

DYSPEPSIA

There is Hope

MUNYON'S DYSPEPSIA REMEDY acts almost immediately on the Gastric Juices and gives the stomach tone and strength to digest almost everything that has been put into it. It soothes sore and irritated stomachs that have been impaired by physic and injurious drugs. We cannot too urgently advise all persons who suffer from any of the following symptoms to try this remedy: Distress after eating, bloating of the stomach, rising of the food, Waterbrash, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, Dizziness, Flatulency, Palpitation of the heart, Shortness of breath, and all affections of the heart caused by indigestion. We want every discouraged and dependent sufferer from Dyspepsia or Indigestion to cast aside all other medicine and give this remedy a trial. If it fails to give satisfaction I will refund your money.

MUNYON.

The enlarged rights which have recently been given to women of Turkey are said to have played no small part in bringing about the revolt of the rank and file of the army. The Turkish women's club house was one of the buildings in Constantinople fired upon by the troops, most of whom are said to be fanatical Mohammedans.

Co-Operative Living.

From "The Woman's Invasion," in Everybody's.

Each passing decade sees a larger and larger share of the life of the child transferred from individual to co-operative influences; in other words, transferred from within the home to outside the home. We have already observed that the same law of development exists in respect to certain other elements of home life. There has arisen a great demand on the part of housewives for food already cooked.

In one of the Chicago department stores last year, the manager of the grocery department sold more than $200,000 of chicken croquets, salami sausage, cervelat sausage, Southern hash, mutton stew, veal chops, fried perch, fried frogs' legs, combination salad, boiled ham, beef tongue, fried oysters, baked white fish, bologna sausage, deviled crabs, and so on, all ready to eat.

Of course, even $200,000 is a small amount compared with what a city as large as Chicago spends a year in food, but it shows in which direction the tendency is setting. There is probably 10 times as much cooked food sold in Chicago today as there was 10 years ago.

All these changes tend to contract the scope of the home, but it does not destroy that they tend to destroy its vital principle.

The End of Self Government.

By Walt Whitman.

I say the mission of government henceforth in civilized lands is not repression alone and not authority alone, not even of law, nor the rule of the best men—but to train communities through all their grades, beginning with individuals and ending there again, to rule themselves.

Eastern Colorado offers the best inducements to settlers at the present time of any part of the country. Land equal to that in the older states can now be had from $10.00 to $20.00 per acre. Crops of all kinds that are raised further east are raised there. Hundreds of farmers in the older states are selling their high priced lands, and investing where the prices are advancing rapidly. Lincoln County is one of the best Agricultural Counties in the state. W. S. Pershing of Limon, the County Surveyor, who has surveyed the lands for the U. P. Railroad and the Government for the last twenty years, is familiar with the whole country, and is assisting many to secure good locations. No part of the country offers better inducements to settlers or investors at the present time than Eastern Colorado.

Long, Long Thoughts.

The following golf story has been associated with the name of Oscar Asche. He began a round rather badly, but at length got in a really clean shot. Turning to his caddy, a dour Scotch youth, he said: "Good, that is not my worst player you've carried for, am I?" There was no reply. Later on, a long put was successfully holed, and Mr. Asche cried again: "What did I tell you? I'm not the worst player you've carried for, am I?" There was a long pause. Then the caddy replied: "Man, I'm just thinking!"

How to Know Good Meat.

From the Baltimore American.

Meat should be red, with the fat a clear white.

Pale pink denotes a diseased condition.

A purplish hue proves that the animal died a natural death.

The fat, besides being white, should be firm and suety, and never moist.

Good meat has not the slightest smell.

Bad meat usually gives forth a sort of medicinal odor.

Bad meat shrinks considerably in boiling.

Meat which is fresh and good does not lose an ounce of weight, but swells rather, when being boiled.

Over fifty years of public confidence and popularity.

That is the record of Hamlin Wizard Oil, the world's standard remedy for aches and pains. There's a reason and only one—MERRIT.

In the highlands of Scotland and in Ireland the 1st of May was called Beltane.

This was the name of an ancient pagan festival, traces of which have survived to this day. The name is still used for May day in Gaelic Scotland. It is said that the Druids on that day used to make two fires with great intentions and drive their cattle between them as a safeguard against disease.

A Cure for Hog Cholera.

Hog Cholera or Swine Plague as it is sometimes called is a highly contagious disorder.

When a hog shows any symptoms of this disease, he should be isolated at once and the pen fumigated in order to save the other hogs if possible.

Mix one part Sloan's Liniment with two parts milk in a bottle and give every sick hog a tablespoonful of this mixture night and morning for three days. Sloan's Liniment is a powerful antiseptic, kills the disease germs, soothes all inflammation and acts as a tonic to the animal.

A. J. McCarthy, of Idaville, Ind., says: "My hogs had hog cholera three days before we got Sloan's Liniment, which was recommended to me by a neighbor who was using it with success. I have used it now for three days and my hogs are almost well. One hog died before I got the Liniment, but I have not lost any since."

Mr. G. W. Balsbaugh, of Peru, Ind., writes: "I had four pigs that were coughing and were not doing well. I gave them some of Sloan's Liniment and they got better at once."

Sloan's book on Horses, Cattle, Hogs and Poultry sent free. Address Dr. Earl S. Sloan, Boston, Mass.

A Hogarthian Inn Sign.

From Strand Magazine.

One of the most humorous inn signs is "The Man Loaded With Mischief," which is found about a mile from Cambridge, on the Madingley road. The original "Mischief" was designed by Hogarth for a public house in Oxford street.

It is needless to say that the sign-board, and even the name, have long ago disappeared from the busy London thoroughfare, but the quaint device must have been extensively copied by country sign painters. There is a "Mischief" at Wallingford and a "Load of Mischief" at Norwich. The inn on the Madingley road exhibits the sign in its original form. Though the colors are most faded from exposure to the weather, traces of Hogarthian humor can be detected. A man, staggering under the weight of a woman, who is on his back. She is holding a glass of gin in her hand; a chain and padlock are around the man's neck, labeled "Wedlock." On the right hand side is the sign of a carpenter, a cooper, and a carpenter is just going in to pledge his tools.

Origin of the Anvil.

From the Boston Globe.

The anvil was known in the earliest times, being spoken of in the Bible, the prophet Isaiah saying (chapter 47, verse 7), "So the carpenter encouraged the goldsmith, and he that smoothened with the hammer, him that smelteth the anvil." It is not known who first used it, but of course the anvil of antiquity was unlike that of today as perfected by modern workmanship. The anvil still used in the Orient, however, is a boot shaped piece of metal inserted in a section of a wooden log; larger or smaller it is used by smiths, shoemakers, silversmiths and blacksmiths. The anvils used in this country are commonly made of cast iron faced with steel and are of parallelopiped form with a steel corner or beak at one end and a "handy hole" for inserting a chisel or other tools at the other end.

Wears Trousers and Does Man's Work.

Annie Bugenorth, the 17-year-old daughter of August Bugenorth, a farmer of Burlington, Conn., wears overalls and does a man's work because she likes it. The girl has been helping her father on the farm and wielding a shovel assisting him on a highway contract. Neighbors complained to the authorities and Bugenorth was arrested. But the muscularly inclined daughter promptly announced that she was not being forced to work, but that she was capable of earning a man's pay. Consequently her father was released and Annie continues to wear men's clothing.

Look Out, Mr. Baseball Fan!

From the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin.

It looks as if the opening of the baseball season were a serious matter in Norfolk, Va. Postmaster Carney of that city has set up in a conspicuous place in his office the following notice:

"All requests for leave of absence on account of toothache, severe colds and minor physical ailments, and on account of funerals, picnics, church societies and the like, must be handed to the superintendent of your division before 10 o'clock on the morning of the game."

There is no evidence in this that Postmaster Carney is a cynic. He may be only a humorist, at the worst he is probably nothing more reprehensible than a disciplinarian, and from all appearances not a very rigid one. A Cato in his place would set down his foot against the absence on baseball days. He does nothing of the kind; but it is noticeable that the rule which he promulgates gives him a chance to instigate inquiry, and if the employees of his postoffice who love baseball more than duty are not circumspect they find themselves compelled to make humiliating personal explanations and may miss leaves of absence which they had expected to enjoy.

Smallest French Conscript.

Correspondence of the London Telegraph.

There are, as everybody knows who has seen a French line regiment, some extremely small soldiers in the French army. Beyond doubt, however, the most diminutive conscript who ever drew an unlucky number from the urn is Julien Touchard, a young man born at Manves, in the department of Orne, on July 19, 1888. This conscript, who is in his 21st year, has only attained a height of 3 feet 2 inches, and weighs exactly 40 pounds. On April 1, when, along with his fellow conscripts, he appears before the council of revision for his district, Julien will appear clad in the short stockings and belted overalls of an infant, of which he presents the physical aspect. Though the military authorities are to enroll every available man, it is hardly likely that Julien Touchard will be required to shoulder a rifle. The youngest of a family of five children, Julien developed normally until he was vaccinated, at the age of 7, after which his growth entirely ceased.

Retribution.

Same Thing.

From Everybody's Magazine.

Mosie was a typhoid convalescent. He had been in the hospital seven weeks, but in all that time no one had succeeded in winning even the faintest smile from the little fellow. Perhaps the sorrows of Russia were still too vivid a memory. "And the one day the nurse tickled him playfully under the chin. He looked up with a pitiful little smile.

"Oh, so you are ticklish," said the nurse, laughing.

"No, ma'am," he replied, the smile instantly vanishing. "I'm Yiddish."

Not Far From Pittsburgh.

From the New York Morning Telegraph.

He was from Pittsburg, Pa., and was stopping at the Manhattan hotel. He wanted to telephone to a town about 30 miles away. He asked the girl on the switchboard to get him long distance and followed it up with asking the price.

"It will cost you 50 cents for three minutes," she said sweetly.

"Fifty cents! Ye gods!" cried the stranger. "I don't want to buy stock in the telephone company. I only want to talk a minute or so. Why, out in Pittsburg we can call up all Hades for 50 cents!"

"Yes, I know, sir," replied the girl, "but that is within your city limits."

Though Finland has been regarded up to the present as being extremely poor in iron ores recent research has proved the existence of ore fields in South Finland (Nylund) and above all in the Ladoga lake district, which seem to be worth the expense of mining. For research purposes a company has been formed.

FEARED AN OPERATION.

Found a Wonderful Cure Without It.

James Greenman, 142 East Front street, Ionia, Mich., says: "What I suffered during the worst stages of kidney trouble, I can never express. It was nothing short of torture. In bed for three months, with terrific pain in my back, an awful urinary weakness, dizziness, nervousness and melancholy. I rapidly lost 45 pounds. My doctor advised an operation, but I would not submit to it. Gravel was forming and the urine had almost stopped. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and after taking one box passed a stone half an inch long. I kept on taking the pills and passed smaller stones one after another until forty had been ejected. I recovered rapidly then and was soon as well as ever."

How Oregon Got Its Name.

We believe it most probable that the name of Oregon arose out of some circumstance connected with Western explorations under direction of the French. Earlier than the English the French had pressed on westward from the great lakes to the Red river, to the Saskatchewan and to the foot of the Rocky mountains. They were ranging the country of the upper Mississippi in search of furs and for trade with the natives; they were full of curiosity and in inquiry about the great distant west and the unknown westward sea. Of this sea they possessed Spanish charts and probably used among the natives the word "Oregon" as a synonym of Spain. When Jonathan Carver, of Connecticut, first made his expedition to the upper Mississippi country, in 1767-1768, he made all possible inquiries, he tells us, about the country toward the west, the western river and the sea and the word "Oregon," and the name was written for the first time, so far as we know, or possibly can ever know, in Carver's book published in London in 1778. It is a book of little importance or value, except for the fact that it gives the world the name of Oregon, which Carver says he got from natives in the country of the upper Mississippi.

Why He Was Honored.

From the Springfield Union.

A visitor to one of the hotels at Carlsbad, Germany, tells the story of a gentleman to whom was paid the most profound attention. Neither the visitor thus so strangely honored nor the other guests could make out what this deference meant. At last some one looked in the printed register, or Kurgast List. There was the entry, "James the 1st, King of Buffalo, N. Y." It was the native printer's rendering of the American name, James I. King, Buffalo, N. Y.

A True Sport.

From Life.

Small boy (to his pale faced aunt in field): What, auntie, afraid of that cow? All you have to do is to act the way they do in a bull fight, just wave your hat parrot at him, and when he dashes up jump lightly aside. It's dead easy.

Not Quantity, but Quality.

From the Baltimore News.

What this country needs is not larger cities, but better managed cities, less congestion, fewer tenement districts and lower death rates.

TORE HIS SKIN OFF

In Shreds—Itching Was Intense—Sleep Was Often Impossible—Cured by Cuticura in 3 Weeks.

"At first an eruption of small pustules commenced on my hands. These spread later to other parts of my body, and the itching at times was intense, so much so that I literally tore the skin off in shreds in seeking relief. The awful itching interfered with my work considerably, and also kept me awake nights. I tried several doctors and used a number of different ointments and lotions, but received practically no benefit. Finally I settled down to the use of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Pills, with the result that in a few days all itching had ceased and in about three weeks' time all traces of my eruption had disappeared. I have had no trouble of this kind since. H. A. Kruttschov, 5714 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., November 18 and 28, 1907."

Each Page Lost Him a Vote.

Washington Letter to the Boston Herald.

That whirlwind democratic orator from Maryland, Senator Isador Rayner, tells an incident of an unsuccessful campaign when he was running for re-election to the House, back in the eventful days of 1888.

"I had made a very careful study of the tariff," said he, "I was so enthusiastic about my conclusions that I wrote a booklet and distributed several thousand copies among my constituents. It contained 160 pages.

"The election was very close and I have had reason for congratulating myself that there were no more pages in my tariff book. My opponent won by exactly 150 votes."

Henry's Uncle.

From The Bits.

"Then I am to understand that this is your final answer, Miss Stubbles?"

"My final answer."

"Nothing can move you?"

"Nothing."

"Then my life will be a lonely one and my fate a harsh one, for my uncle with whom I live has just died and left me—"

"That fact somewhat alters the case, Henry. I cannot be harsh to one who has sustained such recent bereavement. If I could believe that you are sincere—"

"Sincere? Oh, Miss Stubbles!"

"You have certainly made an impression on my heart. Give me time to think of it."

"How long?"

"After all, why think of it? Henry, I am yours."

"Oh, Genevieve!"

"Do not squeeze me so hard, Henry. Your poor uncle! Was he long ill?"

"Three days."

"It is too bad! You say he left you—"

"Yes, he left me."

"How much?"

"How much? I said he had left me. He had nothing else to leave. I am alone in the world now, homeless, penniless, but with you by my side—why, she's fainted!"

Gamblers on the Mauretania.

From the New York Times.

The Mauretania, which came in Friday, brought many passengers. There was the usual story of professional gamblers fleeing unsuspecting passengers. Not in years, steamship men say, have there been so many sea going gamblers at work as now. Those on the Mauretania cleaned up about $2,000 in all, it was said, though about all the playing was done at a table placed directly under a special notice warning passengers that there were card sharps on board. An elderly man was accompanied by a young woman, who is said to have helped him in getting victims. He was recognized by detectives on the pier as an old hand at the game.

OPERATION CLEAR ONLY CHANCE

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Adrian, Ga.—"I suffered untold misery from a female weakness and disease, and I could not stand more than a minute at a time. My doctor said an operation was the only chance I had, and I dreaded it almost as much as death. One day I was reading how other women had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and decided to try it. Before I had taken one bottle I was better, and now I am completely cured."—LENA V. HENRY, Route No. 3, Adrian, Ga.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

A blue book, issued recently, contains statistics regarding licensed premises in England and Wales. It shows that at the beginning of last year there were 95,517 on license and 29,924 off license premises in the country, or 34.07 licensed premises in 10,000 of population. The number of on licenses decreased during the year by about 1,380 and off licenses by 280. There were 187,802 convictions for drunkenness during the year, a decrease of 9,621 compared with 1907.

CUT THIS OUT QUICK

and mail it back to me within one week from date of this paper, and I will gladly inform you by return mail free of charge, where you can secure one of the finest 190 acre free homesteads that you ever laid eyes on. I will tell you where some of the richest, best farming land is located that can still be had up right here in South Dakota.

This land is well watered, having an abundance of timber for fuel, and is situated on a twenty feet from the water. The land is only a few miles from a thriving and rapidly growing city in South Dakota, on the main line of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad. Farmers are raising enormous crops of wheat, corn, clover, which brings in from $35.00 to $50.00 per acre.

Stop and think, it will only cost you $14.00 to file on a 160 acre of the very best farming land, then you have six months more time to put up a house on your farm, and the Government will give you possession of the land, and it is yours then to start farming, stock raising, or you can let it stay just as it is, by only paying five acres, and at the end of ten years' residence on same the Government will give you a deed to your 160 acres of land, which you can buy around and sell for several thousand dollars.

Today this land will bring $20.00 per acre, if you had a deed on it, you could sell it for your whole 160 acres of land, and put it in Africa it would make your farm worth over one hundred dollars an acre, or more than fifteen thousand dollars for the 160 acres of land. This is the best way to get rich quick, and at the same time do it honestly. I have never heard of, during the last three years more people have taken up homesteads than ever before and the result is this has cut down a number of desirable homesteads that can still be taken.

I would suggest that you act upon this matter at once and secure a good homestead—for if you put this matter off, you are going to be disappointed. Bear in mind that you have an abundance of rainfall, and that you raise the largest crops here without irrigation. The people are taking up this valuable land very fast. There is plenty of timber near here, where you can secure all the fence posts and fuel from the timber reserve, free of charge. Everything that will grow in the Northwest will grow good here, grain, fruit, and all kinds of vegetables will do well. I have spent many months of time searching for a homestead. At last I found one. The location was so much better than I had ever dared to hope for that I thought I would tell every reader of this paper where they could also secure one of these free 160 acre choice homesteads, before they are all gone.

Write quick, before it is too late. Don't file on any Government land or buy a farm anywhere without first writing to me, as I am in the position to tell you where you can secure the very best farming land at prices lower than most people know of. My information is free to every interested person.

I am not in the land business, and have no land to sell. I am interested in helping every worthy homeseeker find a good homestead before they are all gone.

When you receive this country, come right to my place first, and I will gladly tell where the best land is that can still be had on. Write me before you connect with the land man, so that you can see the land, and you will know when to expect you. Your letter will have my prompt and careful attention, and I will use my right.
