LIFE IN NEW YORK

How It May Run In a Deep Rut In the Matter of Locality.

LAMENT OF A MAN WHO MOVED

The Homesickness That Came With Working Uptown After Twenty Years of Routine Travel to and From and In the Downtown District.

There are thousands and thousands of men in New York city whose business has been confined to one district for twenty years or more, whose daily routine seldom fluctuates, who are punctual in traveling by a certain train every day in the week, who reach their offices, barring tie-ups, at a regular hour and take up their daily grind and hold to it until the hour of closing.

Many of these men unconsciously get to know and make friends of people whose names they never learn. They become attached to localities in a strange sort of way and do not realize how strong is the attachment. Here is the story of one of them into whose life there has come a change through moving that startles and surprises him and throws a quaint light upon some of the city's people.

"In the twenty years that I was downtown," the man said in telling his experience, "I was in the habit, weather permitting, of taking a walk after the luncheon hour every day in some street between City Hall and the Battery. I have footed every bit of unbulit ground in that territory. What marvelous changes have come in those twenty years! How many signs on buildings have changed in that time! How many houses have been pulled down! How many new ones have gone up, some of them towering skyward, to take the places of the landmarks?"

"I got to know the lower end of town so well I could shut my eyes and make a mental picture of many of the blocks and see the names on the buildings. If I wanted any article, from shoelaces to anything elaborate, I knew exactly where to get them. If some particular dish were desired I knew where it could be served and just what it would cost.

"A great city never stands still. It is as restless as the great deep. But the man who becomes a part of it does not think until he gets away from the part of it where he has done business what the changes are. When I began my strolls there were no tunnels under the two rivers. In the years that have drifted away great bridges have been constructed between Manhattan and Long Island. It does not seem long since I used to hear the restless puff of the coal fed locomotives of the elevated system, yet so gradually did the old order pass that I do not distinctly recall when the present system was installed.

"The changes that took place in business firms were interesting. Many, many times I have seen the name of the man who established a trade taken down and that of his son or sons take its place. So frequently were the same people met in the same place and at the same hour that we nodded as we passed, although none of us knew the name of the nodder.

"Not long ago the business with which I am connected made a jump uptown. Never until I took my traps uptown had I any occasion to walk in the street where our new building stands. The first day I went out to luncheon I had to search for a restaurant. It seemed odd. I saw people I never saw before. I read signs—one of my fool habits—I never read before. Many of the vehicles that passed were quite unlike those I used to see downtown.

"I had to change my hour and route for coming to business. For awhile I had to watch the street signs to know where to get off. How I missed the familiar call of the guard of the car—for I always came down in the same car in the makeup of the elevated train—the one I always boarded at the same hour.

"And that makes me think. I came to know by their faces most of the passengers who boarded that train at my station. I knew where most of them got off. Now that I am in new quarters in a new section I miss all these people with whom I traveled for years. Do they miss me, I wonder? "And the many whom I came to know downtown—how they will be missed! There is the old street preacher who used to stand on a soap box near Wall street or on the stone steps of the custom house and talk to people in the summer days and again in the days that betokened the coming of autumn. Then there were the Lenten days when I spent a part of my hour at Trinity or in old St. Paul's. I came to know the regular attendants on those services so that the strangers became conspicuous. There are no street preachers in the new district to which I have gone. I wonder why the middle district of the great city doesn't need spiritual direction as well as the downtown districts.

"And so it seems sometimes that I am in a new town, among new people, seeing new buildings, reading new signs, hearing new voices, but all in the same old New York. And when I think of the old walks I have taken downtown, the old buildings that I passed so often that they became as familiar as the faces I met and never knew by name, of the strolls along the two rivers, of the craft I saw so often coming and going—when I think of all these there comes over me that sort of feeling that a boy has when he misses his mother. I think it is called homesickness."—New York Press.

Nebraska's Population.

Nebraska has 1,192,214 people, about half as many as live in the city of Chicago. But this is 125,914 more than the state had ten years ago.

Douglas county gained 28,158 Lancaster 8,958 That makes 37,116 added to the cities of Lincoln and Omaha. That leaves a gain of 77,798 in the rural district, about 1.01 persons to the square mile of area. This is about what the birth rate should show in ten years above the death rate.

The following counties have lost in population: Burt, Butler, Cass, Clay, Cuming, Dixon, Dodge, Fillmore, Frontier, Furnas, Gosper, Johnson, Kearney, Nemaha, Otoe, Pawnee, Phelps, Polk, Richardson, Saline, Saunders and Washington. Some of the counties have lost more than 1,000 inhabitants.

Sues Northwestern Railroad.

David A. Huston of Ewing has brought suit against the Chicago and Northwestern railroad company for $910.00 damages alleged to have been sustained in the shipment of a carload of horses on the defendant's company's road from Ewing, Mo., to Geneva, Neb. In the petition he alleges that he shipped the horses on Nov. 3, 1910, and that the trip should have been made in eighteen hours, but on account of the dilatory tactics of the defendant it took twenty eight hours to make the trip. For this delay in delivery he asks $100. He further alleges that one horse, valued at $120, was bruised, mangled and made lame and injured to the damage of the plaintiff in the sum of $115; another valued at $100, was damaged to the extent of $55; another valued at $150 was damaged to the extent of $100; one team valued at $275 damaged to the extent of $55; one yearling damaged to the extent of $20; another yearling valued at $85 damaged to the extent of $45; The remaining twenty-one head were damaged to the extent of $420, making a total of $910, for which sum with interest at seven per cent from Nov. 4, 1910, plaintiff prays for judgment against said corporation.
