How to Exercise the Bowels

Your Intestines are lined inside with millions of little suckers, that draw the Nutrition out of food as it passes them. But, if the food passes too slowly, it decays before it gets through. Then the little suckers draw Poison from it instead of Nutrition.

They do not waste any precious fluid of the Bowels, as Cathartics do.

They do not relax the Intestines by greasing them inside like Castor Oil or Glycerine.

They simply stimulate the Bowel Muscles to do their work naturally, comfortably, and nutritiously.

And, the Exercise these Bowel Muscles are thus forced to take, makes them stronger for the future, just as Exercise makes your arm stronger.

The usual remedy for this delayed passage (called Constipation) is to take a big dose of Castor Oil. This merely makes slippery the passage for unloading the current cargo. It does not help the Cause of delay a trifle. It does slacken the Bowel-Muscles more than ever, and thus weakens them for their next task. Another remedy is to take a strong Cathartic, like Salt, Calomel, Jalap, Phosphate of Sodium, Apertin Water, or any of these mixed. What does the Cathartic do? It mere flushes-out the Bowels with a waste of Digestive Juice, set flowing into the Intestines through the tiny suckers.

But, the Digestive Juice we waste in doing this today is needed for tomorrow's natural Digestion. We cannot afford to lose it. That's why Cascarets are the only safe medicine for the bowels.

No Place for Him.

From the Nashville American.
"What was that image, shade or personage that just rushed down the street?"
"With a wild, startled look on his face?"
"Yes, that was it."
"Why the precipitate haste?"
"In strolling about looking for adventure it had come on a woman's club attempting to transact business."

WIDOWS' PENSIONS

There are about 320,000 people in the District of Columbia; over 60,000 of them live outside of the old city of Washington (which now has no legal existence, being merged in the District of Columbia, in a large number of small towns and villages scattered over the hills and valleys of the territory. About one-third of the population is colored—the largest number of colored people gathered in any place in the world, about one-fourth of the population is very poor—poorer than most poor people elsewhere in the United States.

How Frick Got His Start.
From the Pittsburgh Post.

One day the Mellon bank in Pittsburgh was amazed to receive from an unknown man signing himself "H. C. Frick" a letter requesting the loan of $20,000. He had very little to offer in the way of security, the writer said, but he pledged his word that if the loan was made it should be returned with interest.

The audacity of the request interested the bank's head, and he sent a trusted agent to find out about the man Frick. When the agent made his report the bank decided to make the loan. That $20,000 was the foundation of the colossal fortune of Henry Clay Frick. Not only did he return the principal with interest, but the business which he subsequently gave the Mellon bank was worth a hundred times the amount of the original loan.

Tangled Metaphor.

From the Minneapolis Journal.
It was in a police court in India. The client of the babu lawyer was a woman accused of assault and battery, and the attorney, attacking the opposing lawyer, delivered himself as follows: "My learned friend with mere wind from a teapot thinks to browbeat me from my legs. I only seek to place my bone of contention clearly in your honor's eye. My learned friend vainly runs amuck upon the sheet anchors of my case. My poor client has been deprived of some of her valuable leather (skin), the leather of her nose. Until the witness explains what became of my client's nose leather he cannot be believed; he cannot be allowed to raise a castle in the air by beating upon a bush."

FAMILY'S SKIN TROUBLES.

Eczema, Heat Rash, and Scap Affections Affect Different Members, but Cuticura Cures Them.
"My wife had eczema for five or six years. It was on her face and would come and go. We thought we would give the Cuticura Remedies a trial. We did so and she has never had a sign of eczema for four years. I myself used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment some time ago for falling hair. I now have a very heavy head of hair. We used Cuticura Remedies for our baby, who was nearly bald when young. She has very nice hair now. She is very fleshy, and we had so much trouble with heat that we would bathe her with Cuticura Soap and then apply Cuticura Ointment, it would dry the heat up so much quicker than anything else. "The Bread Was Sully."
From the Bookman.
Once John Muir, author and ranchman, was dining with a friend. They sat down and Muir began to tell a story. The waiter came around several times, but the story was so good nothing was ordered. Muir talked and talked, and in between he would reach over and break off a piece of bread from a French loaf on the table. The story reminded him of another, and so he talked and ate bread, until his companion broke in with:
"Well, what shall I order for you, Mr. Muir?"
"Order," he repeated in his abstraction.
"Yes, order—to eat."
He looked over at the last little remaining piece of bread on the plate and said, as if waking from a dream: "Eat? Why, I've had all I want—that bread was sully."

A Remedy for Neuralgia or Pain in Nerves.

For neuralgia and sciatica Sloan's Liniment has no equal. It has a powerfully sedative effect on the nerves—penetrates without rubbing and gives immediate relief from pain—quickens the circulation of the blood and gives a pleasant sensation of comfort and warmth.

"For three years I suffered with neuralgia in the head and jaws," writes J. P. Hubbard, of Marietta, S. C., "and had almost decided to have three of my teeth pulled, when a friend recommended me to buy a twenty-five-cent bottle of Sloan's Liniment. I did so and experienced immediate relief, and I kept on using it until the neuralgia was entirely cured. I will never be without a bottle of Sloan's Liniment in my house again. I use it also for insect bites and sore throat, and I can cheerfully recommend it to any one who suffers from any of the ills which I have mentioned."

Voluntary Immolation on the funeral pyre of her husband was of frequent occurrence in India before Lord William Bentinck's suppression of it.

In olden times the tendency of thought and feeling gave an impetus to the doing of such deeds. This devotion to the departed husband is not confined to the widow only. It is expected of the wife, in circumstances of unnatural conduct on the part of the living husband. He may spurn her; still she should not bow to her lord without a demur, but be loyal to him.

A Treacherous Memory.

The Bohemian: Little 5-year-old Harold's mother was of the new school and thought that baby days were for play and not the conning of catechisms. One day when Harold came to her with the question, "Who made me?" she answered "God," and as the child was apparently satisfied without any explanation as to who God was, the conversation dropped there.

Shortly after a reverend, distinctly of the old school, called on the family, and after the manner of his kind began to question the son and heir as to the doings of Adam and Eve, Solomon and sundry of his sort, and was sadly shocked to find that he knew far more about Mother Goose than sacred history.

"At each unanswerable question the child's self-respect sank to lower depths and he was on the verge of tears because of this revelation of his abysmal ignorance when, in extremity, the reverend gentleman exclaimed: "At least, my poor child, you can tell me who made you?"

"Yes, I can," the youngster blurted out, brightening visibly, "or—any—how, mamma did tell me the name of the man, but—but I've forgotten it!"

BEAUTIFUL COUNTESS CLEVER HOTEL THIEF

French Noblewoman Caught at Nice With the Goods on Her Person.

Paris, Special: A series of mysterious hotel robberies on the Riviera, extending over many years, has been explained in the arrest of the beautiful, charming, but masquerading Countess de Montell. For years the Countess of Montell has been entertained lavishly, both at Paris and the Riviera. Her wealth and jewels have drawn comment and admiration from far and near. Now she is declared one of the most ingenious, successful and audacious hotel thieves that has ever troubled the hotel proprietors of France. Her arrest reveals her not as the captivating, brilliant countess, but as a thoroughly first class burglar, carrying concealed in her bewitching garments an array of burglar's implements of intricate workmanship which opened her any hotel room on the Riviera which she knew to contain the coveted wealth of money and valuable jewels.

Wherever the countess stopped there was always mysterious, inexplicable robberies baffling the police. Valuables disappeared from the rooms of the most famous hotels in the most unusual manner, for the doors were all found locked and the windows fastened.

Suspicion Aroused.
Gradually, but vaguely, the faintest haze of suspicion began to be directed towards the Countess of Montell. The cautious agents of the department of France surely investigated the history of the countess. They found that she had been born of a respectable French family and that her maiden name was Amella Condemlin. She married a man named Portal and came to live in Paris. Her husband, who died some years ago, Portal went to the United States. Two years later she returned to France as the Countess of Montell. For several years she held brilliant sway in society. She visited the leading watering places in fact, the summer and especially the winter resorts of southern France.

It was several years ago that the first thoughts of police suspicion drifted toward the countess and her sensational arrest at Nice at one of the famous hotels in the culmination of long and patient watchfulness by French detectives. Her undoing came in a moment of over eagerness to rob. Detectives found her enveloped in a gaudy and beautiful cloak, bending over the door of the room of a wealthy American tourist. When the woman was searched the police found hidden in special pockets of her clothes pincers, files, screwdrivers, and no fewer than a dozen of small, delicately made nippers used by burglars to lock and lock a door with its own key when the key is on the inside of the door. The detectives will seek to prove, moreover, that the masquerading countess in fact is a detective director of a band of hotel robbers, mostly men, some of whom have been arrested, and whose aggregate loot is of great financial value.

When Words Are Superfluous.

Philadelphia Inquirer: A. J. Ulrich, traffic manager of the Keystone Telephone company of Philadelphia, has removed the word "please" from the vocabulary of his exchange girls. They are hereafter to say "Ring off" instead of "Please ring off," "Call again" instead of "Please call again," and so on.

"The word 'please,'" Mr. Ulrich explained to a reporter, "was used in our telephone business 900,000 times a day. Allowing half a second for its utterance it meant a daily waste of 125 hours. Why shouldn't all these hours be saved, saved for some better use?"

"You know," Mr. Ulrich went on, "I believe in few words. Wasted, superfluous words mean spoiled effects. What, for instance, could be more more telling, more effective, than the note, containing not a single superfluous or wasted word, that a man once wrote to his physician?"

"This note ran:
"Dear doctor—I had a few words with my wife last evening. Send me a bottle of lotion."

Mark Twain's Dog Story.

New York Sun: Mark Twain blossomed out, in a new dog's tale at the weekly banquet of the Pleiades club, at the Lafayette-Brevort. The theme of the humorist was "How It Pays to Be Honest—When It Doesn't Hurt Yourself." He said he was starving with a chap named Davis in Washington in the latter '60s, and Davis told Twain to go out and rummage for $3 for Scotch whisky, while he'd stay home and pray. Twain said he walked into a hotel and came to the prettiest dog he had ever seen in the lobby.

General Nelson A. Miles came in with three months' salary. Miles saw Twain fondling the dog, and offered Twain $30 for the animal. Miles said Twain's right to sell this dog for $30," answered the humorist, "but if you'll give me $3 you can take the pup away."

Miles paid the $3 and took it away. The real owner rushed in.
"I'll give your dog for $3," said Twain. The owner agreed. Twain walked upstairs, told Miles the situation, and got the dog back by paying $3, then received $3 for restoring it to the owner. He took three quarts back home to Davis, who drank it all and ignored Twain.

BUYING PAINT BLINDLY.

Many people look upon paint buying as a lottery and so it is, the way they do it. It is not necessarily so, however. Pure White Lead and Inseed Oil are the essential elements of good paint. Adulterants in white lead can be easily found by the use of a blow-pipe. Adulterations in Inseed Oil can be detected with a fair degree of certainty. See that these two elements are pure and properly put on and the paint will stay put.

National Lead Company, Woodbridge Building, New York City, will send a blow-pipe outfit and instructions for testing both white lead and Inseed Oil, on request.

When Aldrich Was Taken for the Office Boy.

From Scribner's.
Willis at this time was beginning to feel the approach of the malady that was eventually to cause his death, and spent much of his time at Idlewild, his country place on the Hudson, leaving Aldrich to guide the more immediate destinies of the paper. We get in the correspondence and recollections of that period, some charming pictures of the golden-haired boy of 20 sitting in state in the august editorial chair, with a dignity no doubt enhanced by the fact that he also occupied the post of what is quaintly termed "literary adviser" to the lively and kaleidoscopic publishing firm of Derby & Jackson. A favorite reminiscence of his was of an occasion during one of Willis' absences, when seated at his desk, he was composing with due deliberation an editorial which seemed to him at the time likely to arrest the ruinous course of national events. His cogitations were rudely disturbed by a loud stranger who, after purchasing from an underlying some back numbers of the paper, turned to the absorbed editor with "Say, bub, get me a piece of string, will you!"

How the Young Idea Shoots.

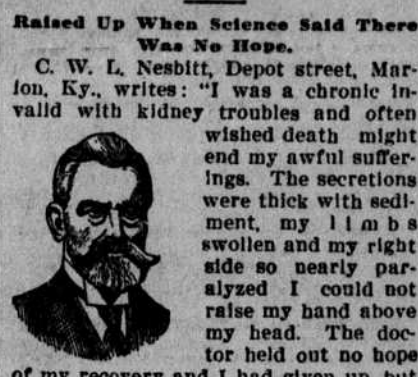

From Everybody's Magazine.
Many of the children are so crammed with everything that they really know nothing.

In proof of this, read these veritable specimens of definitions, written by public school children:

"Stability is taking care of a stable."
"A mosquito is the child of black and white parents."
"Monastery is the place for monks."
"Tocsin is something to do with getting drunk."
"Exposition is to have the small-pox."
"Cannibal is two brothers who killed each other in the Bible."
"Anatomy is the human body, which consists of three parts, the head, the chest and the stomach. The head contains the eyes and brains, if any. The chest contains the lungs and a piece of the liver. The stomach is devoted to the bowels, of which there are five, a, e, i, o, u, and sometimes y and y."

ALMOST A MIRACLE.

Raised Up When Science Said There Was No Hope.
C. W. L. Nesbitt, Depot street, Marion, Ky., writes: "I was a chronic invalid with kidney troubles and often wished death might end my awful sufferings. The secretions were thick with sediment, my limbs swollen and my right side so nearly paralyzed I could not raise my hand above my head. The doctor held out no hope of my recovery and I had given up, but at last started using Doan's Kidney Pills and made a rapid gain. After three months' use I was well and at work again."
Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

An Awful Case.

From Life.
As Mr. Tippet came in and started to remove his overcoat, his wife came up eagerly. There was a look of anxiety in her eyes as she kissed him.
"Did you think, dear," she asked, timidly, "to get that ribbon?"
"What ribbon?"
"Why don't you know. I gave you a sample to match this morning?"
"So you did. By Jove, it slipped my mind."
"And did you stop in at the milliner's to ask about my hat?"
"Dear me, I—I—quite escaped me."
"Did you send the telegram to mother?"
"Great heavens, no! You see, I was so busy I—"
"And see the landlord about the leak in the roof?"
"No, I—"
His wife looked at him helplessly.
"Did you," she asked sadly, "do anything I asked you to do this morning? If you didn't you are certainly the most forgetful man that I can conceive of."
Her husband met her smile with one of the deepest humiliation, as he drew from his overcoat pocket a small rectangular package.
"I am, my dear," he exclaimed—"I am, indeed! I admit it. I'm getting more forgetful every day. Why, do you know"—and he flourished the package in front of her stained evening dress—"I'm getting so forgetful that I came within an ace of not getting these cigars? And I didn't have one left in the house!"

NATURE AND A WOMAN'S WORK

LYDIA E. PINKHAM
Nature and a woman's work combined have produced the grandest remedy for women's ills that the world has ever known.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering.

The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and herbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham more than thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for women's ills.

Mrs. Bertha Muff, of 515 N.C. St., Louisiana, Mo., writes:

"Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my troubles public."
"For twelve years I had been suffering with the worst forms of female ills. During that time I had eleven different physicians without help. No tongue can tell what I suffered, and at times I could hardly walk. About two years ago I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice. I followed it, and can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice restored health and strength. It is worth mountains of gold to suffering women."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Muff, it will do for other suffering women.

The "automobile stare" is becoming noticeable in New York City. It is the vacant, far-away, apparently unobserving look that comes into the face of a chauffeur when he crosses streets regardless of the pedestrians, turns the wrong corner or guides and speeds his vehicle regardless of the rights of others.

The Swedish national commission for the prevention of tuberculosis has recommended the gradual establishment of 4,600 retreats for consumptives, to be scattered throughout the length and breadth of the country. The total cost will be nearly 11,000,000 crowns. It is proposed that the cost of maintaining patients shall be borne by the municipalities from which they are sent.
