> Pope's Priceless Clothes. From the Dertoit Free Press.

The most costly wardrobe in the world belongs, without a doubt, to the pope. Etiquet compels him to wear different garments each day of the year, and as nearly all of them are ornamented with rich and rare gems, ornamented with rich and rare gems, no millionaire could hope to purchase them, even if a value could be placed on them. The pope's little skull caps are of the finest silks, while his embroidered slippers of velvet are gorgeous to look at. Still more costly are his gloves, made of white wool, embroidered with fine pearls in the shape of a cross.

A special herd of 50 sheep is kept from which all the papal woolen garments are manufactured. The surplices are of the most valuable and beautiful lace, while one long cape, the "cappa magna," which is rarely worn, hangs straight from the shoulders, and literally gleams from top to bottom with gold and precious stones. The rings, too, which the pope wears, are priceless, containing, as they do, many stones of matchless quality. of a cross many stones of matchless quality.

Dear Sirs: In writing you this, I am doing something that I have never done before, volantarily. Several weeks ago I saw your coupon in the "Times-Star," and as a last resert I thought I would try your Haarlem Oil Capsules. You sent me the coupon, and to make a long story short, I am now on my second hox. I am, or was suffering from what I supposed was kidney trouble, caused by an overindulgence of beer, and the pain I suffered at night was excruciating, and left me feeling bad all next day. I have since then stopped drinking beer, thinking that would allay the pain, but without any good results. But your capsules have given me so much ease. I felt that not to write you would be doing you an injustice, hence this letter. I am going to continue their use indefinitely. Thanking you for your generous kindness in sending a coupon, I am,
