

TO introduce fine materials, clean methods, scientific equipment into the making of soda crackers was one triumph—

To actually bake into them a subtle goodness, a real individuality, never before known, was another triumph—

But to effectually protect them so that the fullest benefit of these fine materials, this careful, cleanly baking, this unique goodness comes to you unaltered, was the crowning triumph that gave the world

320 Acre Free Homestead

WYOMING, COLORADO AND MONTANA—The Mondell Homestead law makes provisions for 320 acre homesteads in certain localities, instead of the usual 160 acre tracts. The requirements of the law are practically the same regarding residence, improvements and cultivation. These lands are going fast; if you want a homestead close to the railroad, you should act now.

CROPS AND RAIN FALL—Visitors to the Omaha Corn Show will remember the magnificent display of farm products from Weston county, Wyoming, grown on exactly the same kind of land that can now be taken in 320 acre homesteads. The Mondell Act includes lands that receive from 16 to 21 inches of rain fall annually and you only need to see the crops grown by the farmers already located there, to be convinced. These homesteads can be taken along the Burlington's new line now building in Wyoming.

I personally conduct excursions the first and third Tuesdays of each month to these lands, and am employed by the Burlington to answer all inquiries, and to assist you in every possible way to locate along the Burlington Lines. Write for new folder and map of these lands.

"As dark as the day when old Jennie was hung" is one of the many quaint sayings that for generations has been used on the lower eastern shore of Maryland, but from the accounts that have been given by those who lived in old Jennie's day there never has been a day since that time as dark as the day on which she was executed for wholesale murder in the neighborhood in which she lived. The old murderess was publicly hanged in 1815 in the old jail yard at Princess Anne, and all those who remembered that particular day have passed into the great beyond long ago. The murderess was a white woman, tall and angular, and it was said that she resembled what was popularly supposed to be a witch far more than she did the up to date woman of that day. In fact, local history records that she practiced witchcraft. No one ever knew where she came from, she having "dropped down" very mysteriously into the neighborhood, where she killed a family of four. Old Jennie was not hanged on a scaffold. In those days murderers were executed with as little trouble and expense as possible. The wizen faced terror of all Somerset was placed in a cart drawn by two oxen and placed directly under a stout limb of an old oak tree which stood in the jail yard. The rope was fixed in rude fashion around her neck, amid the hurrahs of the crowd and the curses of the doomed woman, and when all was in readiness a bunch of fodder was placed ten paces from the oxen's heads, and they were given the word to start. Obeying the command, they made a bee line for the fodder and left old Jennie dangling at the end of the rope. That day, it has been told thousands of times, was the darkest ever known in this section. Chickens remained on their roosts throughout the entire day, while candles by the score burned in the houses that the servants might see to do their work. The local scientists of that day were at a loss to account for the strange phenomenon, and the graphic descriptions which they gave of it and which were recorded years ago make interesting reading. The darkies and superstitious whites of those days naturally thought that the end of time had come. A great many negroes declare today that the ghost of old Jennie may be seen stalking around on the edge of the woods near where she committed her crimes any time on a dark, cloudy night, and they are very careful not to encounter her.—Oriole (Md.)
