The Republican state convention will be held in Lincoln on July 25.

In going after County Attorney English of Omaha and forcing him to enforce the provisions of the Alberts law Governor Aldrich has again demonstrated that he is the right man in the right place.

The citizens of the bustling village of Chambers will make the eagle scream on July 4th. Ewing will also celebrate and will have for their chief attraction a flight by Savage Brothers in a new aeroplane that they have been working upon the past two years.

Judge Westover has filed for re-nomination for district judge, in the district west of us. As the legislature divided the district the Judge probably feels that his chances of election are much better in the smaller district than they would have been with the eastern counties left in.

In nearly every section of the state people are praying for rain. It is reported that the small grain crop is destroyed in that portion of the state lying west and south of Grand Island. In the eastern part of this county a heavy rain last Friday put crops in splendid shape, but small grain, especially oats, in the rest of the county needs rain.

We are in receipt of Volume 1, No. 1, of the Atkinson Leader published by C. W. Gladhill, who was an employee of this office for a few weeks last year. The sheet is a neat and attractive little publication and the editor announces is strictly independent in politics. The Frontier extends Clarence the right hand of fellowship and wishes him success in his venture.

George W. E. Dorsey, who served six years in congress from this district when Holt county was a part of the Third district, died at his home in Salt Lake City last Monday. Mr. Dorsey was a power in Nebraska politics at one time and was well acquainted with many old timers in this county. After his defeat for congress by O. M. Kem, the custer county populist, Mr. Dorsey retired from politics and shortly thereafter moved to Utah, where he had extensive mining interests.

Last week we attended the annual meeting of the Nebraska editorial association which was held in Omaha. It was the largest meeting ever held in the state and the citizens of Omaha were unstinted in their hospitality to the country "yokels." Various feeds and entertainments were provided for the visiting guests and the only regret expressed by the spokesman for the Omaha commercial club, which provided a series of entertainments, was that the quill pushers could not remain a whole week so as to allow all who desired an opportunity to entertain them the opportunity to do so. There is no question but that the boundless hospitality extended by the citizens of the metropolis will result in the country press having kinder feelings for the city of Omaha.

Brittall-Grimes.

Married, at the residence of the bride's parents at Chambers, Nebraska, at high noon on Monday, June 11, 1911 Robert N. Brittall to Miss Margaret Grimes, Rev. W. N. McKay, pastor of the Methodist church of Chambers officiating.

After the wedding ceremony was performed the bridal couple received the congratulations of their friends and then with the assembled guests partook of a bountiful wedding dinner.

The groom has been a resident of this city for a number of years and at the present time is deputy sheriff of this county. He is a young man of integrity and ability, with a host of friends scattered throughout the county.

The bride is one of Holt county's fairest daughters, of charming personality and winning ways, and one of the leaders in the society circles of southern Holt. She is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Grimes of Chambers.

This estimable young couple have gone to housekeeping in a cottage in the northern part of the city which the groom had fitted up for his bride. The Frontier joins their many friends and acquaintances throughout the county in wishing them a long life of matrimonial bliss.

Corn is looking fine and it is growing rapidly.

Reports come from north and South Dakota that they are completely dried out.

Mrs. Brant and Mrs. Gerard, were callers at the Hatch home last Friday evening.

Rain is badly needed in this locality. Unless a rain comes soon, the small grain will be gone.

People in this vicinity thought sure that they were going to have rain last Friday evening, but their hopes were dissolved in a wind and dust storm, with just enough moisture to lay the dust. Speaking about the wind, it certainly did blow some, as it blew our milk over, and scattered Bergers Bros., alfalfa, which they had just recently cut and raked, making it necessary for them to rake it again. The storm had the appearance of a small tornado. It certainly presented a curious aspect, which it has not been our lot to witness before. We did not learn whether it did any damage anywhere else or not.

Further reports come to us, that the conditions in regard to health and climate in Florida are misrepresented to a certain extent. The latest is from the New York Independent, which we quote in part: 'The movement to distribute more generally the influx of immigrants and place them where they are needed, in calling attention to other evils which are almost as great as the congestion in New York's crowded districts. Larger colonies are reported as being pushed in to some of the states entirely regardless of the adaptation of these people to making homes out of the soil and climate that is offered them. Townships planted in Florida Everglades are likely to end in populous graveyards rather than in cultivated acres. This matter needs careful supervision to prevent speculators from wholesale robbery. One thousand home seekers a day is the record at Jacksonville Florida. This does not count tourists there who are in the flux of sight seeing, but it means really those people who are being colonized in that country. It shows a desire to drift the population south as well as west and could be heartily enjoyed only many of these people are misled in regard to climate, soil and health conditions. I believe the Independent has no axe to grind in the matter, consequently the foregoing is authentic in every particular. Boys go slow. Take plenty of time to investigate this matter thoroughly if you think of locating down there, take a trip down there, see the country, and interview as many northern settlers as you can, before you buy, and then you will know whether the country will suit you or not, before you have invested in that land. A word to the wise.
