print shops which cause the force to smile, but the most common one is the charge of betraying secrets. An editor will be told something of a private nature, strictly on the q. t. and the first ten men he meets will tell him the same thing as an item of news. Then in time he hears that this great secret leaked out through the newspaper office. It is just as well to say that print shops' morals are limited to few laws but those few are inexorable, and no one of them is observed with stricter fidelity than "mum is the word." On the other hand when fifty or a hundred people are told the same "secret" there are chances that it will leak out.

SPORTS AND THE SPHERE.
The Basic Pursuit in Most Games is to Drive a Ball.
Some day there will arise a patient investigator who will work out this problem. Why are most sports but the variants of one object, the propulsion of a sphere?
Billiards, baseball, polo, golf, sling-ball, marbles, squash, handball, football, rackets, cricket, hockey, bagatelle, tennis, shooting, pelota—the basic pursuit in each is to drive a ball, the propulsion of a sphere.
Tiptop, shuttlecock and top spinning are the employment of modifications of the sphere, and archery is but another method of propulsion.
It is a strange limitation of form, and there must be a reason. Those who delve into origins may ascribe the whole motive of sports to some long armed, hirsute ancestor who first threw a pebble at a fellow cave dweller and found it great fun.
Or it may be poor mortal's attempt to get in a small fashion into the tremendous scheme of the universe, which is the everlasting movement of the spheres. Or it may be that sports are framed in inevitable obedience to some irresistible law of nature.
At any rate the fact is sports are based on the propulsion of the sphere, and some one ought to find a reason therefor.—New York American.
