MUNYON'S Eminent Doctors at Your Service Free

Not a Penny to Pay for the Fullest Medical Examination.

If you are in doubt as to the cause of your disease, mail us a postal requesting a medical examination blank. Our doctors will carefully diagnose your case, and if you can be cured you will be told so; if you annot be cured you will be told so. You are not obligated to us in any way, for this advice is absolutely free. You are at liberty to take our advice or not, as you see fit.

Munyon's, 53d and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia, Pa.

She Meant Professionally. From Success Magazine. As the young man caressed the cheek of his lady love, she drew away hastily.

"I think," she said indignantly, "you had better see father first." "Why, what do you mean?" asked the perplexed lover.
"Father," she replied, as she nursed her sheek, "is a barber."

FASHION HINTS

Cashimere in old rose is used for this wrapper. An ecru insertion boarders the Dutch neck and comfortable little sleeves. An ecru insertion boarders the A medallion of the same lace meets the black silk crush girdle at the waist line. The girdle has long sash ends, finished with fluffy silk tassels.

ARE YOU LOSING PLESH racking cough that you cannot seem to chall you back to health.

PLAIN ENGLISH.

Cholly—You say your sister isn't in? are those her exact words?
Johnny—No; ter be exact, she said
"Tell der lobster I ain't in."

Sometimes the pedigree of the bull-dog is the only evidence of good breed-ing to be found about the home.

The dress which fits like a glove sometimes reminds one of a boxing glove.

Constipation causes many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One a laxative, three for cathartic.

It is just like some people to clamor for the "moss covered bucket" after the well has been outfitted with sterilized drinking cups.

All Who Would Enjoy

good health, with its blessings, must understand, quite clearly, that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best, each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to living aright. Then the use of medicines may be dispensed with to advantage, but under ordinary conditions in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluher, and it's a godsend she'll be to us if things go iil."

"An addition to our fleet, anyway."
California Fig Syrup Co. holds that it is elike important to present the subject truthfully and to supply the one perfect laxative to those desiring it.

Consequently, the Company's Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna gives general satisfaction. To get its beneficial effects buy the genuine, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

Her, and it's a godsend she'll be to us if things go iil."

"An addition to our fleet, anyway."
Cammock said. "We'd be mad to let ther go—just to make a man safe; we can make safe a deal cheaper!"
Flavia propped the sword carefully in an angle of the hearth, and moved forward. "But I do not understand." So, while the house walls gave back the ruddy glare of the torches and the barefooted, bareheaded, laughing collens dedicessing her brother.

"It is dreaming you are?" he retoried, 'contemptuously. "Is it we'll be taking note of that now?"

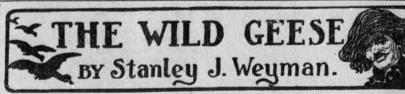

And all the time Cammock and the Bishop walked in the dark in the Bishop walked in the dark in the large of the torches and the Bishop walked in the dark in the limit the sum one!"

And all the time Cammock and the Bishop walked in the dark in the large of the torches and the barefooted, bareheaded, leughing collens of the thermal truthing and the large of the torches and the barefooted, bareheaded, leughing collens of the cargo, were to go free if Colonel Sullivan—but you know!" she added, breaking off and addressing her brother.

"It is dreaming you are?" he retoried, 'contemptuously. "Is it we'll be taking note of that now?"

And all the time Cammock and the Bishop walked in the dark in the large of the torches and the barefooted, bareheaded, leughing collens of the cargo were to go free if Colonel Sullivan—but you know!" she added, breaking off and addressing her brother.

"It is dreaming you are?" he re-toried, 'contemptuously. "Is it we'll be taking one!" her dark in the order of the castle tyrants of

(Copyright, 1909, by Stanley J. Weyman.)

CHAPTER X-Continued.

Colonel John recognized the weakness of his position. Before him the young men were five to one, with old Sir Donmen were five to one, with old Sir Donny and Timothy Burke in the rear. On his flank the help which Ulick might give was discounted by the move Cammock had made. He saw that he could do no more at present. Suddenly as the storm had blown up, he knew that he was dealing with desperate men, who from this day onward would act with their necks in a noose, and whom his word might send to the scaffold. They had but to denounce him to the rabble who waited outside, and, besides the had but to denounce him to the rabble who waited outside, and, besides the bishop, one only there, as he believed, would have influence to save him.

Colonel John had confronted danger many times; to confront it had been his trade. And it was with coolness and a clear perception of the position that he turned to Flavia. "I will give up my sword," he said, "but to my cousin only. This is her house, and I yield myself"—with a smile and a bow—"her prisoner."

yield myself'—with a smile and a bow
—"her prisoner."

Before they knew what he would be at he stepped forward and tendered his hilt to the girl, who took it with flaceld fingers. "I am in your hands now," he said, fixing his eyes on hers and endeavoring to convey his meaning to her. For surely, with such a face, she must have, with all her reckiessness, some womanliness, some tenlessness, some womanliness, some ten-derness of feeling in her.

"Hang your impudence!" The Mc-Murrough cried.

the O'Beirnes from the room, the other oringing up the rear.

When the door had closed upon them, Flavia's was not the only pale lace in the room. The scene had brought home to more than one the fact that here was an end of peace and aw and a beginning of violence and rebellion. The majority, secretly uneasy, put on a reckless air to cover their apprehensions. The bishop and Cammock, though they saw themselves in a fair way to do what they had come to do, looked thoughtful. Only Flavia, shaking off the remembrance of Colonel John's face and Colonel John's face and Colonel John's face and Colonel John's expected the resentment which the provisions of his grandfather's will had bred in him, he would have seen the Irish race in purgatory, and the Roman faith in a worse place, before he would have risked a finger to right the one or restore the other.

"The girl's right," Uncle Ulick said, "and we'll be rid of him."
"We'll be rid of him without that,"

The McMurrough muttered. "I am fearing, Mr. Sullivan," the bishop said, "that it is not quite un-derstood by all that we are embarked upon a matter of life and death. We cannot let bagatelles stand in the way. The sloop and her cargo can be made good to her owners at another time. For your relative and his servant"—

"The shortest way with them!" some one cried. "That's the best and some one cried. "That's the best and surest!"

"For them," the bishop continued, silencing the interruption by a look, "we must not forget that some days must pass before we can hope to get our people together. During the interval we lie at the mercy of an informer. Your own people you know, but the same cannot be said of this gentleman—who has very fixed ideas—and his servant. Our lives and the lives of others are in their hands, and it is of the last importance that they be kept secure and silent."

"Ay, silent's the word," Cammock growled.

"There could be no better place than

"There could be no better place than one of the towers," The McMurrough suggested, "for keeping them safe, be-

"And why'll they be safer there than in the house?" Uncle Ulick asked su-perstitiously. He looked from one speaker to another with a baffled face, trying to read their minds. He was sure that they meant more than they said.

"Hang your impudence!" The Mc Murrough cried.

"A truce a truce," the bishop interposed. "We are all agreed that Colonel Sullivan knows too much to go free, the must be secured," he continued imoothly, "for his own sake. Will two of these gentlemen see him to his yoom, and see also that his servant is placed under guard in another room?"

"But," the colonel objected, looking at Flavia, "my cousin will surely allow me to give"—

"She will be guided by us in this," the bishop rejoined with asperity. "Let what I have said be done."

Flavia, very pale, holding the colonel's sword as if it might sting her, ild not speak. Colonel Sullivan, after a moment's hesitation, followed one of the O'Beirnes from the room, the other pringing up the rear.

When the door had closed upon the colonel Sullivan after a moment's hesitation, followed one of the O'Beirnes from the room, the other pringing up the rear.

When the door had closed upon the colonel Sullivan after a moment's hesitation, followed one of the O'Beirnes from the room, the other pringing up the rear.

When the door last they meant thous and. "Oh, for the good reason!" the young man returned contemptuously. "Isn't all the world passing the door upstairs? And what more easy than to open it?"

Cammock's eyes met the bishop's. "The tower'll be best," he said. "Draw off the people, and let them be taken the vorley passing the door upstairs? And what more easy than to open it?"

Cammock's eyes met the bishop's. "The tower'll be best," he said. "Draw off the people, and let them be taken thousened in the world passing the door upstairs? And what more easy than to open it?"

Cammock's eyes met the bishop's. "The tower'll be best," he said. "Draw off the people, and let them be taken thousened in the world passing the door upstairs? And what more easy than to opten the world passing the door upstairs? And what more easy than to open it?"

Cammock's eyes met the bishop's. "The tower'll be best," he said. "Draw off the people, and let them be taken thousened."

This guardian

It Was a Heavy Tramping on the Stairs that Awakened Them.

inved. Wrongs beget a passion of affection, and from oppression springs sacrifice. This daughter of the wideswept shore, of the misty hills and fairy glens, whose life from infancy had been bare and rugged and solitary, and become, for that reason, a dreamer of dreams and a worshipper of the ideal Ireland, her country, her faith, ideal Ireland, her country, her faith, the peat creek that lashed her cheeks at her hair, the peat creek which served as a beacon to the valley to the force out the force out the served him.

His people had kindled a huge bon-fire in the middle of the force out, and beach the fire in the middle of the force out, and beach the served him.

His people had kindled a huge bon-fire in the middle of the force out, and beach the served him.

His people had kindled a huge bon-fire in the middle of the force out, and beach the served him.

His people had kindled a huge bon-fire in the middle of the force out, and beach the served him.

His people had kindled a huge bon-fire in the middle of the force out, and the served him.

His people had kindled a huge beach the intoxicated him.

His people had kindled a huge bon-fire in the middle of the force out, and the served him.

His people had kindled a huge beach the intoxicated him. and tore at her hair, the peat creek and the soft shadows of the bogland—ay, and many an hour of lonely communing—had filled her breast with such care as impels rather to suffering and to sacrifice than to enjoyment.

For one moment she had recoiled before the shock of impending vio-lence. But that had passed; now her one thought, as she stood with dia-lated eyes, unconsciously clutching the colonel's sword, was that the time was come, the thing was begun-henceforth she belonged not to herself, but to Ireland and to God.

Deep in such thoughts the girl was not aware that the others had got together and were discussing the colone's fate until mention was made of the French sloop and of Captain Augustin. "Faith, and let him go in that!" she heard Uncle Ulick urging. "D'ye hear me, your reverence? "Twill be a week before they land him, and the fire we'll be lighting will be no secret at all at all by then."

"May be, Mr. Sullivan," the Bishop replied—"may be. But we cannot spare the sloop."

"No, we'll not spare her!" The McMurrough chimed in. "She's heels to Deep in such thoughts the girl was acclaiming thousands, but the scaffold, and a death for her country. Sweet it seemed to her to die for the cause, for the faith, to die for Ireland.

True, her country, her Ireland, was but this little corner of Kerry beaten by the Atlantic storms and sad with the wailing cries of seaguils. But if she knew no more of Ireland than this she had read her story; and naught is more true than that the land the most downtrodden is also the best beloved. Wrongs beget a passion of affection, and from oppression springs agentiage. This daughter of the wides riment less restrained, while a third, which served as a beacon to the valley and a proclamation of what was being done, glowed on the platform before the ruined tower at the head of the lake. From this last the red flames streamed far across the water, and now revealed a belated boat shooting from the shadow, now a troop of countrymen, who, led by their priest, came limping along the lakeside, distensibly to join in the services of the morrow, but in reality to hear something and to do something toward freeing old Ireland and shaking off the grip of the cursed Saxon.

In the more settled parts of the land

In the more settled parts of the land

Murrough chimed in. "She's heels to her, and it's a godsend she'll be to us if things go ill."

Surprise Kenmare. Masters of the places, they proposed to raise the standard, to call Connaught to the standard of the cry's cryeagle.

garden, a little apart from the turnion, and, wrapped in their cloaks, talked in low voices, debating much of Sicily and Naples and the Cardinal and the Medi-Naples and the Cardinal and the Mediterranean fleet, and at times laughing at some court story. But they said, strange to tell, no word of Tralee or of Kenmare, or of Dublin Castle, or even of Connaught. They were no visionaries. They had to do with greater things than these, and in doing them knew that they must spend to gain. The lives of a few score peasants, the ruin of half a dozen hamlets, what were these beside the diversion of a single squadron from the great pitched fight, already foreseen, where the excess of one battleship might win an empire and its absence might ruin nations?

And one other man, and one only, because his life had been passed on their wider plane, and he could judge their wider plane, and he could judge of the relative value of Connaught and Kent, divined the trend of their thoughts and understood the delibera-tion with which they prepared to sacrifice their pawns.

Colonel Sullivan sat in the upper room of one of the two towers that flanked of one of the two towers that flanked the entrance to the forecourt. Bale was with him, and the two, with the door doubly locked upon them and guarded by a sentry whose crooning they could hear, shared such comfort as a pitcher of water and a gloomy outlook afforded. The darkness hid the medley of odds and ends which littered their prison; but the inner of the two their prison; but the inner of the two slit-like windows that lighted the room admitted a thin shaft of firelight that, dancing among the uncovered rafters, told of the orgy below. Bale, staring morosely at the crowd about the fire crouched in the splay of the window, while the Colonel, in the same position at the other window, gazed with feelings not more cheerful on the dark lake He was concerned for himself and his companion. But he was more gravely concerned for those whose advocate he had made himself—for the ignorant cotters in their lowly hovels, the women, the children, upon whom the inevitable punishment would fall. He doubted, now that it was too late, the wsdom of the course he had taken; and, blaming himself for precipitation, he fancied that if he had acted with a little more guile, a little less haste, his remonstrance might have had greater weight. William Bale, as was natural, thought He was concerned for himself and his strance might have had greater weight. William Bale, as was natural, thought more of his own position. "May the fire burn them!" he muttered, his ire excited by some pranks of the party below. "The Turks were polite beside these barefoot devils!"

"You'd have said the other thing at Bender," the Colonel answered, turning his head.

"Ay, your honor," Bale returned;

"Ay, your honor," Bale returned; "a man never knows when he is well off." His master laughed. "I'd have you apply that now," he said.
"So I would if it weren't that I've a kind of a scunner at those black bog holes," Bale said. "To be planted head first's no proper end of a man, to my thinking, and if there's not something of the kind in these ragamuffins' minds I'm precious mistaken."
"Pooh, man, you're frightening your-"Pooh, man, you're frightening your-self," the Colonel answered. But the room was dark and chill, the lake with-room was dark and chill, the lake without lay lonely, and picture where Bale's words called up was not pleasant to the bravest. "It's a civilized land, and they'd not think of it!"

"There's one, and that's the young lady's brother," Bale answered darkly, "would not pull us out by the feet! I'll swear to that. Your honor's too much in his way, if what they say in the house is true."

"Pooh!" the Colonel answered again. "We're of one blood."

"Cain and Abel," Bale said. "There's example for it." And he chuckled.

The Colonel scolded him anew. But having done so he could not shake off.

having done so he could not shake off the impression which the man's words had made on him. While he lived he had made on him. While he lived he was a constant and an irritating check upon James McMurrough. If the young man saw a chance of getting rid of that check, was he one to put it from him? Colonel John's face grew long as he pondered the question; he had seen enough of James to feel considerable doubt about the answer. The fire on the height above the lake had died down, the one on the strand was a bed of red ashes. The lake lay buried in darkness, from which at intervals the cry of an owl as it moused along the sore rose mournfully. the sore rose mournfully the sore rose mournfully.

But Colonel John was not one to give way to fears that might be baseless.

"Let us sleep," he said, shrugging his shoulders. He lay down where he was, pillowing his head on a fishing net. Bale said nothing, but examined the door before he stretched himself across the threshold. the threshold.

the threshold.

Half an hour after dawn they were roused. It was a heavy tramping on the stairs that awakened them. The door was quickly unlocked, it was thrown open, and the hairy face of O'Sullivan Og, who held it wide, looked in. Behind him were two of the boys with pikes—frowsy, savage, repellent figures, with drugget coats tied by the sleeves about their necks.

"You'll be coming with us, Colonel, no less," Og said.

' Og said. Colonel John looked at him. "Whither, my man?" he asked cooly. He and Bare had got to their feet at the first

(Continued Next Week)

VAIN LONGINGS. First Actor—I say, Friend De Ham: Second Actor—Yes, Friend De Shy? First Actor—Wouldn't it be great if se could only eat all the roasts we get?

A Song of Life. Praised be the lips of the morn
For their musical message of light,
For their bird-chanted burden of song.
Praised be the young earth reborn
For its freshness and glory and might
And the thoughts of high, solemn delight,
That a flash of its purity throng.

Praised be the lips of the day
For their clarion call to the field
Where the battle of life must be fought.
Praised be the fire of the fray
Where the soul is refined and annealed,
And the spirit heroic revealed,
And pure gold from the base substances wrought.

Praised be the lips of the night
For their murmurous message of rest,
For their lullaby, motherly sweet,
Praised be theedreams of delight,
While tired life is asleep in love's nest,
And in harmony tender and blest Heaven's calm and earth's lovellest meet.
—Israel Zangwill.

SUFFRAGET BURNS POLLING OFFICERS WITH DEADLY ACID

Leader of Movement Says Government's Policy Drives Women to Crimes.

London, Oct. 30 .- Mrs. Chapin, a suffraget, furnished an early morning thrill at the Bermondsey bi-election today when she smashed a bottle containing corrosive acid on a ballot box. Her intention, evidently, was to destroy the ballots in the box as a protest against the exclusion of women from the right of franchise. What she accomplished was the painful burning of some of the election officials and the assurance of her own arrest.

Slipping into one of the booths, where perhaps a thousand ballots had been deposited, Mrs. Chapin drew from un-der her cloak a bottle in which ink had been mixed with corrosive acid, and before she could be stopped, hurled the bottle upon the box.

It broke into many pieces and the acid splashed upon the election officers. A number of these were so severely injured as to require medical attention. Similar Outrage Attempted.

About the same time a similar outrage was attempted at another booth by a girl, who wore the suffraget colors, In the latter instance little damage was done beyond the burning of the finger tips of the election officers who removed the bits of broken glass. So far as could be ascertained none of the acid had reached the ballots.

Later, in an interview, Miss Christa-bel Pankhurst, while deproring the wounding of the officials, asserted with much emphasis:

"It is the government that is responsible. It is the government that drives women to these acts."

Violence Prearranged. It appears that today a violence was planned by the Women's Freedom league, the members of which glory in what was done. Members of this same league picketed the house of commons for 15 weeks. The league's secretary is Mrs. Edith Martyn. In an interview following the attack on the ballot boxes, Mrs. Matryn said.

Mrs. Matryn said:
"We thought that as Premier Asquith had not shown himself amenable quith had not shown himself amenable to our requests, the time had come to take more active measures. Our plans were thought out most carefully and we found delight in the opportunity to carry them out on the anniversary of the 'Grille protest' in the house of commons, which was perpetrated by the Women's Freedom league.

"Our object this morning was to invalidate the election. We had various plans and the others would have been tried during the day had this one failed."

On October 28, 1908, a suffraget demonstration was made in the ladies' galleries during a sitting of the house of commons.

When attendants sought to employ the galleries they found that two suf-fragets had firmly chained themselves to the grille or lattice from behind which feminine eyes must view the pro-which feminine eyes must view the proceedings of the house.

For a time the two volunteer prisoners resisted the efforts to remove them.

Today's bi-election in the Bermondzey division of Southwark (one of the parliamentary boroughs of London), is of unusual interest and it is expected to afford a good test of the feeling in London and the country generally on the impending struggle in parliament. A strong fight on the budget against tariff reform has been waged in this constituency. The candidates are: Liberal, S. L. Hughes; unionist, John Dumphreys; labor, Dr. A. Salter.

At the last general election the liberals had a majority of 1,759.

MILITANT SUFFRAGISTS Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 30.—There will be two factions in the state organization of the equal suffragists from this time on, and Mrs. Julia Clark Hallam, of Sioux City, is ready to lead the militant branch corresponding to the suf-fragets of Great Britain, according to announcement made in the meeting of the equal suffrage association yester-day afternoon.

Mrs. Hallam will discuss the militant side of the question at a meet-ing Friday afternoon, this plan grow-ing out of the note of warfare sounded at yesterday's meeting.

Although Mrs. Hallam would not state the position she is to take before the association, it is well known that she will make one of the greatest fights ever made before a state convention for more progressive and militant tac-

STEAMER WITH SOLONS ABOARD BREAKS DOWN

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 30.—A special to the Gazette from Helena, Ark., says: to the Gazette from Helena, Ark., says:
Because of a breakdown in the engine room of the steamer Gray Eagle, one of the fleet of boats accompanying President Taft to New Orleans, and the attending danger of the steamer catching fire, the boat was run aground 10 miles north of Helena last night to disembark its distinguished passengers in safety. The breakdown followed the dropping of the grates in the fireroom. The passengers, including the governors of several states and other prominent men, boarded other boats of the fleet and the voyage continued, reaching Helena as the president's steamer, the Oleander, was departing. steamer, the Oleander, was departing. Among those on board the Gray Eagle were Governor Donaghney, of Arkansas; Governor Shallenberger, of Ne-braska; Governor Prouty, of Vermont, and Senator Gore, of Oklahoma.

SLAYER OF ITO IS A KOREAN EDITOR

sassin of Prince Ito was identified to-day as Inchan Angan, a former editor of a newspaper at Seoul.

He declared that he was one of an organization of 20 Koreans who had taken an oath that they would kill the Japanese statesman.

The assassin used dum down builts. Harbin, Manchuria, Oct. 30 .- The as-assassin used dum-dum bullets, which had been poisoned with cyanide. ******

"PROFESSOR" HILL HELD FOR MURDER

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 30.—
"Professor" Frank Hill, the herb doctor of this city, was held without bail for the grand jury today for the murder of Miss Amelia St. Jean, of Woonsocket, Rhode Island, whose dismembered body was found along the Bulgarmarsh road in the adjoining town of Tiverton. R. I., two weeks ago.

WARNED.

Cholly—You say she threw you over without any warning? Willy—No; she warned me if I ever

The Antiquity of Dice.

From Harper's Weekly.
Scholars have delved in vain for the origin of dice, which, in various shapes, have been used in forms of worship and religious caremonies since the dawn of history. Their earlier use was for the forecasting of events and obtaining of divine guidance; their adaptation to a game of chance was, comparatively, a game of chance was, comparatively, quite recent.

There is a surprising number of varieties of dice, but they may be divided into two general classes. The most familiar form is the cube. With two exceptions—the Korean and Etrusean—cubical dice have the spots so arranged that the six and one, five and two, and three and four are opposite, making the sum of the opposite sides invariably seven. In all ages the number seven has been regarded with particular awe and as having much mystic import.

The dice just described are not only proper to modern Europe and America, but to classical Greece and Rome, ancient Syria, Persia, India, China, Japan, Siam. The other form is the long square prism sometimes found amid prehistoric ruins in Europe and existing today in India.

A most interesting form is the top or spinning dice with four or six sides, which was twirled with the thumb and second finger, of which a specimen was discovered in the remains of Naucratis, a Greek colony of 600 B. C. Two specimens of dice have been discovered at Babylon.

of dice have been discovered at Babylon.

A PESSIMIST She—Our new minister is preaching about "Hell."

He—Must be he's married.

Six bottles of Danish brandy were discovered in the huge accordion of a wandering minstrel who had regularly traveled between Denmark and Sweden during the Swedish strike, when the sale of alcohol was prohibited.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Coffee Usually Means Sickness, but Postum Always Means Health. Those who have never tried the experiment of leaving off coffee and drinking Postum in its place and in this way regaining health and happiness can learn much from the experience of others who have made the

One who knows says: "I drank coffee for breakfast every morning until I had terrible attacks of indigestion producing days of discomfort and nights of sleeplessness. I tried to give up the use of coffee entirely, but found it hard to go from hot coffee to a glass of water. Then I tried Postum.

"It was good and the effect was so pleasant that I soon learned to love it and have used it for several years. I improved immediately after I left off coffee and took on Postum and am now entirely cured of my indigestion and other troubles all of which were due to coffee. I am now well and contented and all because I changed from coffee to Postum.

"Postum is much easier to make right every time than coffee, for it is so even and always reliable. We never use coffee now in our family. We use Postum and are always well."

"There's a reason" and it is proved by trial. Look in pkgs. for a copy of the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville.' Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.