Trouble in the Royal Palace.

From Success Magazine.
The Shakespeare club, of New Orleans, used to give amateur theatrical performances that were distinguished for the local prominence of the actors. Once a social celebrity, with a gorgeous costume, as one of the lords in waiting, had only four words to say: "The queen has swooned." As he stepped forward, his friends applauded vociferously. Bowing his thanks, he faced the hing and said in a very high-nitched king and said, in a very high-pitched voice, "The swoon has queened." There was a road of laughter; but

The Aspen Tree.

The little aspen tree stands high
Upon the hill that guards the lane;
Her leaves are green as emeralds,
Her prattle is like dancing rain;
She gossips to the wind, the sky,
And we are comrades, she and I.

I climb the hill at evenfall: She stands so high she may look down.

And whisper me if you have turned

The winding highway from the town,

And in the wind's arm bend to see

And murmur that you haste to me.

And with her hundred voices tell Each step you take to reach my side, And laugh in merry mockery Pretend to scold, and weep and chide, And stand a moment mute in grief Then laugh with every rustling leaf.

And when at last you take my hands And when at last you take my hands
And call my name in mimicry,
She chatters it a dozen times,
And then, in gay and clish glee,
Attunes her happy leaves to this—
The lisping cadence of a kiss.

Oh! like a queen's her happy tread,
And like a queen's her golden head!
But oh! at last, when all is said,
Her woman's heart for me!

We wandered where the river gleamed, 'Neath oaks that mused and pines that dreamed.
A wild thing of the wood she seemed,
So proud and pure and free!

All heaven grew nigh to hear her sing, When from her lips her soul took wing; The oaks forgot their pondering, The pines their reverie.

And oh! her happy queenly tread!
And oh! her queenly golden head!
But oh! her heart, when all is said—
Her woman's heart for me!

T++++++++++++++++++++++ Italian Railroading.
Alberto Fredericco, the head of New York's roast chestnut trust, an organization not to be despised, was praising Italy in a cafe.

"The only bad thing about Italy is its train service," he said. "I shall never for-get a winter experience of mine on the railroad that runs along the Mediterranean from Ventimille to Genoa. "I boarded this train at Ventimille one morning bound for San Remo. Off we started, snow covered mountains to our left, orange groves and rose farms about us, the blue sea on our right, and after some minutes we stopped.

"'Is this Bordighero?" I asked a guard.
"'No, it's a cow,' he answered. "There's a cow on the track."

"Well, after a while the cow was driven off, and we got under way again. Some few miles were traversed in a leisurely way, and then—we stopped again, "'Another cow?' I said to the guard bit-

A company which manufactures band instruments receives a large number of letters from green players, asking advice as to their difficulties. Several months ago this company sold a cornet to a man in Canada. As might have been expected, after he had played it for some time with-out removing the valves the action became stiff. He wrote to the manufacturer, explaining the trouble, and asking whether he should grease the valves. In answer he was told that was the usual custom of cornet players, when this difficulty oc-curred, to remove the valves and put a little saliva upon them. To their astor hment the next week's mail brought the following letter:

In many respects the discovery of the peacock eclipses the finding of the sabre-toothed tiger. The peacock was found by Loye H.
