"I don't care for the presidency if it has to come by compromise with Senator Foraker or anyone else in a matter of principle.—If it would win me every vote in the United States I cannot hit a man when he is down."—W. H. Taft.

Another way to break the brother-in-law combination is to elect J. U. Yantzi supervisor.

The list of contributions given to the newspapers and the one behind the screen are two different things.

Bryan promises free trade if elected. That would be a fine thing for the capitalists, who could buy up the farm property at half its present value.

A repetition of the hard times of the last democratic administration is the only thing that will satisfy a lot of the crokers.

The Independent has started in on the congressional campaign with a lot of warmed over slush and slander that the voters of this district have repudiated time and again.

Haskell's $600,000 suit against Hearst started out sensational enough, but a good many are of the same opinion as the defendant, that it will not come to trial.

There will be no need of Bryan's bank guarantee scheme if he is elected. Experience teaches that nobody but capitalists have money to put in banks under the democratic free trade policy.

Eugene Walter Leake, democratic representative in congress from New Jersey, in bolting the national ticket, reverts to Candidate Bryan as a "crafty seeker after votes, a fanatic—a political brainstorm."

Judge Westover says in his platform that he favors the government guarantee of national bank deposits. The depositors of the defunct Elkhorn Valley bank at O'Neill are aware of what the judge thinks should be done with bank wreckers.

During the last year of the last democratic administration the farmers were hauling 5-cent corn to market. This year they are too busy gathering 50-cent corn to take any interest in the campaign.

The south part of the county presents a good man for representative in the person of Willie Calkins. No man stands better in the community in which he lives than Mr. Calkins. He is in full accord with the progressive spirit of the times and may be counted on to stand with the people on all questions affecting their interests.

The Independent's "furnished" editorial on bank wrecks serves as a reminder to the depositors of the defunct Elkhorn Valley bank that the fusion candidate for congress in this district denied them the right to prosecute the thief in court and his chief supporters at O'Neill now had their coats off to save the bank wreckers from the pen.

One of the most forceful and logical approvals of Taft's candidacy yet penned comes from Dr. Lyman Abbott, who has the reputation of being the greatest preacher in America today. This does not look as though the ministry regarded Mr. Taft as they would a follower of Mohammed, as some narrow-brained democrats have tried to make out.

H. A. Allen of Atkinson is the kind of a man to send as representative to the legislature. Personally he is one of the finest men in the county. Politically he has always been consistent. In business he has been successful and no man has greater interest in the welfare of the county generally. Mr. Allen has never been an office seeker. He has been a resident of the county many years and thoroughly understands our interests and needs. His election as representative would be a wise choice.

All that the Omaha World-Herald may say in behalf of the Bryan ticket avails nothing with sane and level-headed men so long as it maintains its attitude of compromise and apology for the Oklahoma crowd. The public is with the president in all his efforts to route the grafters, whether they be governors or United States senators. The attitude of Bryan's personal organ in Nebraska is one of insincerity and demogogy. It denounces Foraker with a horrible show of shocked piety and comes to the defense of Haskell as though he were a martyred saint.

If Lew Chapman is elected county attorney the people will have a rest from the brother-in-law combination that has been in full operation the past year. Notwithstanding there is a county court elected by the people who expect county cases to be tried there, our present fusion county attorney has taken nearly all the county cases the last year to the justice court in O'Neill presided over by his brother-in-law. Cases have been brought here from remote parts of the county to swell the brother-in-law's fees. There are more than a score of justices of the peace in this county and if the county attorney did not want to take the county cases to county court why not to some justice of the peace besides his brother-in-law? Why, for instance, bring cases that are proper ly under the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace of Inman precinct to the county attorney's brother-in-law at O'Neill?

Let the Farmers Stay There.

Up until the last session, it had been the fashion to send lawyers to represent the people in the state legislature. The last session contained many farmers, and it is generally conceded that more legislation was enacted for the benefit of the people than at any previous session. In the senate was one of the substantial farmers of this county, F. W. Phillips. Senator Phillips voted and worked for every reform measure passed at that session. Among these were:

- The anti-pass law.
- The 2-cent passenger rate.
- The reduction of freight and express rates.
- The direct primary law.
- The child labor law.
- The free high school law.
- The law providing state aid for weak school districts.

Senator Phillips is a candidate for re-election, his opponent being a lawyer at O'Neill. The Frontier has no disposition to make an attack on the lawyers, but inasmuch as a body of farmers enacted laws at one session that the lawyers had for years failed to give the people the men who were in that session and are now candidates for re-election should receive the hearty support of every man who believes in a square deal. Opposing their candidacy is equivalent to repudiating the reform laws they have given us.

"A democratic paper lectures a Pennsylvania manufacturing concern for giving notice to its men that it will shut down if Bryan is elected," says an exchange. "If such is its purpose its notification is a matter of business, and may be of service to those who will have time to look elsewhere for a job. The concerns that give notice of this kind will not be one in a hundred of those that will necessarily shut down if the next president is Bryan, the free trader, the free silver apostle, the advocate of the public ownership of railroads and other issues calculated to disturb business to its foundations. The emergency currency plank in the present Bryan platform is a greenback utterance. Not many firms will announce that they will stop if Bryan is elected, but thousands may find it compulsory to stop if the chronic agitator, a man of proved fallacious judgment, is invested with the powers of the presidential office."

Prominent members of the glass-blowers' union, in speaking of the action of their organization in turning down Samuel Gompers, say that under previous experiments in voting against the republicans glass-blowers lost heavily, and that when they wore roosters in their hats after the Cleveland election they had good cause to regret it during four years following, with reduction in wages and little work. They declare that the interference of the high officers and the attempt to lead them against their best interests into the Bryan camp is resented. A sentence of the minutes of the meeting runs: "If the officers of the American Federation of Labor would spend less time in Washington trying to run the government and more time attending to the affairs of their own craft we would all fare better."

If the poor man who fancies he has a grievance against republicans could succeed in carrying the country for Bryan, he would injure himself more than those on whom he would seek revenge. In hard times the rich do not feel the pinch of want like the man depending on his daily toil for the maintenance of himself and family. The large business men of the country have money enough to live in luxury during a period of hard times that would seem inevitable with Bryan in the presidency, while the small business man would be pinched out and the wage worker go hungry and idle.

The action of the democratic state chairman, T. S. Allen, manager of Bryan's campaign and brother-in-law of the candidate, in fixing his signature and notarial seal to a statement of campaign contributions and ex-

PURTINENT POINTS PUT TO BRYAN

The Peerless One in Congress.

Omaha Bee: Grand Island, Neb., Oct. 15.—To the Editor of the Bee: Your Letter Box Brigade has interested me to some extent, and as you allow both parties to use the Letter Box, I would like to ask any of the correspondents to answer the important question that Governor Hughes asked Bryan, as he does not seem inclined to do so: What did he do when he was four years in congress, with a democratic president, and the house and senate absolutely controlled by democrats? Now, I have voted twice for Bryan, but I have got to have some explanation of the above or else you can hear my vote drop, when it goes into the box, for Taft. I have commenced to think that in following Bryan we have been following the blue skies. When the most important issues are ignored in a campaign I think we had better commence to sit up and look around, and that we can not afford to support a man just because he is a campaigner, and run the risk of upsetting good times unless we have some assurance that the would-be party can show a record and stand on it, not merely talk.

A Commercial Man.

"Woefully Inconsistent."

New York Tribune: Omaha, Neb., Oct. 13, 1908.—To the Editor of the Tribune—Sir: I've read the Tribune for more than forty years. It always gave me satisfaction. Its discussion of my quondam neighbor (I used to be pastor at Lincoln), Mr. Bryan, is usually quite to the purpose. As private citizen and member of the church he is a model. I wish I had a few dozen like him in my church. As a candidate, in his "parliament issues," he is woefully inconsistent. There are two things which the papers in Nebraska and those east could use effectively. (1) For years Bryan had power in Nebraska to pass any laws he desired. The democrats and populists had the legislature and the governor. To both of them Mr. Bryan's wish was law. They didn't pass any laws to curb the domineering of the railroads for the Standard Oil, nor did they enforce any they found on the statute books. (2) Two years ago the republicans adopted a platform promising strong measures to limit the aggressions of corporations and make them pay taxes.

Thomas Allen (Mr. Bryan's brother-in-law), state chairman, issued a secret circular, promising "aid and comfort" to the corporations if they were willing to return the favor. Of course this deal wasn't known (officially) to Mr. Bryan—same as the $30,000 Ryan deal. The "corporation smasher" is very gentle with them when he has power. Eight years ago the private houses and business places were full of Bryan pictures in Omaha. Very few such appear this year. There are more Taft pictures. L. Groh, Pastor of St. Mark's.

"Crowds" Flock to Hear Him.

Omaha Bee: Endicott, Neb., Oct. 16.—To the Editor of the Bee: Reading in the morning World-Herald of October 16 of the Bryan meeting here, I can not help but give the true version. Mr. Bryan's train arrived at 7:55 a. m. and there was not to exceed eighteen voters (mostly old-time populists and some republicans) and sixty or seventy school children to meet him, and he spoke by actual count seventy-two words, and the train was backed up to Fairbury on its return. Mr. Gilbert, democratic nominee for congress, spoke two or three minutes, (the most he said of importance was, "We will be elected,") to a crowd of like proportion. To show the interest taken, an old soldier farmer kept on plowing in his field in 200 feet of the depot. When a paper says hundreds of farmers drove in here and they left a Mr. Brandon to address the overflow meeting, it becomes a "roaring, laughing farce."

penses, certifying that the same was signed and sworn to in his presence by the treasurer of the democratic committee, when the signature of the treasurer does not appear on the document at all, is additional evidence of the illegal and highhanded methods of the democratic leaders in this state. When such methods are employed as little confidence can be placed in the several items in the statement as the act of the notary itself.

Kola Items.

Miss Louie Pfund came out on her homestead last week.
J. B. Myers and Frank Wilber, went to O'Neill where Mr. Myers relinquished his land and Mr. Wilber homesteaded it.
William Benjamin built a home on his land about one half mile South of Kola.
Mr. Victor Howarth is having lumber hauled to his homestead this week.
Mr. W. Dillon is having a sody built on his homestead, Mr. Shaw and Spurling are doing the work.
Jacob Pfund is putting on an addition to his sody, 20x22 feet.
The first of the week we could hear the hum of the thrasher at the homes of Walter Benjamin, P. J. Kennedy and W. W. Stratton.
The Kola School house was to have been built on the 5th. of Oct. and only three families were represented so of course no school house was built, but was started and if the rest of those that promised at the annual election to be there to help, would take hold where the three left off, there would be a school house.

Phoenix.

J. W. Hunt had business at Badger, one day last week.

Hon. Joseph C. Saylor OF RED CLOUD, NEB.

Will address the voters on the political topics of the day, from a republican standpoint, at the following places in this county:

- Monday evening, Oct. 26, at Inman
- Tuesday evening, Oct. 27, at Page
- Wed. evening, Oct. 28, at Chambers
- Thursday evening, Oct. 29, at Amelia
- Friday evening, Oct. 30, at Stuart
- Saturday evening, Oct. 31, at Dustin

Mr. Saylor is a strong, forceful and logical speaker, and has something to say of the utmost importance to every voter and none should fail to hear him.

The real test is in the baking.

Other Baking Powders may make broad claims, but when it comes to the production of real delicious biscuit, cakes and pastry proves its real worth. This is because of its much greater leavening power and the strict purity of its ingredients.

It costs only a trifle more than the cheap and big can brands and much less than the Trust Baking Powders.
