The sultan isn't such a bad feller after all.

Democrats face defeat again with their customary cheerfulness.

Republicans in Holt county who will vote for Bryan are as scarce as Clipper dividends.

Corn has been showing what it can do when the weather is right. The growth the past week has put the latest patches right up to date.

The Connecticut banker who got a twenty-year prison term for wrecking a bank evidently didn't know of the Hagerty-McGreevy method of evading it.

Judge Westover has made the preliminary dash for congress. He announces himself a candidate for the democratic nomination for the big Sixth, which still remains safely republican.

You have had several opportunities to vote for Bryan and will continue to have them in the future. There may not be another chance to vote for Taft and you'd better take advantage of the opportunity.

Farmers certainly have no excuse to vote the democratic ticket. A better "lay out" than they have right now could hardly be asked. They are getting high water mark prices for all of their products and their lands keep rising in value.

The attempt of the Bryan crowd to work a fusion deal on presidential electors is a palpable fraud. The quick action of the republican committee in filing protests is to be commended. The democratic and populist ringsters would like to deliver the Nebraska electoral vote for Bryan by fair means or foul.

Judge Grosscup, the leading actor in the judicial wiping out of that $29,000,000 fine, has our west-end district judge beaten as a pass grabber. According to some pretty convincing proof brought out by the newspapers, Grosscup has solicited and accepted passes from nearly every railroad on the map for himself and relatives.

The organization of the Bohemians of the state to oppose prohibition discloses an odd feature of the political side of our institutions. Prohibition is an American idea. Few foreigners become identified with the total abstinence class. There has always been a sort of tacit understanding that the Bohemian vote could be counted on against any proposition looking to the abolition of the saloon.

The organization for the avowed purpose of fighting prohibition is official announcement of their attitude. What figure they will cut remains to be seen. The fact of their organizing, however, shows that under our system of government it is possible for a foreign population, where strong enough, to outvote the natives and defeat their plans of government.

The government was defeated in the higher court by the Standard Oil company in the appeal from the decision of Judge Landis who assessed a fine of nearly 30 millions. The case has been ordered back for retrial on the grounds that the fine was excessive and that the trial court erred in counting as separate offenses transactions that should be considered collectively. The review court holds that by no possible means could the fine exceed something over $700,000.

The principle that corporations can not be jailed is a bad one. The officers of a corporation are responsible for the corporation methods and they should be held accountable for unlawful acts and sent to jail when the offense warrants it. Fining a corporation like the Standard only adds grief to their already overburdened patrons, out of whom the fine would eventually come.

Consumption is less deadly than it used to be.

Certain relief and usually complete recovery will result from the following treatment:

Mr. Jones: "Hello, Neighbor Brown. I hear you are going to build a new house."
Mr. Brown: "Yes, I have been thinking about it."
Jones: "Well, neighbor, let me give you some good advice. If you want good lumber, right prices and an all around square deal buy it at O. O. Snyder's."
Brown: "Yes, I do know that PRIMROSE Coal is the best I ever used, and Brother John's screens are fine."

After doctoring for about twelve years for a bad stomach trouble, and spending nearly five hundred dollars for medicine and doctors' fees, I purchased my wife one box of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which did her so much good that she continued to use them and they have done her more good than all of the medicine I bought before.—Samuel Boyer, Folsom, Iowa.
