Tuesday's election was a tame affair in O'Neill. There was no issue and but one set of candidates to vote for and the voters cared little whether they attended the polls or not. The Third ward furnished the only incentive for the voters to turn out, there being two candidates for councilman in that ward. C. E. Hall was re-elected over C. C. Millard by 18 votes.

Omaha Trade Exhibit: All towns need good newspapers just as much as they need good stores. But no newspaper can be at its best as a town booster unless it is filled with good advertising. And no store can do a maximum business unless well advertised. Thus, you see, the matter of advertising is thoroughly reciprocal.

In county court Monday the complaint of Lora Arnold, an unmarried woman, was heard wherein she charged one Robert Benjamin of being the father of a child born to her a year ago. Benjamin was held to the district court for trial on $800 bonds, which were furnished. The parties reside in the southwest part of this county.

C. R. Lewis, the enterprising mail carrier on the Chambers route, has put an auto of the International Roadster type on the route and is now carrying the mail, express and passengers in modern style. In the amount of business transacted, the Chambers route is the best in the county and Mr. Lewis believes in giving his patrons the best of service. It is about a forty-five mile trip six days in the week and is a hard one on horses.

The marital troubles of Lee and Jessie Conger were settled in district court Monday when a divorce was granted and $300 alimony paid over to the wife. The husband brought the action for divorce, alleging cruel treatment. Both parties signed a written consent for Judge Harrington to preside over the case, he being disqualified by statute because his brother was one of the attorneys.

County Attorney Whelan, Clerk of the Court Harmon and Dr. P. J. Flynn went to Atkinson in an auto Friday afternoon last and convened there as the board of insanity to examine Mrs. Margaret Withers, whom they adjudged insane. The patient at present is being cared for by her relatives as admittance can not be had at the hospital at Norfolk or Lincoln, both institutions being crowded to the fullest capacity.

The supervisors have from time to time been applied to for a lease of the southeast corner of the court house grounds by individuals who wished to build thereon. The county attorney has secured an opinion from the state legal department to the effect that there is no authority in law for a county board of supervisors to sell or lease lands owned by the county. If disposition of this kind of county property is desired it must be voted upon by the voters of the county.

Judge Harrington and Reporter Scott went to Ainsworth Monday to hold an adjourned session of district court. A motion for a change of venue in the case of George Wilson, who was on trial for the murder of Jacob Davis December 27, 1909, was supposed to be presented but further proceedings in behalf of the accused man were suspended by Wilson pleading guilty and making a full confession of the crime. The judge sentenced him to 25 years in the Nebraska penitentiary.

Besides being a great "runner" in a political chase, County Surveyor Norton is also some walker when it comes to travel. Norton has "out ran" everybody that ever came up for county surveyor the last twenty years and he now seems in a fair way to attain distinction as a pedestrian. Last Wednesday, with the wind blowing a fierce gale from the northwest, Mr. Norton walked from his home near Bliss postoffice to O'Neill, a distance of twenty-five miles dead against the wind, and says he did not stop for food or water. He left home between eight and nine o'clock and was in O'Neill by supper time.

Either the managers of the York business college or some sharpers misrepresenting them have been trying to flimflam the public. It has come to light recently that what were supposed to be agreements to send boys and girls to the college were promissory notes. The York institution has the signature of one O'Neill man on one of these documents for something over $100 and have been trying to bluff payment out of him. The O'Neill man says it is a clear case of attempted flimflam; that when the agent of the school was here some three or four years ago he represented that he was having agreements signed by the parents of as many boys and girls who desired to attend the college the next term so the college managers would know how many pupils were coming. He signed an agreement to send his son and now a lawyer down at York claims to have his note for $114. He says he will pay no attention to their threats and if they attempt to force collection will have them prosecuted for fraud. The game has been worked extensively over this state and Kansas, and if the college is really responsible it is not a very good recommendation for the place as an institution of learning.

An exchange says this mixture pretty nearly went through a recent edition of the paper as the result of a drunken printer having the "copy" of a marriage writeup and a sale bill before him at the same time: "Sam Jones, the banker, was disposed of at public sale to Miss Lena Smith, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas Smith, on my farm two miles east of town in the presence of 75 guests including the following to wit: 7 mules, 12 head of cattle, Rev. Johnson tied the nuptial knot. The beautiful home was tastefully decorated with a Black Hawk corn planter, 1 sulky hay rake, 1 feed grinder; 1 set of double work harness new and just before the wedding ceremony was pronounced Mendelssohn's inspiring wedding march was softly rendered by 1 milch cow 5 years old, 1 Jersey cow to be fresh next spring, carrying a bunch of flowers in her hand and looking charming in a gown of light spring wagon, 6 sheaves of corn, 3 ricks of hay, 1 grind stone Mouseline de sole trimmed with about 100 bundles of wheat. The groom is a well known popular young man and always stood well in society circles of 12 Berkshire hogs while the bride is an accomplished and talented teacher, a splendid drove of Poland Chinas with pedigrees furnished if desired. Among the beautiful presents were two sets of silver knives and forks, 1 steam riding plow, 2 wheel barrows, go cart, bob sled and many other articles too numerous to mention. The bridal couple left yesterday for an extended 12 months time to responsible parties otherwise cash. Big free lunch at the wedding breakfast, and after the state fair they will be found hanging out to receive callers at their cozy little home at 10 o'clock sharp."

Encouragement and Discouragement.
The Pender Republic refers to the society ambitious in that town as "codfish aristocracy." Mostly carp up this way.

An exchange thinks that the farm boys who are being attracted by the nifty uniforms and romance of the seas on board a battle ship will win more comfort and happiness in the end if they stick to the blue jeans and the farm.

"I am not much of a mathematician" said a cigarette, "but I can add to a man's nervous troubles; I can subtract from his physical energy; I can multiply his aches and pains; and can divide his mental powers. I can take interest from his work, and discount his chances of success."

A Cherry county rancher criticizes the government weather prognosticators for not keeping the stockmen posted on approaching storms and suggests that if they would come up to the ranch and go through a blizzard pullings steers out of swamps and streams by the tail they might learn something.

A girl of rare judgment says she would marry the young fellow that gets out and hustles for any job, from laboring with a shovel in a mortar box to a salaried place in the field of commerce, rather than the aimless chap with kid gloves and no socks who seems satisfied if he gets a nickel now and then to buy a package of smoking tobacco.

The wife often does a great deal more toward contributing to her husband's success than she is given credit for, even by her liege lord. How nice it would be if every husband would say to his good wife, that she had cheered him on to success, that the thoughts of the welcome that awaited him on his returning home, had kept up his courage and caused him to win where he might otherwise have failed; or that the nicely kept and cheery home, his always ready meals, the economy with which the household affairs are managed; all contributed to success. All this is so true. Many a mother, sister or wife have made a success of a man who without the guidance or inspiration of a good woman would have been a failure.

Partnership Homestead Entry.

From a bulletin sent out by D. Olem Deaver of the Burlington railroad this paragraph is taken:

The public land laws provide that two persons may jointly take up public land under the mining laws, and one person do the work on the claim, the other furnishing the necessary money to buy supplies. This is commonly known as the Grub-Stake law, and each owns a half interest in any land so obtained from the government. There is no good reason why this principle should not apply to land taken up under the homestead law, and a bill embodying this idea is now before Congress. If Congress should pass this bill it would give any opportunity for labor and capital to work together in the matter of taking up public land, one person furnishing the necessary money to properly improve and go through with the homestead and the other furnishing the necessary work and residing on the claim. This would provide a means for very many worthy people to acquire a home who have no hopes of getting homes of their own under the present public land laws.
