Economy of Costly Foods.
From American Medicine.
The economy of expensive foods is explained by the fact that digestion, at least in man, is dependent upon flavors, without which it is so defective that we do not obtain the good of the food we swallow. As far as experiments go, the substantiation of these assertions, for the sight and smell of pleasing food starts the flow of digestive fluids, while disagreeable odors and sights stop it. Delicacies, then, would seem to be staples, for they are necessary. The talk of being able to subsist on a few cents a day is simply nonsense and leads to deterioration of health. What seems to be extravagant in food purchases may be wholesome instinct. The high cost of living is partly due to the cost of the flavors we need. We recommend these ideas to our worthy dietetic economists. Laymen may not be so foolish as the physiologists themselves.

Uncle Hiram's Deduction.
From the Chicago Record-Herald.
"Who are them people living next door?" asked Mrs. Gadsby's Uncle Hiram.
"I don't know," she replied.
"I s'pose they've just moved in."
"No; I think they have lived there for a good many years."
"Ain't they decent?"
"I really don't know. I have never heard anything about them."
"Hm! Gosh! You people must be mighty well off."
"What has our financial condition to do with the people who live next door?"
"Why, you don't seem to ever have to borrow anything."

'Twas Coming.

Rowing and Ro'ing.
A man hired a southern negro to go out with him to fish. The man was doing all the rowing, and finally turning to his helper, asked him if he couldn't row. "No, boss," was the reply. So the man did all the rowing, and when he had caught all the fish he wanted, rowed to the shore and climbed the bank with the fish. Turning around, he saw the negro rowing the boat away with vigorous strokes, and, calling to him, said: "I thought you told me you couldn't row?" "Oh, you mean pull de boat, boss?" "I thought you meant could I ro'—like a lion."

Omitted.
The two old neighbors had met on the street.
"Mornin' Sam," said the first. "I hear your son Bill has got through college successfully."
"Yep," said the other.
"Learn anything?"
"Yep."
"What's he got out of it chiefly?"
"He kin speak seven languages."
"Fine!"
"Oh, I dunno. Trouble is they forget to teach him any ideas to express with 'em."

Interesting Information.
"We can learn from all men, even from the humblest," said a well known detective, at a police banquet. "Turn a deaf ear to no man. The lowliest tramp may have information of incredible interest for you."
"I well remember," continued the detective, smiling, "a walk I once took down Market street. As I strode along, proud and happy, a rose in my button-hole, and a gold-headed cane in my hand, a drunken man had the impudence to stop me."
"Ain't you Mr. Adair?" he said.
"Yes," said I. "What of it?"
"Mr. Adair the detective?" he hiccupped.
"Yes, sir. Who are you? I asked impatiently.
"Mr. Adair," said the untidy wretch, as he laid his hand on my shoulder to keep himself from falling, "I'll tell you who I am. Mr. Adair, I'm hic—the husband of your washerwoman."
"Well, what of that?" said I.
"My scorn brought a sneer to the man's lips, and he said:
"You see, you don't know everything, Mr. Adair."
"What don't I know?" I demanded.
"Well, Mr. Adair," said he, "you don't know that hic—I'm wearin' one of your new white shirts."

HELP INSIST ON HAVING FOR WOMEN Dr. Martell's Preparation
The Standard Remedy. (As Prescribed by the World's Leading Physicians.)
FRENCH PREPARED BY DR. J. B. MARTELL, N. Y. City

His Mistake.
"Bishop Potter was a wonderfully effective preacher," said a Brooklyn clergyman. "His method was reserved and quiet. He always had himself well in hand. I once delivered a sermon before him. I was young and enthusiastic at the time, a disciple of the methods of Talmage. I let myself go in that sermon. My voice shook the church. My gestures shook the pulpit. At luncheon afterward I am ashamed to say that I fished for compliments. I leaned over the bishop and asked him in a low voice to give me some advice on preaching."
"Dear knows what I expected him to reply, probably that I was beyond any advice from him. At any rate, what he did reply was this:
"My dear young friend, never mistake in the pulpit perspiration for inspiration!"

INTOLERABLE ITCHING.
Fearful Eczema All Over Baby's Face - Professional Treatment Failed - Perfect Cure by Cuticura.
"When my little girl was six months old I noticed small red spots on her right cheek. They grew so large that I sent for the doctor, but instead of helping the eruption, his ointment seemed to make it worse. Then I went to a second doctor who said it was eczema. He also gave me an ointment which did not help either. The disease spread all over the face and the eyes began to swell. The itching grew intolerable and it was a terrible sight to see. I consulted doctors for months, but they were unable to cure the baby. I paid out from $20 to $30 without relief. One evening I began to use the Cuticura Remedies. The next morning the baby's face was all white instead of red. I continued until the eczema entirely disappeared. Mrs. P. E. Gumbin, Sheldon, Ia., July 13, 1908."

Professor Robert Williams Wood, the distinguished scientist of Johns Hopkins, who says that "comparisons are odious," and thereupon proceeds to write the odies, has this in his remarkably clever Animal Analogs:
Good Mr. Darwin once contended that beetles were from bees descended, and as my picture shows, I think. The best must be the missing link. The sugar beet and the honey bee supply the beetle's pedigree.
The family is now complete—The bee, the beetle, and the beet.

A Natural Lifebuoy.
The boatman had been angered by the assinine behavior of a young fellow among the party which he had taken for a sail. When the boat sprang a leak far out from the shore the boatman somewhat allayed the alarm of the rest of the party by serving out life belts, but he gave no belt to the would-be wit.
"Where's mine?" said the terrified youth.
"Don't you worry, my lad," said the boatman, with a vindictive smile. "You don't need no life belt. You'll never be drowned. A feller with an 'ead as 'oller as your'n can't sink." Nature's given you a nat'ral lifebuoy."

Start the New Year Right!

START the new year with a clean mind and a clean body!
Most people are very neat and clean in their outward appearance, but how about the inside? Are you clean inside?
And if not, how can you face the New Year with clean thoughts, clear intelligence, a fair, just, and bright mind, and your full share of capacity for work and enjoyment.

pleasant company to themselves and others.
But, you say—"I'll take a course of Spring medicine to clean me out next April."
Not considering your duty to yourself and family, isn't it certain that to leave the body full of poison all winter, and then suddenly attempt to force out all impurities by one violent attack is dangerous, absurd and unreasonable?

The holidays are over and everybody's had a good time—perhaps a little too much of a good time. Over-eating and over-drinking have been the rule ever since Thanksgiving Day.
Many people get little exercise in winter and breathe much stuffy, over-heated inside air.
At the same time they eat too much rich and indigestible food, while fresh fruit and fresh vegetables are scarce in the market. So stomach and bowels are liable to be over-taxed.

Keep clean inside all the time. That's the simple solution.
If you can not diet, or keep your mechanism going by proper exercise, the self-evident alternative is to take Cascarets, the sweet, fragrant, harmless little vegetable tablets, that "act like exercise" on your bowels, and gently but powerfully clean out and disinfect the whole digestive canal.
A Cascaret every night before going to bed will "work while you sleep" and make you "feel fine in the morning."
If you have been neglecting yourself for some time, take a Cascaret night and morning and break up the "constipated habit" without acquiring a "cathartic habit."

Clog up, stretch and paralyze the large intestine by over-stuffing it with undigested food, so it can not carry off the useless refuse, and it "backs up" the sewage, and compels the small intestine to absorb the poison of decaying matter, instead of wholesome nourishment.
That's what must happen. Isn't it plain as day?
What's the result?
Nearly everybody "gains in flesh" in the winter time, but it's puffy fat—not healthy flesh and muscle. The liver gets inactive; the bile doesn't "work off"; the eyes get yellow; the skin gets dead like putty and pale like dough, with boils, pimples, blackheads, liver-spots to break the monotony.
Dizziness, headaches, blurred vision, foul breath, sleeplessness and a temper like a wild cat make such persons very

Small Talk of Fads and Fashions

The lapel is seen on everything. Flannel waists are to be much worn. Ottoman silk is a favorite in millinery. Skirts are narrow and trains positively skimpy.
There will be an unusual demand for satin this year.
The rage for things oriental is quite as virulent as ever.
The modern muff consists of staring eyes and wagging tails.
Schoolgirls wear immense flat hats of plush or beaver.
Paris will make use of skunk as a trimming and in small furs.
Plum and prune color is a favorite in elaborate street suits.
The one-eyelid pump will be worn in the house all this winter.
Peacock tints, beautifully blended, are the success of the hour.
Most buttons now have a protecting ring of metal, bone or horn.
Buttons of all sizes are more employed than for years and years.
Large headed hair pins and barrettes were almost cover the head.
The two toned striped stockings are the most fashionable hosiery.
French lingerie, brought over for brides, shows much less elaboration.
Laces showing an intermingling of metal thread are fashionable.
The fad in the flimsiest chiffons are bedizened more or less with braid.
The jabot of white net is still stylish with dressy tailor-mades.
Brown is smart, but only in the lighter and more unusual shades.
Furs of all sorts of overskirts figure, skirts proper are untrimmed.
Coat revers are long, often extending down almost to the waistline.
The American Beauty waistcoat adds a smart touch to a black coat suit.
The fad in employment of black chiffons with colored cloth and silk gowns.
Dog collars come in links of solid jet or in links studded with cut jet beads.
It is a noticeable feature of the girdles that they all faster at the side.
The tailor-mades rushing of linen, plaited tiny and extremely narrow—in fact, just a line—is fashionable.
In fur neck pieces the flat stole is accorded a second place by the newer shawl shaped capes that end at the waistline.
A new chain girdle in various color combinations such as white and gold, blue and gold, taupe and gold, is very pretty.
A smart coat is fastened across the waistcoat with frogs of green corded silk slung from the buttons on the mitered cloth.
Muffs are square, of bad form, and much larger than those of last year, when there was a return of favor to the smaller types. They are adorned with heads and tails, frequently in groups of three.

FROM THE SPICE BOX.

Getting In.
"How do the apples get into the dump-lings."
"I give it up. How do the peaches get into these tight gowns?"

No Offense Meant.
Doctor—"Your wife is in a critical state; I should advise you to call in some specialist to consult on the case."
Husband—"I told my wife long ago she ought to get proper medical advice, but she thought you would be offended."

Not Amphibious.
From Everybody's Magazine.
After a scorching day's work old Ben Smith lighted his cornob pipe and sat down on the little wharf to rest. Near him lay an alligator, the visible result of his labors. A tourist from the north approached and loftily remarked: "Ah, I see you have an alligator."
No answer.
"It is amphibious, is it not?"
The tone nettled the old man.
"Amphibious, h—!" he growled. "He'd bite yer arm off before ye could say Jack Robinson!"

No Longer Secret.
From the Chicago Tribune.
"Does your husband belong to any secret societies?" inquired Mrs. Kawner.
"No," answered Mrs. Middlebloom; "I have found out the name of every one of them."
Out of His Line.
From Life.
"Good morning sir," says the lady, entering the studio of the famous portrait painter. "I wish to engage you to paint my portrait."
"I shall be delighted, madam."
"I want it painted with my new hat on."
"Pardon me, madam, but I am not a landscape artist."

Horrid Things.
From the Chicago Record-Herald.
Mrs. Goodsole. I told the editors of that paper I didn't want them to print my picture, but they went right ahead and did it. Mrs. Chillon-Kearney. Yes; it was a mean trick. The picture looked just like you, too, didn't it?

What Bothered Him.
From the Chicago Record-Herald.
"Why are you so thoughtful, Daniel?" asked the mother of the beautiful girl who had just been married to a titled foreigner.
"You know I'm to hand over $5,000,000," the bride's father answered.
"Yes; but surely you are not worried about that. You have $20,000,000 more, you know."
"It ain't givin' up the money that I'm bothered about, but I wish I knew whether it's to be considered by our son-in-law as tribute or indemnity."

WORLD'S HIGHEST CAFE IN SWITZ
What is probably the highest restaurant in the world has been opened at the Elmsere station of the Jungfrau railway in Switzerland. It is 10,000 feet above sea level, close to the summit of the mountain. The food is not cooked by means of ordinary fuel, but by electricity generated by the Lutschine waterfall, deep down in the valley below. With an expenditure of 30 kilowatts of electrical energy it is possible to prepare a five course dinner for a party of 100 persons in a short time. The guests are accommodated in a large hall hewn out of the solid rock and heated by electricity. The view from the huge windows comprises mountain scenery which for grandeur perhaps has no equal in the world.

AUTUMN NOVELTIES.
From Harper's Bazar.
What are "engagements?" They are the mitten sleeves of gauze, net, or lace which mould the forearm, ending out the three-quarter or half-length fabric sleeve, and half covering the hand.
And the moyeneux? It is that middle piece of waist trimming which intervenes between the material of the dress itself and the uppermost bit of lace that forms the collar, chemisette or tucker. Often the moyeneux is of lace or flit, dyed to match the dress. It is made over self-colored or light-toned silk, such as cream, gray or flesh color.
