Methodist Church Items
 As usual, the faithful few were in attendance upon the class meeting last Sunday morning. We had a good service and it helped us to more fully enjoy the other services of the day. Every member of the church ought to be interested in this service of the day.
 "Our Lord's Triumphant Entrance into Jerusalem," will be the subject of our morning discourse next Sunday and in the evening we will consider the subject, "The Oil that Wasteth Not." Our morning service begins at 10:30, and our evening service at 8 o'clock until further notice. We most cordially invite everybody to come in and enjoy these services with us. There is always a warm welcome for the stranger at our church.
 Sunday school every Sunday at the close of our morning service. This interesting service is always heartily enjoyed by those who participate in it. We most heartily desire all of our friends to come in and study with us.
 Prayer meeting every Thursday evening at 7:30. This service is interesting and very profitable, and we cordially invite our neighbors to worship with us.
 The Ladies' Aid Society will meet in the class room Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. All ladies are invited to meet with them. The work is crowding just now.

Opportunity Items.
 The annual meeting of the Spring Branch Telephone company was held in the school house of Dist No. 2.
 All the old officers were elected and all the subscribers were assessed one dollar each for the purchase of a telephone tester, which was deemed necessary, on account of the failure of the line to give satisfactory service. The meeting was held March 25th.
 During the last two weeks of school in the Agee Dist., the public raised a sum of $5 around their school, and bought a fine watch fob, which they presented to their teacher, Miss Esther Thomas as a token of the esteem they had for her. That is the first time in the history of that district, that the pupils have went to so much pains to show their respect for, and confidence in their teacher. That is certainly a fine showing for Miss Thomas, for that school had been commenced and given up by another lady teacher on account of her inability to govern it. Miss Thomas is now teaching the spring term of the Young school.
 In our last week items, in speaking of the exhibition given at the Agree school house we stated that the Leonie Band furnished the music for the occasion. That proved on further investigation to be incorrect, and we hasten to correct the mistake. The band was to have played there, but did not come because most of the members were sick. It was a good exhibition any way and all that attended thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

Vienna Death Notices.
 They Read Like an Extract From a Family History.
 "Don't die in Vienna. You'll be sorry if you do," writes an American on his first visit to that city, "not because of the usual objections, but on account of the death notices in the papers. They appear flanked by all sorts of ads, and range in size according to the desire for notice on the part of the family of the late lamented. Every possible title is mentioned, and the name of every member of the family goes to make up the notice. A death announcement black bordered and covering half a page of the paper is nothing unusual. Here is a sample:
 "Bruno Weiss, purveyor of lubricating oil to his imperial and royal majesty, and his wife, Amalie--born Horszitzky--in their own and in the names of their children--Hans, Otto, Minna, Laura and Hilge--and their sons-in-law, Military Surgeon Dr. Lois Krobinsky and Architect Oskar Jellinek; their daughters-in-law, Louise, born Lederman, and Marie, born Anspacker, as also in the names of their grandchildren--here follows a long string of names--and their mother and mother-in-law, Frau Ernestine Winkler, relict of Commercial Councilor Anton Winkler, announce to their friends the entrance into eternal rest, after a long and severe illness, of their dearly beloved son, Arthur, in the twenty-sixth year of his age."
 "This is correct except as to the names."--New York Tribune.

He Was Just Thinking.
 "Mary," said a man to his spouse, who was gifted with a rapidly moving tongue, "did you ever hear the story of the precious gems?"
 "No," she replied. "What is it?"
 "It's a fairy legend that my grand mother told me when I was a boy," the husband continued. "It was about a woman from whose lips fell a diamond or a ruby at every word she spoke."
 "Well?" said his wife as he pause.
 "That's all there is of it, my dear," he replied. "But I was just thinking if such things happened nowadays I could make my fortune as a jeweler."

Love of Trees.
 We find our most soothing companionship in trees among which we have lived, some of which we ourselves may have planted. We lean against them, and they never betray our trust; they shield us from the sun and from the rain, their spring welcome is a new birth which never loses its freshness, they lay their beautiful robes at our feet in autumn; in winter they stand and wait, emblems of patience and of truth, for they hide nothing, not even the little leaf buds which hint to us of hope, the last element in their triple symbolism.--Dr. O. W. Holmes.

About the Vulgar Gaze.
 Until 1870 it was against the law and sacred custom for any subject to look at the emperor of Japan. His political advisers and attendants saw only his back. When he first left the palace the shutters of all the houses had to be drawn, and no one was permitted in the streets. Even today, when the emperor has the privilege of driving through the streets like one of his subjects, it is not considered quite proper to cast a glance at him.
Experience.
 "Experience is the best teacher," quoted the wise guy.
 "Yes, but her charges are mighty high," added the simple mug--Philadelphia Record.
Naturally.
 "I heard he was in bad odor with her family. Is that true?"
 "Draw your own conclusions. It was a centless marriage."--Baltimore American.
 Health lies in labor, and there is no earthly royal road to it but through toil.--Wendell Phillips.

CAMELS OF THE ARABS.
 Various Ways the Desert Nomads Use the Animals' Milk.
 Nearly 90,000 camels are used in the vilayet of Bagdad as beasts of burden, and with donkeys they form the only means of carrying goods to inland points. For a common burden camel $30 is a fair price, though the trotters, or swift messenger camels, are worth more. A young camel can sometimes be had about Bagdad for as little as $3 or $4.
 Besides its use for riding and carrying purposes, the Mesopotamian Arabs depend on the camel for milk. Shoes are made from its tough, calloused hide, and in times of famine its brittle, strong tasting flesh is eaten. Condensed milk, made by boiling fresh camel milk until evaporation leaves only a hard, chalky substance, is prized among the desert nomads. By rubbing this substance between the hands it reduces to powder, and when mixed with warm water it makes a refreshing drink, highly esteemed among the desert folk. "Mereesy," as it is called, will keep in good condition for two years. When made from buttermilk it tastes sour and is prized among Arabs who have eaten much of sweet dates. Fresh, warm camel milk is also the food of many valuable horses owned by desert sheiks.
 Camel calves are weaned in their eleventh or twelfth month. When a camel caravan is on the march the very young camels are often tied upon the backs of the mother animal, since they cannot endure the fatigue of a long march. Valuable dogs and Arab desert hounds, called "slugeys," also ride in the same way.--Chicago Record-Herald.
